IMPORTANT NEWS FROM BASSETT'S CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD!

In developing "Bargain Day U.S.A." Bassett Furniture Industries hopes to achieve three primary objectives.

First, to create the largest day of savings in history for America's Homemakers by assisting each participating store to offer important reductions on every item in their selection (not just Bassett products!).

Second, to introduce Bassett's exciting new products to as many consumers as possible in a very short period of time. We feel "Bargain Day U.S.A." with it's wide range of appeal should produce the biggest crowds ever at fine stores across America.

Finally, by underwriting and coordinating the largest home furnishings savings event in history, we hope to say a most sincere "Thank you" to the millions of customers, and thousands of retail stores that have made Bassett the world's largest single brand furniture manufacturer.

Thank you, and happy shopping . . . from all seven-thousand of us at Bassett Furniture Industries.

Sincerely,

MR. ROBERT SPILMAN
Chairman of The Board
Bassett Furniture Industries

Peder And Mathilde Engelstad Story Ends

(Editor's Note: This is the final installment in the story of Peder and Mathilde Engelstad as told by their youngest son, Melvin. The material is taken from a book written by Melvin and published for the Engelstad family. The Times thanks Melvin for the effort expended to prepare the summary and his permission to publish it.)

by Melvin Engelstad

Peder and Mathilde's 60th Wedding Anniversary, August 12, 1941

It was August 11, 1941. Tomorrow would be Peder and Mathilde's wedding anniversary. It would mean that they had been married for 60 years, working hand in hand for the common cause of building and sustaining a happy and successful farm home for their family. As they made their way, starting as immigrants from Norway in 1882, their accomplishments had been inspired by five basic principles:

(1) Devotion and love for their adopted land, the U.S.A.

(2) Affection and respect for each other.

(3) Experimentation with new ideas for better results.

(4) Creation of a comfortable home through honest effort.

(5) Compatible living within family and among neighbors.

The day of the 60th wedding anniversary arrived, but it was without fanfare or any planned celebration. Recent months had brought a change in Peder, from the usually eager, energetic person to one preferring less activity and more relaxation. Most of his time was spent quietly in the privacy of the home with Mathilde near at hand, and the presence of Edwin, Valborg and family on the farm served to relieve Peder and Mathilde of domestic chores.

Peder's Final Months

The start of the New Year, 1942, brought sad news to Peder and the family. His brother, Hans, at Everett, Washington, had died on January 7; a granddaughter, Florence, died on February 2 from a prolonged heart condition, and his sister, Sina, had been stricken with a heart attack on February 14, lapsed into a coma, and died on February 18, 1942.

To Peder, now past 84 years of age, the oldest of six children and the only surviving member of the family, it seemed that he was witnessing a review of past experiences and aspirations, and out front smiling at him was that vivacious young girl who had become his wife. She had worked at his side, through thick and thin, to reach a common goal — to own a piece of fertile farmland in America on which to derive an honest livelihood, raise a healthy family and live in harmony with God and man.

These were familiar scenes of Peder and Mathilde during the spring of 1942: Peder seated on a chair near the kitchen stove, slowly rubbing his hands together, while Mathilde prepared and applied a baking soda solution to lessen the discomfort of itchy skin; in their bedroom, Peder lying on the bed — sleeping, or more often only relaxing — with Mathilde nearby to talk to him.

As the weeks stretched into months, a comination of hardening of the arteries and anemia continued to impair Peder's strength. He had never been hospitalized, and he was experiencing no pain. Could it be far wrong to assume that Peder cooly dismissed hospitalization for himself at this time knowing that at 84 years of age he was already many years beyond the projected life expectancy rate? His death came on the morning of May 29, 1942, and he was conscious up to the final moments with Mathilde at his side faithfully holding his hand as he slept away peacefully.

According to the official death record, in the final two days of Peder's life, he experienced complete circulatory collapse after 20 years of arteriosclerosis, with secondary anemia as a contributory cause.

But, How about Mathilde Without Peder?

How did she react to the loss of Peder? She was saddened, she missed her devoted husband who had been at her side for almost 61 years, but she was not defeated. Some of her oft-expressed thoughts are indicative of the inner strength that had served both her and Peder:

"We came into this world, not because we willed it so, and it is good that we can feel ready to leave in the same way.

"We respect the laws of nature and the Power that created them.

"We love all of our children, grandchildren, and their children, alike, down the line.

"We believe that ambition, honesty, kindness and respect are among the top qualities man should cultivate to create a compatible society.

"We enjoy life because of all its challenges, not in spite of them.

"We value leisure time as a reward for honestly expended effort.

"We feel that a combination of happiness and sorrow is a better prescription for living than either one without some of the other.

"We maintain that a happy smile should have its start at home."

Public Sale of Livestock and Farm Equipment

Following the sale of all cattle, sheep, horses, tractors, trucks, other farm machinery and tools on November 18, 1942, the farm was rented by one of the sons and a son-in-law for the five-year period of 1943 through 1947.

Mathilde's Final Weeks

Early in December, 1943, the doctor discovered that Mathilde had developed an infection on the back of her hand, and, according to his instructions, hot packs were applied. The infection slowly and gradually healed, but Mathilde's morning feeling of being "pretty good" was daily being overcome by a feeling of tiredness, resulting in again summoning the doctor.

Under treatment for anemia, there was stabilizing improvement for several days, when her condition suddenly worsened and she was admitted to the hospital on Christmas Day suffering from bronchial pneumonia and severe secondary anemia. Transfusions were administered as members of the family stood by to donate blood, but the beneficial effect of each transfusion was only temporary as Mathilde, in her conscious hours, looked for loved ones who were hurrying home, many from distant points, to be at her side.

Surrounded by the nine living members of the family she had reared and loved with such great devotion, Mathilde died on January 1, 1944.

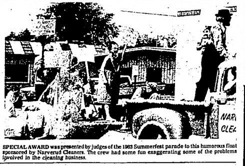
In keeping with the manner in which they had lived and worked since their marriage in Norway in 1881, Peder and Mathilde were buried, side by side, in the family plot in Greenwood cemetery, there to rest peacefully in the soil of their beloved United States of America, whose beckoning open arms they had heeded and, then, found themselves richly blessed with a good life.

Settlement of Estate

Following the public sale of livestock and farm equipment in November 1942 and the rental of the farm for the five-year period, 1943 through 1947, by Mons Engelstad and Edwin Hanson (son and son-in-law of Peder), the farm and buildings were purchased, in separate bids, by Peder's son, Paul in 1948.

Century Farm Certification

From Paul Engelstad, the ownership of the land and buildings passed to the partnership of two of Paul's sons, James and Arnold Engelstad, who this year, 1983, are being awarded a Century Farm certificate by the Minnesota state fair in recognition of the farm having been owned within the same family for at least 100 years and consisting of 50 or more acres.



SPECIAL AWARD was presented by judges of the 1983 Summerfest parade to this humorous float sponsored by Narverud Cleaners. The crew had some fun exaggerating some of the problems involved in the cleaning business.

Watch Dog For Danger Signals Of Heat Stroke

As hot weather lingers, it is important to remember that dogs are very susceptible to heat stroke. The Minnesota veterinary medical association (MVMA) recommends the following precautions that will help your pets avoid the problem:

(1) When they are outdoors both shade and fresh drinking water should always be available.

(2) Do not leave your dog in a parked car for even a few minutes. Temperatures in the car can rise very quickly to intolerable levels. Leaving windows open slightly does not allow enough circulation to keep temperatures down and keep your pet cool.

(3) Kennels should have adequate ventilation for good air circulation.

(4) Excessive exercise should be avoided during hot weather.

According to Dr. Joanne Schulman, veterinarian, heat stroke is a life threatening situation. On behalf of the MVMA she warns owners to watch for the initial signs of heat stroke which are bright red gums and panting. Without quick action your dog's rectal temperature will rise to over 104 degrees Fahrenheit and he will quickly become lethargic. If you dog develops heat stroke, the MVMA advises, gradually immerse it in or cover it with cold water and take it immediately to your veterinarian.

10% WITHHOLDING LAW REPEALED!

Thanks to you, the voice of reason has prevailed in Washington.

We recently informed you of new legislation requiring that the government withhold 10% of your dividends and interest on your savings. And you voiced your opinion, speaking out against this legislation.

So overwhelming was your response that when it came to a vote in Washington, this unfair and unreasonable law was repealed by Congress.

As a matter of fact, your response to this issue, along with millions of others' resulted in the largest mail response in this country's legislative history.

We thank you for continuing to exercise your voice in government, and we thank the 98th Congress for listening.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor: This is an open letter of thanks to Rep. Wally Sparby. Thank you for your recent trip to Washington, D.C. on behalf of area farmers to try obtain disaster loan money. Thank you not only for whatever you were able to accomplish there, but even more so thanks for showing enough concern to make the trip.

Thanks for your participation also in the emergency action rally held at UMTC at Crookston on July 22. It at least showed you cared. That's more than can be said for John Block, Rudy Boschwitz and Arlan Stangeland — the latter two of whom had said they would attend and then didn't (although Stangeland could make it to Grand Forks for a fund raiser three hours later).

"As was said at that rally; "Farmers in the area are in dire need and no one seems to care."

Sincerely,
Gladys Hallstrom

New Mortgage Relief Act Expands Rights

If you are facing a foreclosure or cancellation of a contract for deed on your city or farm homestead, you should know about a new state law which expands the rights of many persons in your situation, reports the community legal education program.

Effective until July 1, 1984, this "Mortgage Relief Act" is special legislation passed in response to the "economic emergency" faced by the large number of rural and urban Minnesotans unable to meet homestead payments because of unemployment, the recession, and other related difficulties.

If you face a mortgage foreclosure, the new law may help you in three ways:

— If your mortgage entitles you to receive a written notice of default some time before foreclosure preceedings can begin, the new law expands the "notice period" (that is, the time between sending the notice and starting foreclosure) to 60 days. This expanded notice period gives you extra time to try to make the payments or to work out an agreement with your creditor. Your mortgage cannot be foreclosed during this notice period. If your mortgage has been foreclosed and you did not receive a notice of default, see an attorney; your rights may have been violated.

— New law requires that when the 60-day notice period is over, an eight-week publication period is required. During this eight-week period (which cannot begin until the notice period has ended), the lender publishes notices of the planned foreclosure sale. The sale cannot occur until this eight-week period has ended.

— New law allows you to ask the court to delay the foreclosure sale for an additional period of six months (12 months for farm homesteads on more than 10 acres), giving you a chance to bring your mortgage payments up to date. You may request this delay on a piece of property only once, and your request may be made anytime after you've received a foreclosure notice but before the foreclosure sale. During this delay the foreclosure sale cannot take place. In deciding whether to grant you the delay, the Judge may consider your financial problems including unemployment or low farm prices.

Procedure for requesting a delay is complicated; you should see an attorney if you wish to pursue it. It involves a court hearing and will require you to pay certain of your lender's foreclosure costs. If granted the delay, you will be ordered to make partial mortgage payments in an amount determined by the Judge. Missing any of these partial payments could result in the immediate beginning of new foreclosure proceedings. If your mortage is foreclosed, your "redemption period" (i.e., the time after the foreclosure sale when you have the right to buy back your property by paying the entire amount of the mortage) is shortened by the length of the delay you received, but the redemption period will be at least 30 days.

New law is complex. You can dial the statewide home preservation hotline toll-free for information or referral numbers at 1-800-652-9747. Also, the following information is important. The new law states that it does not apply to first mortages if a second or subsequent mortgage was made on the property after May 24. The new law states that it does apply to federal lenders (such as VA, FHA, FmHA, etc.); in practice, the applicability of the law to federal lenders may raise complex legal questions. If you wish to pursue the protections of this or other laws, be sure to seek competent legal advice. There are additional legal protections available through the department of housing and urban development, bankruptcy proceedings, and other statutes. Fully discuss with your attorney the details of your case before you choose your course of action.

Motorcycle Mishaps Peak July-August

Motorcycle drivers — as well as responsible car and truck drivers — should be especially alert for the possibility of a motorcycle traffic crash during the months of July and August. Over the last several years, a pattern has developed, where those two summer months result in the greatest number of fatal and injury producing crashes, according to the Minnesota department of public safety.

In 1982, for example, there were 72 motorcycle fatalities and 39 of those occurred during July and August — over 50 per cent of the annual total. Of the 2,381 motorcycle injuries in 1982, over 40 per cent (955) happened in those two peak summer months. From 1979 to 1981, nearly 40 per cent of the motorcycle fatalities occurred in July and August. Similarly, during 1980 and 1981, over 36 per cent of the total number of motorcycle injuries were reported in July and August.

Warm summer weather ideal for motorcycling and vacation travel and a possible tendency for motorcyclists to use warm weather as an excuse not to use the necessary safety equipment and clothing, are the main reasons for this summer "peak" in accidents.

Fortunately, there has been an overall decline in the number of motorcyclists killed in the last two years. However, an alarming element in the motorcycle crash picture is the fact that young people seem to be overinvolved. Age group most at risk for motorcycle accidents appears to be those from 20 to 24 years of age. This group made up 35 per cent of the persons killed and 33 per cent of the persons injured in motorcycle accidents.

"The logical conclusion to be drawn is for motorcycle operators, especially young motorcycle operators, to be especially watchful for traffic hazards during the most beautiful part of the summer" according to Minnesota department of public safety Commissioner Paul Tschida.

State Fair Has Marching Band Contest

Minnesota state fair high school marching band competition will be a regular feature of the state fair mall parades during the 1983 exposition, August 25 through Labor day, September 5.

For the first 10 days of the fair, high school bands from throughout the region will compete in the 6 p.m. parades. The bands will be featured in the parades along with floats, clowns, animals, farm machinery and various novelty units.

Marching band competition will be divided into two divisions — one for schools with enrollment of 500 and over, and the second for schools with enrollment under 500.

Bands will be reviewed by the All American judging association and will be judged on general effects, music, marching and maneuvering. Each band will receive a participation plaque and trophies will be awarded to the winning band in each division.

To date, 38 bands have entered the competition. For entry information, call (612) 642-2218, or write to High School Band Contest, Minnesota State Fair, St. Paul, MN. 55108.

REFLECTI NS

Things don't change but by and by our wishes do. The things we wished for as children were relatively simple — a shiny new toy, a trip to the zoo. As we grow and mature those wishes tend to become more materialistic, we wish for wealth, power and fame. Then, ironically enough, as age ripens into wisdom our wishes become simplistic again. We hope for good health, peace and security for our loved ones. May all your good wishes come true.

Taking A Break

Today's issue marks the last one to be received by our subscribers and newsstand purchasers prior to a two-issue lapse in the publication schedule. The suspension of two issues and closing of the printing plant and offices are viewed by the Times management as essential to permitting all employees to have a full week of vacation.

We like to think we work hard at our jobs, often forsaking evenings and weekends or scheduled holidays to provide news coverage of events and activities. Within the past month, three summer weekends have been lost for news staff members due to the St. Hilaire centennial, Pennington county fair and Jaycee Summerfest. All were worthy news events deserving of coverage, but the time spent can not be replaced.

We expect these situations because, as the old saying goes, they come with the territory. News does not happen in neat 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. days five days a week. It never has and never will. It is the nature of things that most news is made during evening or weekend hours.

It stands to reason that news will continue to be made while our offices are closed and the paper is not published. We hope you will miss the coverage you have come to expect, and we will try to catch up as best we can on our return. But we also hope you will understand the need to get away from the press of normal duties for awhile for a little stress release.

One thing nice about the printing business is that the printed word is available to you at your choice of times. The advertising messages and public notices in this issue are available for your reference until we return from taking a break. Read and refer to them whenever and wherever you like.

Thanks again for your understanding as we take another of our annual breaks. We hope on our return we will be refreshed and ready to serve you with ever greater dedication and enthusiasm.

"You Done Real Good"

In the Minnesota Newspaper association there is an award presented to special people on special occasions, particularly public officials and others who are speakers at association functions. The award is called the "You Done Real Good" award, an obvious corruption of the language but none-the-less a means of conveying a special form of appreciation.

Such an award is due to the Pennington county fair association, Jaycees and Jaycee Women of Thief River Falls for a nearly constant two weeks of activity and entertainment for this community. Unless one is on the inside of such tasks, it is impossible to imagine the amount of time and effort that is required to handle the myriad of details which must be covered. A true cooperative effort is required and people must accept responsibility, learn to delegate authority and be willing to sacrifice both time and money to get the job done.

Involvement is the key to success of any organization and it is apparent the county fair association, Jaycees and Jaycee Women have found the key in the county fair and Summerfest programs. Blessed by good weather for both celebrations, the fair and Summerfest had to be among the most successful in recent years.

It should be noted that while the Jaycees sponsor the Summerfest program, there are a number of other individuals and groups which conduct many of the individual events. These people and organizations also deserve thanks for their specific efforts and their cooperative spirit.

We believe this year's county fair success indicates what can be done when a little added financial investment is involved. Increase in livestock premium money (combined, of course, with strong personal efforts by the livestock superintendents) contributed to the excellent display of animals at the fair this year. Much heavier than normal expenditure of funds for a top notch entertainer paid off in good crowds and a break-even gate.

Co-sponsorship of events should also be noted, such as St. Hilaire Co-op Elevator sharing in the cost of the harness racing program and KTRF-KSNR joining in underwriting the Charley Pride show. This "insurance" against heavy losses gave the fair board some incentive to go after the special attractions.

It would be a considerably easier job for the fair board to implement some of its many ideas for improvement to grounds and program if it was assured of a more constant money supply. This is only possible through a county-wide sharing of the burden in what is truly a county-wide program. We believe that the county board of commissioners should seriously consider a modest annual levy for county fair operations. And we would encourage the continued support which businesses have seen fit to provide in past years as well.

Nobody knows better than the people involved in projects such as the fair and Summerfest that there are ways in which improvements could be made. They appreciate constructive comments but they would probably appreciate some additional help even more. Volunteers are always appreciated.

After covering the two weeks of activity for the Times, the news staff here is impressed by the abilities and effort of the fair board, Jaycees, Jaycee Women and other volunteers. You all done real good!

Waste, Fraud and Abuse

Just in case you are interested in how your hard-earned tax dollars are spent for you at the federal level, here is a sampling of where some of the money went:

+ The National Endowment for the Humanities granted $2,500 through the state of Virginia to Arlington county, to study why people are rude, cheat and lie on local tennis courts.

+ The U.S. Postal service spent over $3.4 million on a Madison avenue ad campaign to make Americans write more letters, then spent $775,000 to see if the campaign worked.

+ The Federal Aviation administration spent $57,800 on a study of the body measurements of airline stewardess trainees in order to "Properly design safety equipment".

+ The department of the air force conducted a six-month, $3,000 test at the Pentagon to investigate whether the use of umbrellas by the male personnel in uniform was proper.

+ The federal highway administration spent $241,764 to produce a computerized system that gives local directions to people who can't or won't read maps.

+ The highway administration also spent $222,000 to study "Motorists' Attitude Toward Large Trucks."

+ The House of Representatives spent $1.3 million to automate 19 elevators while retaining operators to run them.

Lots Of Water

Which requires more water — taking a shower or eating a hamburger? According to the Freshwater Society, eating a hamburger takes a great deal more water than taking a shower — about 30 times more.

Beginning with the water used to irrigate the corn fed to the beef animal, as well as the water that the animal drank and the water that was used to process the beef, it takes about 4,000 gallons of water to produce a pound of beef, the institute says.

Huge quantities of water are needed to produce the food for our meals. About 120 gallons are needed to produce one egg, 300 gallons are needed for one loaf of bread, and nearly 3,000 gallons for one pound of margarine. A turkey dinner for eight people represents a use of over 42,000 gallons of water, enough to fill a 30x50 foot swimming pool. Almost half of our nation's freshwater is used to produce food: more than 4,000 gallons per day, or 1.5 million gallons per person per year. Few of us are aware of this indirect but staggering use of water.

Home water use represents less than 10 per cent of total water used in the United States. The other 90 per cent is divided between agriculture and industry — water each of us uses indirectly through the products we buy every day: from food to our Sunday newspaper (280 gallons of water) to a new car (100,000 gallons of water).

AMERICAN FLAG which was flown over the U.S. Capitol on June 20 was recently presented to Donna Knott, Thief River Falls, by Richard Sather, chairman of the Pennington county Independent Republican party. Donna won the flag as a result of her having registered at the Pennington county fair booth of the I-R party. Congressman Arlan Stangeland was responsible for donating the flag.

Bees, Ivy, Ticks Cause Poisoning

Summer activities provide everyone with a chance to get outdoors. However, being outdoors also means putting up with nature's pests: bees, poison ivy and wood ticks.

For most people these pests cause only a slight amount of discomfort, but for those who are allergic to stings and poison ivy the reaction can be serious.

Minnesota poison control system (MPCS) at a Twin Cities hospital wants Minnesotans to enjoy summer activities and with some basic first aid knowledge it is possible.

Bee stings pose the biggest problem. Wasps and bumble bees have the ability to sting repeatedly and usually do not leave the stinger in the victim's body. Honey bees only sting once and because they have a barbed stinger, it is left in the body.

If the stinger (or lancet) is left in the skin, do not try to squeeze the area to remove it. Squeezing only injects more venom into the wound. Instead, MPCS advises that a horizontal scraping motion with a fingernail or other semi-sharp object is used to dislodge the lancet.

For all types of bee stings the best first aid is to cleanse the area with soap and water. Meat tenderizer mixed with water, to from a paste, may be applied to affected area. The tenderizer must contain papain which is an enzyme which helps to break down the venom. It should be applied as soon after the sting as possible and should be left on for about one hour. Cold compresses may also be used to decrease the pain and swelling.

Symptoms of a normal reaction to a sting are pain and swelling in the affected area; wheat formation; irritation, itching and warmth over the affected area. The symptoms of a generalized or anaphylatic reaction (allergic) include areas of the body that are not affected by the sting such as hives and/or itching, difficulty breathing, difficulty swallowing, sneezing and nasal congestion. These symptoms usually occur rapidly after the sting (within minutes) and require emergency care. If a person has ever had a serious reaction or has increasingly severe reactions he should carry an insect sting kit which is available through his doctor and wear an alert tag telling of the allergy to insect stings.

Multiple stings or stings around the nose or eyes increase the likelihood of a more serious reaction and medical attention may be necessary.

Poison ivy also poses medical problems for some people. Poison ivy grows in all types of soil and in all conditions of sun or shade. The leaves alternate on the side of the stem and are divided into three leaflets; each leaf is oval shaped, pointed at the tip and tapered at the base. The middle leaflet is longer stalked than the two side ones. The leaf surfaces may be smooth or hairy, glossy or dull green and may vary in color from yellow through green to red. Learning to recognize the plant helps to avoid contact.

Contact with poison ivy results in dermatitis or skin that becomes red and itchy in mild cases to blisters which exude serum in more serious cases. Infection in more severe cases is potentially dangerous for the patient. The symptoms may occur as early as a few hours after contact and as late as up to five days after contact.

Symptoms appear after contact with broken parts of the plant or with articles of clothing or implements which have come in contact with the plant. The dermatitis does not spread by the blisters or running sores. Re-infection from clothing, shoes, hunting and gardening equipment or household pants is common and usually leads people to think that the infection is spreading from the air or broken blisters.

Caution must also be used when burning poison ivy leaves because the poison is present in droplet form on the particles of dust and ash in the smoke.

Poison combines with the skin's proteins and washing the area with soap only washes off the excess poison which may then be transmitted to other parts of the body and/or to other persons.

Best treatment for poison ivy dermatitis is to wash the area with soap and water and apply calamine or caladryl lotion. In severe cases, medical attention should be sought.

Wood ticks are another nuisance, although most people do not react severely to wood ticks. However, most the home remedies to remove the tick (such as matches, kerosene, turpentine, etc.) can create additional dangers. The best method for removing a wood tick from an animal or human is to grasp it very close to the skin of the animal or human with tweezers or tissue paper held in your fingers and pull quickly and firmly. The mouthparts of the tick are small and will not be left in wound. Another good method is to place a piece of tape over the back of the tick and pull. Always apply a good germicidal agent such as iodine to the wound after removing the tick.

Do not destroy the tick by crushing it between the fingers, this may cause infection. Ticks, once they are removed from the person or animal, may be killed with fire, kerosene or turpentine.

Anyone who needs help in caring for a severe insect bite reaction or dermatitis cases should call the poison control center. Number to call is 1-800-222-1222. Poison prevention materials and telephone stickers are available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Minnesota Poison Control System, St. Paul-Ramsey Medical Center, 640 Jackson Street, St. Paul, MN 55101.

Washington Report

Sen. Dave Durenberger

In lakes and rivers all over the nation, fish and shellfish are dying or becoming inedible, wetlands are being smothered and millions of dollars are being spent on dredging to remove tainted silt. The cause is not industrial waste, or sewage, or acid rain; it is ground runnoff — runoff from farm and ranchland, urban areas, mining, timber-cutting and construction.

The runoff pollution — called "non-point" source pollution because it can't be traced to a single point of origin — is responsible for at least half of the nation's water pollution. It is well-known to farmers and ranchers, because the agricultural runoff that carries animal waste, pesticides and other toxic substances also carries with it precious topsoil. A program to fight this pollution, then, must also be a soil conservation program.

There is little disagreement on these points. But the question of how to control non-point pollution has left us divided into two camps.

One side argues that any non-point pollution program should be voluntary. They want the federal government to provide financial incentives to farmers, ranchers, foresters and home-builders to encourage better management practices. They fear a new intrusive and costly program of government regulation.

These fears are understandable. Moreover it would be grossly unfair to overlook the efforts of the many participants in voluntary soil and water conservation programs over the years, and the progress that has been made. The amount of cropland under conservation tillage has increased four-fold over the past decade.

However, there is a strong case on the other side. That side points out that the federal government has been providing financial incentives and encouragement for soil and water conservation since the 1930s — with little discernable effect. We have spent billions on these voluntary programs. Federal agencies have conducted demonstration projects. And today, we are still losing 6 billion tons of topsoil each year.

Add to this the realization that we will not reach our water quality goals anytime soon if we rely solely on financial incentives to control ground runoff, and you have compelling evidence that the time for voluntary controls has passed.

A modest and reasonable solution is being considered by the Senate Environment Committee. My plan is to require farmers and other operators in high-pollution areas to implement within four or five years the average or typical management practicles for controlling pollution. States would run the programs, and would be responsible for targeting affected waterways, determining which management practices are typical and drawing up the plans.

Clearly, this is not the intrusive and burdensome program some opponents would have you believe — opponents, I might add, who began blasting it even before it was formulated. The new program would affect only the few "bad" managers who are doing little or nothing to control non-point pollution, and they would have several years to merely reach the average management practices used by their peers. The vast majority of managers would feel no effects at all. Surely this is the least we can do.

I do believe the federal government should provide funds for planning, education, demonstration, and even when individual operators don't have the resources to take the necessary pollution control steps. But I can't understand the argument that says the taxpayer is obliged to pay people not to pollute. I can't see taxing the good managers to support the bad. If we do, how many good managers will we have left? And how much longer will it take to make our waters clean and safe again?

The Banvel® herbicide advantage: Roots out Canada thistle on Set-Aside/PIK or harvested acres.

NOW: Get a clean start in '84.

Canada thistle, and other tough perennial broadleaf weeds keep coming back—getting worse every season. But you can root out Canada thistle and the rest of these stubborn weeds after harvest or on idle acres with Banvel® herbicide.

When you use Banvel herbicide at recommended rates in a Between Crops Application, you kill perennials clear through the roots—so they can't creep back. Use Banvel herbicide before a killing frost. It penetrates weed leaves. Is absorbed by the roots. Moves through the entire plant—leaf-tip to root-tip. Then rotate back to wheat, corn or milo.

Get the control you need for Canada thistle... bindweed...and other tough broadleaf perennials.

Root out your toughest perennial problems with a Banvel herbicide Between Crops Application. Get maximum production from those acres next season. See your ag chem supplier for the full story.

NEW POSTMASTER at Goodridge is Mrs. Kenneth (Marilyn) Wiseth, a veteran of 15 years as a postal clerk at Thief River Falls and Goodridge offices. Taking part in the official installation ceremonies Tuesday morning at Goodridge were (left to right) Duane Bellefeuille, postmaster at Fargo, ND, who conducted the installation; Mrs. Wiseth; Ernest Swanson, postmaster retiring after 22 years of service at Goodridge; and Clarence Gagner, Oklee postmaster who is president of the Minnesota chapter of the National Association of Postmasters.

Mrs. Wiseth Is New Postmaster At Goodridge

Mrs. Kenneth (Marilyn) Wiseth, who has 15 years of experience as a postal clerk at Goodridge and Thief River Falls, was officially installed as postmaster at Goodridge post office Tuesday. She succeeds Ernest Swanson who has been postmaster there for the past 22 years.

Installation was conducted by Duane Bellefeuille, postmaster at Fargo, ND, and MSC manager. Bellefeuille also presented Swanson with a certificate and letter of appreciation for his 22 years of service to the postal service. Presenting congratulations to both was Clarence Gagner, Oklee postmaster, who was recently elected president of the Minnesota chapter of the National Association of postmasters.

Mrs. Wiseth served as a postal clerk at Goodridge for nine years, then divided her services between Goodridge and Thief River Falls post offices for three years before working the past three years in Thief River Falls only. She made application for the Goodridge postmaster vacancy, was interviewed in Fargo, and was notified July 29 by U.S. postmaster general William Bolger that she had received the appointment effective August 8.

The Wiseths live in Highlanding, seven miles south of Goodridge, and Kenneth has been an employee of L.B. Hartz wholesale for 20 years. All four of the Wiseth children were present for the installation ceremony Tuesday, as well as Christy Kloosterboer of Holland, who spent a year with the Wiseths while an exchange student here 10 years ago and had returned for a several week visit.

The Wiseth children include Terry of Buxton, ND; Tony of Goodridge; Mrs. David (Diane) Paulson of Goodridge; and Mrs. Arden (Shelly) Hyland of Verndale. Marilyn Wiseth is a gradute of Goodridge high school and the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alton J. Anderson of Grygla.

Approximately 60 people from the Goodridge area attended the reception at the post office Tuesday which was hosted by Mrs. Wiseth's children.

In Swanson's 22 years of service as postmaster, he has assisted the Fargo district with such tasks as building inspection, official measuring of rural mail routes and conducting mail surveys in the Fargo office. He served as a coordinator for the Ben Franklin stamp club and with postmasters Sheldon Peterson

Chancellor Of College System Visits Here

Gerald Christianson, newly-appointed chancellor of the Minnesota community college system, paid a visit to Thief River Falls Monday to meet with Northland community college provost Ken Wiebolt, vice provost Madelyn Novellino and faculty and advisory board members.

Christianson succeeds Dr. Phillip Helland who has been chancellor since the system was established by the Minnesota legislature in 1963. He spent about an hour visiting with Wiebolt here, then toured the college and area vocational-technical institute prior to speaking at an informal reception in the college-AVTI commons.

The new chancellor told the advisory board and faculty members at the reception that he had not been excited about being considered for the appointment at first, but that the level of interest has risen considerably since then, particularly since he has been making personal visits to the compuses throughout the state.

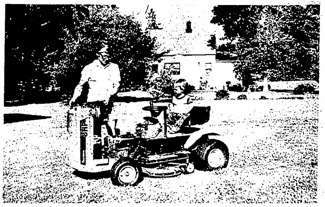
He said he takes very seriously the directive from the legislature to show how costs can be reduced and the further order to show cooperation between community colleges and area vocational-technical institutes in those towns where both facilities exist. He said he looks forward to meeting the challenges those requests present and his personal belief is long-standing that community colleges and AVTIs should be working together to consolidate programs and share facilities in any area possible.

Regarding Northland's situation as part of a three-college union with Fergus Falls and Brainerd, Christianson said he saw it as a good move to show willingness to cooperate with the legislature in cost cutting and will strengthen the position of all three campuses through the use of combined enrollment figures. He noted that the community college board has adopted the name Clearwater community college for the three-campus system.

"You can't imagine how much good this cooperative attitude has done for the community college system in its relationship with the legislature," Christianson emphasized.

The chancellor also invited suggestions and comments.

FIRST VISIT to Northland community college was made Monday by Gerald Christianson, newly-appointed chancellor of the Minnesota community college system. Christianson succeeds Dr. Phillip Helland who retired this year after serving as chancellor since the system was established by the Minnesota legislature in 1963. Seated at left is Mrs. Warren (Margaret) Saetre, president of the Northland community college advisory committee.



EAGER TO HELP (or at least to ride), two-year-old Michael Lovly of Goodridge watches while his Dad fills gas in the riding lawnmower. The John Lovly family was selected to receive the farm beautification award from the Pennington soil and water conservation district. John said it takes a steady five hours of mowing to cut the grass on the large farm yard, and that doesn't include any break time. John has been employed by Arlen's Sheetmetal for 13 years and is co-owner with Arlen Ellingson in Rain Care of the North.

REGISTERED QUARTERHORSE named "LaDonna Parker", a five-year-old sorrel mare, is the pride and joy of Rolaine Lovly of Goodridge. Rolaine and her husband John were selected as winners of the farm beautification contest sponsored annually by the Pennington county soil and water conservation district. Part of the Lovly farmstead, including the well-kept barn, is shown in the background. Rolaine is an active horsewoman, has competed at a number of shows, and also owns a four-month-old quarterhorse colt named "Mr. Candy Joe" which she will bring to the farm when it is weaned in the fall.

John Lovly Family Cited For Farm Beautification

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Mr. and Mrs. John Lovly have a lovely farmstead one mile north of Goodridge. So lovely is the Lovly farm yard that it has been selected by the Pennington county soil and water conservation district as winner of the 1983 farm beautification award.

John and Rolaine purchased the eight-acre farmstead from Mr. and Mrs. Harold South five years ago and have expanded on the efforts of the Souths who were also interested in flowers, trees and landscaping. They keep the entire eight acres trimmed and neat with only a small pasture and the wooded area not mowed or used for plantings.

"It takes five hours of steady going to mow the yard," John said, "and that doen't include any time for breaks. I mean you really have to go some to get done in five hours."

Also included in the farm yard is a 30x100 garden which provides much of the family's produce, eight flower beds of various sizes including a rock garden around the front of the house, several planters including one on the wall of the barn, a flag pole with the flag illuminated at night, bird bath and several decorative figurines.

All of the buildings were painted two years ago and the house has been remodeled on the inside. The barn is 32x40 with a hip roof and other buildings include a single garage, former chicken house now used for storage and a granary with an attached shed used for storage of mowing equipment and other items.

After a wind storm last July some tree removal was necessary and was accomplished. Graveling was done on the farm driveway and the dairy barn was converted to housing for horses and beef animals with box stalls and calf pens built inside.

Rolaine is a horse enthusiast and has a five-year-old sorrel quarterhorse mare whose registered name is "LaDonna Parker." She also purchased a 20-day-old colt about three months ago and will bring it to the farm when it is weaned this fall. The Lovlys are members of the American and Minnesota quarterhorse associations and of regions 9 and 10 of the state association.

John, son of the Palmer Lovlys of rural Goodridge, has been employed by Arlen's Sheetmetal for 13 years and is a co-owner with Arlen Ellingson in Rain Care of the North. His wife, the former Rolaine Grovum of Coon Rapids, has been a nurse's aide at Northwestern hospital services for the past six years.

Although reared in a more suburban environment, Rolaine said she enjoys country living. She comes up with most of the ideas for projects in the yard and John works with her on implementing them. Future projects planned include some tree planting and extension of a white board fence around the pasture adjoining the barn.

John spent two years in the U.S. army, including 18 months in Viet Nam, and is a member of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars. Rolaine is a member of the VFW auxiliary and the family holds membership in Faith Lutheran church of Goodridge. Their son Michael, who is two years old this month, also enjoys the freedom of rural living.

John said the most frequent comment he gets on the appearance of the farmstead is a good natured plea from neighbors in the community to "slow down — my wife is after me to do some of that work around our yard."

The Lovlys will receive a plaque in recognition of their selection at the annual meeting of the soil and water conservation district early next spring.

Also residents of the Lovly farm are two Toggenburg goats named Franny and Clara and two Dalmatian dogs.

For leisure time activities during rare free time John enjoys hunting deer and birds, Rolaine works on macrame projects and both enjoy fishing.

Council Okays Liquor Sale In City Buildings

Thief River Falls city council adopted an ordinance authorizing the sale of intoxicating liquor at city-owned sports or convention facilities, among other business conducted during its regular meeting Tuesday, August 9, in council chambers at city auditorium.

Alderman James Womack indicated that the license committee had met with representatives of Ducks Unlimited to discuss the possibility of adopting such an ordinance. On recommendation of the license committee, the proposed ordinance was brought to a vote, with Alderman Don Goodrich casting the only vote against it.

In other business the council:

—Reviewed requests to have beer in Oakland Park and L.B. Hartz Park. Requests were for August 10 by the American Legion and Central Inc., and for August 20 by Digi-Key. Requests were approved on a 5-3 vote, with negative votes cast by Alderman Bill Penning, Ken Murphy and Don Goodrich;

—Adopted the Greenwood Trail plan recommended by the park and recreation board, directing that the park and recreation department have authority and responsibility for maintaining and preparing the area for public use. Property involved is located immediately adjacent to the Greenwood cemetery, and is generally identified as the Mickelson property.

Nordvick And Rittenour Vows Exchanged Here

MaryAnn C. Nordvick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Nordvick of Grygla, and Kent M. Rittenour, son of Janet Gottberg, California, and Donald Rittenour of Ogilvie, exchanged marriage vows on July 10, at 2:00 p.m., at the Seventh-day Adventist church in this city.

Rev. Carl Johnson officiated at the ceremony. Darcy Nordvick, sister-in-law of the bride, was the organist, and Mrs. Carl Johnson served as pianist. Vocalists were Tim Rittenour, brother of the groom, Nancy Eklund and Colleen Monson, friends of the couple. Selections sung were "There is Love," "O Perfect Love," and "He Has Chosen You for Me."

Candles with hurricane globes graced the chancel together with candelabra accented with fresh flowers. White bows marked the pews.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a gown of white organza styled with a V-yoke outlined by a lace-edged ruffle. Lace appliques accented with pearls graced the V-inset, formed the high neckline, encircled the waistline, and graced the full sleeves, gathered at the wrists to form ruffled cuffs. A profile headpiece held her veil of bridal illusion, edged with Chantilly lace. She carried a cascade of silk flowers featuring pink tiger lilies with burgundy stamens, an assortment of pink flowers, and pink, white and burgundy ribbon streamers.

Alvina Nordvick Rittenour, Grygla, a sister of the bride and a sister-in-law of the groom, was matron of honor. She wore a rose-pink floor-length gown with a pleated skirt and a blousey, lace bodice. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations, tipped in burgundy, and accented with greenery and burgundy ribbon. Wearing a similar gown was Nancy Eklund, Roseau, a friend of the bride, who served as bridesmaid. Other bridesmaids were Colleen Monson, Gatzke, and Sandi Nordby, Grygla, friends of the bride. Their gowns, styled like the other attendants, were in burgundy, and they carried bouquets with pink ribbon streamers.

Flower girls were Holly and Penny Nordvick, Grygla, nieces of the bride. They wore dresses in a pink floral print and they carried baskets filled with white silk flowers.

David Rittenour, Princeton, a cousin of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Sanford Klamar, Gatzke, a friend; Timothy Rittenour, Grygla, brother of the groom and brother-in-law of the bride; and Joel Rittenour, Cambridge, a brother of the groom. Serving as ushers were Darold Nordvick, Grygla, a brother of the bride; Charles Olufson, Gatzke, a friend; Tom Molakness, St. Hilaire, a cousin of the bride; and Fred Rittenour, Princton, uncle of the groom. Like the groom, they wore light gray tuxedos with dark gray trim. Their shirts were pink.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Nordvick selected a pink floral dress with a pink lily corsage. A similar corsage complemented the blue dress worn by the groom's mother.

Special guest was Winnie Rittenour, grandmother of the groom.

A reception followed with Dr. and Mrs. Jerome Bray and Bill and Diana Simpson as hosts and hostesses. Wedding and reception coordinator was Orlene Kiesz.

Centering the serving table was a carrot wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with pink and burgundy flowers. Topping the upper tier supported by pillars was a miniature bride and groom. The cake was cut and served by Leonette Molakness, aunt of the bride, and Marge Kadlec, aunt of the groom. Carol Sistad served the punch and Jodi Sistad and Valerie Klamar were waitresses.

The bride is a 1981 graduate of Grygla high school and beginning in September will be enrolled in a two year program of Dental Hygiene at North Dakota State school of Science in Wahpeton. The groom is a 1981 graduate of the Thief River Falls AVTI, school of carpentry, and is employed in carpentry at Wahpeton. The couple is residing in the College Complex N.W., Apartment 328, Wahpeton. $410 In Donations Made By Lioness Club, Goodridge

Donations totaling $410 were made at a recent supper meeting of the Goodridge Lioness club held at the Trapper and Trader Steak house in that city.

Donations made were $100 to Camp Courage; $25 to the Muscular Dystrophy telethon; and $275 to the Goodridge school for carpeting and playground equipment.

Plans were also made for sponsoring a fund drive for the support of the eye bank, hearing, and leader dog services. For the fund drive each club member will invite five non-members to their home for social fellowship. The one dollar collected from each guest will go towards supporting those projects. The dealine was set for November 24.

President Doreen Sigerud presided at the meeting. On display was the first place trophy won by the club at the community celebration at Argyle. Sharon Wayne reported on the club's financial standing, and Marlys Dransveit gave an account of the previous meetings of the club and board of directors.

Peggy Hoffman was inducted into the club as a new member.

Suggestion was made that Lioness Tamer Francis Aandahl obtain a whip in order to be in charge of functions and duties. Jean Berndt promoted good humor while collecting fines. She also won the free supper. Members agreed that the extra money from the drawings should go into a special emergency fund.

A slide presentation of the three-minute shopping spree held at the Harts store in Goodridge was given by Jean Berndt. Stanley Skibicki received $258 in groceries in that event.

The next board meeting was changed to 9:00 p.m., on the first Wednesday in September. The meeting will be held at the Trapper and Trader at Goodridge.

Other officers of the organization, in addition to those named are Dorothy Wayne, chairman of the program committee; Ethel Wiseth, public relations chairman, and Carolyn Pittman, Marie Wiseth and Myrtle Sunsdahl, directors.

REFLECTIONS

He who rises from prayer a better man, his prayer is answered. Scripture tells us no prayer is ever unheard—and no setting, time or rote is necessary to make your petition meaningful. Even an atheist is heard to mutter "Thank God" upon occasion and while you may never get a direct or quick response to your spiritual pleas the simple fact that you have prayed has made you a better person.

Ag Commodity Program For Poor Extended

Legislation that continues to supply surplus agricultural commodities to non-profit charitable organizations that give food assistance to needy people in local communities has been passed by the U.S. Senate.

This bill is a two-year extension of the program that was started this April under the jobs bill. That bill was to have ended Sept. 30, 1983. The new bill now goes to the President for his signature.

"By continuing the surplus commodity distribution program for two more years and by providing funds to assist communities and emergency food centers with transportation and storage costs, we can continue helping people battle back from the recession," Boschwitz said.

The surplus commodity distribution act would provide a continuing authorization for the secretary of agriculture to make surplus agricultural commodities available to soup kitchens, food banks, churches and other non-profit charitable organizations that give food assistance to needy people, the senator said.

This legislation includes an authorization for $50 million to go to states to help defray the costs of intrastate distribution and storage, with about $10 million of that set aside for local recipient agencies.

Earlier this year Boschwitz introduced a resolution entitled "Preventing Hunger at Home" in which he called on the Congress to continue its commitment to supplying the needy of this country with adequate nutrition. "Passing this bill is a continuation of that commitment," Boschwitz said.

"Well over 400,000 Minnesotans have been served by this program and contributions of time and resources by volunteers has been extraordinary."

Stumpf Hails Lifting Of Restrictions

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer has hailed the temporary exemptions authorized by the state agriculture department this week for use by farmers of the pesticides Pydrin, Pounce and Ambush in the fight against the sunflower head moth and weevil in the state.

"I was especially pleased to see the state follow suit with North Dakota's recent announcement legalizing the use of Pydrin," Stumpf said, "since it is so important in effectively deterring the severe infestation we are experiencing this year in our own region."

Stumpf explained that the exemptions to the use of the pesticides were granted by the department in order to allow Minnesota sunflower growers and beekeepers to better combat the destructive effects of these pests. Minnesota and the Dakotas are among the nation's leaders in sunflower seed production (90 per cent) and among the top honey-producing states as well.

"The agriculture department has assured me and other legislators also urging the approval of these pesticides that they are quite unlikely to cause any possibly adverse reactions to humans or the environment," Stumpf noted.

Pydrin is registered for insect control on a wide variety of crops including sweet and field corn, potatoes, tomatoes, apples, cabbage, cauliflower, cucumbers, dry beans and peas, pumpkins, squash, melons, peaches, pears, peanuts, broccoli and cotton.

"Farmers in our area have been relieved to hear that we have followed the example of other states facing this same problem. This action should give them the means to control this terrible problem in an effective and immediate way," Stumpf said.

FARM BEAUTIFICATION award for 1983 will go to the John Lovly farm located one mile north of Goodridge along highway 219. The award is presented annually by the Pennington county soil and water conservation district. The flag pole at right center of the photo was put up by John and Rolaine after they bought the farmstead five years ago and the flag is illuminated at night. It takes the family five hours of concentrated mowing to cut grass on the large yard and weeding of gardens and flowerbeds requires additional time.

Those who attended were: Milt and Eileen Relerson, Eunice Hoff, Ann Borg, Dave and Muriel Olin, John and Helen Willers, Bill and Jean Hogan, Stan and Jan Upham, Merv and Joan Prestebak, JoAnn White, Don Barth, Darrell and Avis Brandon, Jim and Evvie Womack, Roger and Ardy Tunberg, Bob and Grace Bridges, Jarvis and Nancy Prichard, Don and Jean Hull, Bob and Annette Bergen, Orion and Betty Belch, Jerry and Mavis Sandstrom, Jane Mackenroth, Melrene Klotter, Bill and Hank Ness, Jim and Ruth Weckwerth, Jerry and Marilyn Wigness, Hank and Dolly Hallstrom, Ev and Cookie Ault, Joe and Diane Krepp.

The chartered bus left TRF at noon on Friday, August 5th filled with an enthusiastic group anticipating the fun and excitement in store for them in Winnipeg.

Arriving in Winnipeg at about 4:00 p.m., the group checked in at the Delta Inn. The hospitality suite was opened shortly after where refreshments were served.

That evening the group departed for the Stage West dinner theatre for a fine meal and a live presentation of "Beginners Luck". Both the meal and the show were excellent.

Saturday, the group enjoyed brousing around Winnipeg. Several members went golfing and some took a cruise down the Red River on a paddle boat.

Saturday evening was spent at the Assiniboia Downs race track. The group was seated in the Turf Club. They enjoyed a fine meal and the races that followed.

The 6th race was the Thief River Falls purse. The winner of the race was a horse named Painted Empire ridden by Tom Adkins and owned by the Ladykin Stable of Winnipeg, Manitoba. Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce president Stan Upham presented the owner of the horse with a cooler blanket. After the races the exhausted group returned to the hotel.

The bus left Winnipeg at about 12:30 p.m. on Sunday and arrived in Thief River Falls that afternoon.

Hats off to all who made the trip possible — especially First Federal, Norwest Bank, Thune-Upham, Fleet Farm Supply, Bergan Travel, the Sue Line, Roger Tunberg, Northwest Beverage, the Best Western, Pepsi Cola, Coca Cola, and the McKinnon Co.

CARNEGIE LIBRARY building on the northeast corner of the intersection at First Street and Main Avenue, is a subject of controversy in Thief River Falls. Built in 1914, it is presently being considered for inclusion in the national register of historic sites. Since maintenance of the building has become an expensive proposition for the city, some people would like to see it torn down. Others would like to see it preserved for public use and still others would like it to be sold to private developers. Suggestions were heard by members of the finance committee of the city council at a hearing last night, and a decision is expected in the near future.

CHARLES AND FRANCES Hunter, evangelists, will be conducting services at the Thief River Falls city auditorium at 7 p.m. August 29 and 30.

Registration for the sessions is being taken at the respective small business development centers — Moorhead (218) 236-2289 and St. Cloud (612) 255-3215 — or at Congressman Stangeland's office toll free 1-800-432-3770.

Sparby Will Serve In Booth At State Fair

Minnesota lawmakers will be at the Minnesota House of Representatives state fair exhibit to visit with fairgoers and help encourage citizen participation in government.

Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls will be at the exhibit on Thursday, August 25 from noon until 2 p.m. to talk over state and local issues, help visitors test their government I.Q. and register to vote, and discuss the law-making process and his role in it.

The House exhibit features state maps of legislative and congressional districts, information on 1983 new laws, how a bill becomes a law and how to keep in touch and an unofficial state fair opinion poll.

This year's poll asks how the respondent feels about the equal rights amendment, raising the drinking age, tax breaks for taking care of the elderly at home, minimum prices on farm products and minimum competency testing for graduating high school students.

In the kid's corner will be a slide show on the "Road to Minnesota Laws," and a coloring book of Joey's visit to the Capitol."

The House exhibit is in machinery hall of the state exhibits building on machinery hill throughout the fair — August 25 through Labor day. The theme is "Government is for Everyone," and the display offers something of interest to people of all ages.

Prairie Public TV Membership Drive Planned

Return of Monty Python's Flying Circus and encore presentations of six vintage John Wayne movies highlight Prairie Public Television's upcoming membership drive, August 19-28. During the ten days of special programming, Prairie Public Television hopes to raise $95,000.

Monty Python's Flying Circus, last braodcast of Prairie Public Television in August 1980, returns with four half-hour programs scheduled during the membership drive. Featured are the memorable "nudge, nudge, wink, wink;" "defending yourself against attackers armed with fresh fruit;" "Confuse-A Cat;" and "a question of belief" episodes.

Headlining the John Wayne film package is "The Quiet Man," broadcast by Prairie Public TV last March, caused embarrassment when numberous John Wayne fans pointed out that PPTV had received an edited print. Distributors have assured Prairie Public TB that the newly-serviced copy of the movie is an unedited version. Also included in the John Wayne Film Festival are the Duke's "Dark Command", "Angel and the Badman", "Sands of Iwo Jima," "Flying Tigers", and Rio Grande."

Prairie Public Television operates six stations in North Dakota — KFME (13) Fargo, KGFE (2) Grand Forks, KBME (3) Bismarck, KDSE (9) Dickeinson, DWSE (4) Williston and KSRE (6) Minot.

Set Conference On Hazardous Waste Sept. 13

Hazardous waste reduction — considered the "first priority" of state hazardous waste policies now being developed by the Minnesota waste management board — will be the topic of a special day-long citizens and industry conference Tuesday, September 13, at McGuire's Inn in Arden Hills.

The conference is open to the public and will be of special interest to industry representatives concerned about government hazardous waste policies, and interested in learning about specific industrial techniques for reducing the generation of hazardous wastes. Local officials and other citizens especially interested in hazardous waste reduction, and the issue of hazardous wastes in Minnesota, are also encouraged to register.

Registration fee for the conference is $25 and includes lunch. A limited number of conference scholarships are available through the Minnesota waste management board.

The conference is cosponsored by the Minnesota waste management board and the Bemidji state university center for environmental education and will include panels and presentations on government policies designed to encourage hazardous waste reduction, and on steps firms can take to reduce hazardous waste generation in their industries or plants.

It is being conducted in conjunction with the Minnesota waste management board's development of a comprehensive state hazardous waste management plan.

"In November the board will issue the draft hazardous waste management plan to the Minnesota legislature," board chairman Robert Dunn explained. "The plan will recommend the policies and measures needed to properly manage hazardous waste in Minnesota for the remainder of this century, and will be the guiding standard against which new hazardous waste facilities and other measures are judged in this state.

"State law specifically requires that the board place the 'highest priority' on alternatives to the land-disposal of hazardous wastes, including technologies and industrial modifications to reduce or eliminate hazardous waste generation," Dunn added. "On September 13 board members, other officials, industry representatives and citizens will discuss how government policies can encourage hazardous waste reduction, and how waste reduction can be accomplished in specific industries."

Panel discussions and presentations will discuss the findings and recommendations of the state's hazardous waste management plan, as well as "superfund" legislation enacted at state and federal levels. A variety of other speakers will offer the perspectives of Minnesota industry and other groups on legislation and policies to encourage the reduction of hazardous wastes.

The afternoon session of the conference will be highlighted by presentations from representatives of industries involved in metal plating, machining, paint application, solvent use, milling, printing circuit board manufacture and other operations, who will share their experiences and innovations in reducing hazardous waste generation.

"Industry representatives and other concerned Minnesotans may be especially interested in the technical presentations on how individual firms can reduce or eliminate hazardous wastes in their plants or shops," Dunn said.

To register or obtain more information on the conference contact the Minnesota Waste Management Board: 7323 58th Avenue North, Crystal, MN 55428; (612) 536-0816 (outside 1-800-652-9747).

Council Okays Liquor Sale In City Buildings

—Directed that a lease be executed between the school and the city, relating to use of the softball fields immediately east of the AVTI complex. Lease should renew automatically from year to year, unless terminated by ten days written notice;

—Directed the city attorney to draft a lease between the city and Bemidji Airlines, which would be general enough in nature so that it could be used for whoever is determined to be the replacement carrier by the civil aeronautics board after the appeal process has been completed. Bemidji is presently scheduled to replace Republic Airlines on August 21.

—Passed a resolution to support an application for designation as a competitive zone in the state of Minnesota. Under a program being developed by the Minnesota department of economic development, $22,000,000 is available for tax reductions over the life of competitive zones, with $4,000,000 available in 1984 and 1985. (A meeting to explain the effects of designation as a competitive zone will be held at 10 a.m. Friday in the basement of city auditorium.)

—Approved a sanitation committee recommendation to discharge employee John Green, on grounds of repeated tardiness. Green may appeal the decision at the next council meeting if he so desires.

—Returned a request for a variance by Sheldon Buck to the board of zoning appeals for further recommendation. City Engineer Dave Kildahl indicated that a survey had been done of the roadway at 1122 Madge Lane Drive, and the lot was not as deep as originally thought.

—Approved a resolution designating 4 p.m. September 6, as the date and time for bid opening on a project to improve the alley between Bridgeman's and Northwestern Hospital.

—Heard from Alderman Murphy that sanitation committee representatives would be meeting with the Roseau county board to discuss the possibility of Thief River Falls hauling its solid wastes to the Roseau landfill site.

—Discussed the application which had been submitted to the federal aviation authority for consideration as a location for an automated flight service station. FAA had returned a worksheet indicating that Thief River Falls would have been the most costly of the 28 cities applying.

Note was made that the Bemidji area chamber of commerce had objected strenuously to the way in which the FAA arrived at their decision to locate the station near the metropolitan area. No action was taken by the council.

Approved regular and special bills of $121,809.55 from R. and E. Nelsen Plumbing for waterworks improvements; $337.01 from miscellaneous vendors for library books; $1,142.76 from Black and Veatch Engineering for the construction phase of the water plant project, and $4,537.90 for resident engineering services on the project.

Senator Sets Hearings On Pollution

Senator Dave Durenberger will be in Moorhead on August 24 to hold hearings on water pollution and acid rain. He will chair the hearings as a member of the Senate environment and public works committee.

The hearing at 1 p.m. will be in the Moorhead city council chambers on the first floor of the city hall, 500 Center avenue. It will concern "non-point source" pollution — water pollution caused by ground runoff from sources such as farmland and ranchland, mining, timber-cutting and construction. Non-point source pollution is thought to cause at least half of the nation's water pollution.

A new program offered by Durenberger to fight this pollution is being considered by the environment and public works committee.

Senator Quentin Burdick (D-ND), also a member of the committee, will attend the hearing. Witnesses will include state pollution control and conservation officials, environmentalists and farmers.

Another hearing will be held in Roseville on August 25, at 9 a.m., in the board room of the Minnesota pollution control agency, 1935 West County Road B-2. It will deal with the problem of acid rain. Durenberger has introduced and supported various measures to control acid rain nationwide, and is developing a new bill to be introduced later this year.

Witnesses will include representatives of national science, technology and environmental groups, as well as state officials, industry representatives and local conservationists.

Nursery School Allowed To Use Part Of Knox

Use of a portion of Knox elementary school by the Thief River Falls nursery school was approved by the Thief River Falls board of education at its regular meeting recently. The board approved a rental agreement pending completion of necessary changes required by the state fire marshall.

Jerry Sandstrom, executive director of Jobs Incorporated, discussed the formation and function of the private industry council to which Supt. Robert Block has been appointed as a member. A resolution authorizing the district to serve as administrative entity and grand recipient of council funds was approved.

Annual agreement with Oakland Park nursing home to provide clinical learning experiences for AVTI practical nursing students was approved, as was the Laidlaw series of health books for use at Franklin middle school.

Discussion was held but action delayed on the possibility of charging students a fee for use of towels in the physical education program. Proposal from parent representatives of the girls swimming program to raise money necessary to operate the program was accepted by the board. The program was authorized for 1983-84 on the condition that a note from a lending agency is presented to the superintendent establishing a line of credit for the remainder of the funds.

Adopted by the board was a policy which prohibits bus drivers from drinking alcoholic beverages or using chemicals eight hours prior to driving a school bus.

Reports were given concerning negotiations with teachers, principals and directors, confidential employees and aides.

Among personnel matters, early retirement payments were granted to Robert Reeve and Donald Hermanson and recalling of Janet Anton from unrequested leave to fill an English position at Lincoln. Tom Lawrence was hired as electronics instructor at the Northwest vocational center, Janet Anton was hired as full-time ag coordinator secretary and Joyce Brandt and Marilyn Nelson were recalled from unrequested leave as CPLT coordinator-instructor and part-time instructor, respectively. Sharon Iverson's assignment as ESL and Title I instructor was approved.

Next regular meeting of the board is scheduled for Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the board room.

Job Training Plan To Go To Governor

Newly organized Northwest private industry council and the Northwest regional development commission have submitted the fiscal 1984 job training plan to Governor Rudy Perpich for approval.

This plan signals the beginning of the new job training partnership act, which has replaced CETA programs, and the start of local control over job training programs. The plan retains the same service delivery and administrative system which operated CTA programs, but reorganizes the types of services and the budget according to the new law and the smaller amount of funds.

The plan will be available for review at the NWRDC, 425 Woodland Avenue, Crookston, and comments or suggestions can be presented to the NWRDC board of directors at its August 23 meeting. Under specific conditions the governor may be petitioned for disapproval or modification of the plan. For additional information contact the NWRDC or the NWPIC at 281-1396.

Interim Rate Increase Given Inter-City Gas

Inter-City Gas Corporation has received authorization by the Minnesota public utilities commission (MPUC) to place an interim rate increase of $2.7 million or 5.4 per cent into effect on August 9, 1983. Interim rates will be collected by Inter-City prior to the commission's final decision on their request for an overall rate increase.

Inter-City filed the application for a general rate increase on June 10, requesting a revenue increase of approximately $3.25 million or 6.4 per cent. MPUC has until April 10, 1984, to examine and rule on the request. If the final rate level approved by MPUC is less than the interim rate level, the difference will be refunded to customers with interest.

These interim rates include only those types of costs which were approved in Inter-City's last general rate filing and will increase the average residential customer's annual gas bill by approximately $62.25 or 8.4 per cent. Inter-city recently announced a two per cent reduction in its gas costs since the rate filing in June due to a Canadian border price reduction which has resulted in a PGA credit. Net effect of these changes is a 6.4 per cent increase to residential customers.

Final rates proposed include costs which have not been specifically approved by the MPUC and which will be the subject of public hearings. These costs must be approved by the MPUC prior to being included in the gas rates.

Inter-City Gas provides natural gas to approximately 20,000 customers in 44 northern Minnesota communities. Inter-City has their main headquarters in Cloquet and operates district offices in Cloquet, Chisholm, International Falls, Thief River Falls and Wadena.

Financial Aid Available For NCC Students

Students who plan to attend Northland community college for the 1983-83 school year still have time to complete application and receive financial aid, according to Ken Wiebolt, provost.

Part-time students, older than the traditional college age, are encouraged to apply. Last year's 34 non-traditional students received more than $3,000 in part-time grants and local scholarships.

Total financial aid awarded to 401 Northland students last year was $786,752 compared to $760,521 for the previous year. Most of the financial aid is based on need.

Such awards are in three major categories: gift aid includes basic grants, state grants and local scholarships, employment aid or work-study provides jobs for students on the campus and off the campus at non-profit organizations, and loans are free of interest with no payments due until a student leaves college.

Last year Northland students were awarded $305,179 in the gift category. Employment programs amounted to $114,733 and loans totalled $346,840.

Anyone interested in applying for aid should contact the financial aid office at Northland at 681-2181.

Auto Causes Fire Sunday At Grygla Station

Fire at the Farmers Union oil company at Grygla early Sunday morning caused fear of an explosion which resulted in evacuation of people from a nearby trailer court. The fires started when a car driven by Wayne Saul, 21, Grygla, struck gas pumps at the station about 4:28 a.m.

The spilled gas from the pumps caught fire and destroyed the car. Area residents were evacuated because the company's bulk tanks are located near the service station area. Personnel were able to shut a valve which cut off the flow of gasoline so the fire could be extinguished. Saul was treated for cuts but there were no other injuries.

ATTENDANCE at a hearing on possible uses for the old Carnegie Library building was swelled by a large number of senior citizens who expressed concern over their desire to acquire property for a senior citizens' center. Although previous studies indicated that conversion of the library building for their purpose would be impractical, questions were raised about the possibility of erecting a new building on the lot east of the library. Other possibilities include selling the building to private developers or tearing it down. If the building is named to the national register of historic places, the federal government will not allow its demolition.

Clearwater Is Name For New College District

Northland community college is one of the three community colleges that have become part of the newly named Clearwater community college district recently approved by the state board for community colleges.

Dr. Alex Easton is district president as well as president of the three colleges. Brainerd and Fergus Falls community colleges have joined Northland community college to form the district. Each college will remain a completely independent entity in its respective community.

Administrative costs have been reduced through the combination of three administrative positions in each campus into two positions entitled provost and vice provost. Further, viable options resulting in significant dollar savings are being investigated by college and district administrators.

President Easton and college administrators reportedly are pleased with the newly approved district plan and are eager to proceed with this new cooperative venture in higher education.

State Jobs Program Has Local Contact

Unemployed persons in need of jobs and employers in need of financial help to meet payroll expenses associated with creating new jobs can be helped under a new state jobs program by contacting the Thief River Falls jobs service and job training offices.

Minnesota emergency employment development (MEED) act establishes a $70 million program expected to create 12,600 jobs, each lasting six months, in the private and public sectors.

For the unemployed, the program will make available an estimated 180 jobs in the Thief River Falls area, according to Michael Yanda, job service office supervisor. Participants must be unemployed, ineligible for either unemployment insurance benefits or workers' compensation, a Minnesota resident for at least one month and available to work for the duration of the job.

Yanda said that priority will be given to persons living in households with no income.

For employers, the program offers subsidies of up to $4 an hour for wages and up to $1 an hour for benefits. Employers will be encouraged to add their own funds to the subsidy so that the total wage equals the prevailing wage for the type of job offered.

The subsidies are for six months. Employers will have to repay a portion of the subsidy unless the employee is retained for one-and-a-half years.

To participate in MEED, job seekers should contact the Thief River Falls job service office at 681-1100, and employers should contact the Thief River Falls job training office at 681-7350. Both offices are located at 318 Knight av. N.

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced price meals.

Application forms are being sent to all homes with a letter to parents or guardians. To apply for free or reduced price meals, households should fill out the application and return it to the school. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application will be used for the purpose of determining eligibility and may be verified at any time during the school year by school or other program officials.

For the school officials to determine eligibility, the household must provide the following information listed on the application: names of all household members, social security numbers of all adult household members or a statement that the household member does not possess one, total household income, and the signature of an adult household member certifying that the information provided is correct. Households are required to report increase in household income of over $50 per month or $600 per year and decreases in household size.

Application may be submitted at any time during the year.

Under the provisions of the free and reduced price policy, James Hodny, Elementary Principal, will review applications and determine eligibility. If the parent or guardian is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, they may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If the parent wishes to make a formal appeal, they may make a request either orally or in writing to: David Bakke, Newfolden, 874-3352, for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

If a household member becomes unemployed or if the household size changes, the family should contact the school. Such changes may make the children of the household eligible for reduced price meals, or for additional benefits such as free meals if the family income falls, at or below the levels shown above.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a household has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals for them, the household should contact the school for more information.

The information provided by the household is confidential and will be used only for purposes of determining eligibility and verifying data.

In the operation of child feeding programs administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, sex, national origin, age, or handicap. If any member of a household believes they have been discriminated against, they should write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Crop Harvests Advanced During Past Dry Week

Dry weather conditions over most of the state have allowed full-scale harvest of small grains but continue to hamper row crop development, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Topsoil moisture in most of the lower two-thirds of the state is short to very short.

An average of six days were suitable for fieldwork during the week. Daytime temperatures throughout the state were near or exceeded 90 degrees for the sixth straight week. When combined with no rain in most areas, crop conditions will deteriorate rapidly if measurable moisture is not received very soon. Some precipitation was reported in the northern portion of the state while heavier rains were reported in a small area in the northeast.

Small grain harvest moved well ahead of the five-year average with many producing areas near completion. Reports were received indicating oat harvest at low test weights. Soybeans and corn are holding up rather well for the heat stress they have been through. Rain is needed for a favorable harvest.

Field corn is estimated at 61 per cent in the milk stage compared with 60 per cent last year and 67 per cent for the five-year average. An estimated 24 per cent of the corn is in the dough stage, 11 per cent ahead of last year and five per cent more than the average. Corn dented is at two per cent below last year's three per cent but equal with the average.

Soybean blooming at 97 per cent is the same as last year but one per cent below the average. An estimated 71 per cent of the soybeans are setting pods, compared with 68 per cent last year and 74 per cent for the average.

Spring wheat cut or swathed and beyond at 85 per cent made a big jump from last week because of dry weather and full-scale field activity. This compares with 59 per cent for last year and 64 per cent for the average. Combining of spring wheat at 60 per cent compares with 34 per cent for last year and 35 per cent for the average.

Oats cut or beyond is estimated at 98 per cent compared with 87 per cent last year and 85 per cent for the average. Oats combined at 83 per cent is 16 per cent ahead of last year and 22 per cent ahead of average.

Barley cut and beyond is estimated at 98 per cent compared with 79 per cent last year and 84 per cent for the five-year average. Barley combined at 87 per cent compares with 56 per cent last year and the average of 62 per cent.

Winter wheat harvest is 95 per cent complete, ahead of both last year and the average by 14 per cent and 17 per cent respectively. Rye is 98 per cent harvested versus 84 per cent last year and 77 per cent for the average.

Sunflowers are 84 per cent blooming, 21 per cent ahead of last year but equal to the five-year average. Flaxseed harvested at 10 per cent compares with four per cent last year and seven per cent for the average.

Sweet corn for processing is estimated at 17 per cent harvested versus 22 per cent last year and the same as average.

Field corn condition is rated at 12 per cent poor, 48 per cent fair, 36 per cent good and four per cent excellent. Sunflower condition is estimated at nine per cent poor, 49 per cent fair, 41 per cent good, and one per cent excellent.

Lincoln Sports Line-up

Lincoln high school athletic director Russ Smith said he fully expects the Prowlers to field 16 varsity athletic teams during the 1983-84 school year — the same number as last year.

Some programs were put in jeopardy when they were designated as community-funded events by school officials in the budget-cutting process. Unless money was raised outside school district funds, those programs were earmarked for elimination.

However, through various fund-raising activities, Smith said it now appears that all 16 programs will be represented by Thief River Falls this year. Some, though, still might find programs reduced in scope to fit within the funds that have been raised.

In 1982-83 the Prowlers fielded varsity boys teams in baseball, basketball, cross country, football, golf, hockey, swimming, tennis and track and field. Girls fielded teams in basketball, cross country, golf swimming, tennis, volleyball and track and field.

Fall sports already underway are football, cross country for boys and girls and tennis for girls. The girls' swimming program is in the process of finalizing its funding projects and is expected to take the pool shortly. John Schmitz returns as head football coach, with Whitey Olson back as tennis coach and Lynn Dyer again coaching the cross country teams. Jay Forney is scheduled to return as coach of the swimming team.

First Lincoln sports event of the season will be played Tuesday when the tennis team visits Roseau. The Prowlers will host Bemidji, East Grand Forks, Crookston and Moorhead in an early Bird invitational tournament Fri., Aug. 26.

Thief River Falls' football season will be kicked off with the annual Sports Boosters Club Pigskin Preview Sat., Aug. 27. The Prowlers open their 1983 football schedule Fri., Sept. 2, at Grand Forks Red River at 8 p.m.

Strandemo Wins Golf Title

Jim Strandemo of Mahnomen defeated Tim Tingelstad of Detroit Lakes by a 3 and 2 margin Sunday in the title match of the prestigious Pine to Palm golf tournament at the Detroit Country Club in Detroit Lakes.

"This is a dream come true," Strandemo told Ralph Anderson of the Detroit Lakes newspapers after his first Pine to Palm title. A year ago he lost to Mike Podolak of Fargo in the championship match and admitted he had been shaken by the size of the gallery and consequently turned in a so-so round of golf. Sunday he played a strong round of golf despite the gallery estimated at between 1,000 and 2,000 people.

The 28-year-old Strandemo, a former Northland community college golfer, recently completed his requirements for a bachelor's degree through Bemidji State University and is seeking a coaching-teaching position for the coming school year. He is looking into possible openings at Parkers Prairie and Osseo.

Miscellaneous

+ Thief River Falls' Scott Sabo was the winning pitcher Sunday with a four-hit effort in the Crookston Reds' 6-3 Region 12 amateur baseball tournament victory over the host Detroit Lakes Angels. Later that same day the Kennedy Chiefs, beaten earlier by Detroit Lakes, eked out a 3-2 extra-inning win over Crookston to give all three teams a 1-1 record in the double-elimination tournament. Sabo will be a senior this year at the University of Wisconsin where he is a member of the Badgers' hockey and baseball teams. On Saturday, Crookston will play the winner of a rematch between Detroit Lakes and Kennedy, a game scheduled to be played today (Wednesday). Both Crookston and tonight's winner are guaranteed state tournament berths. The Reds are 27-9 for the year. The Angels are 25-13.

+ Three Thief River Falls entries were runner-up finishers in the recent Detroit Lakes Vacationland tennis classic. In girls 14-under doubles, Thief River Falls' Karen Schmitz and Kristie Maidment reached the finals before losing 4-6, 7-6, 7-5 to Shawn Holl and Deb Christensen of Waubun; in boys 16-under singles, Thief River Falls' Al Erickson and Barry Furuseth reached the finals before losing 6-2, 7-6 to Del Nelson and Brian Stauss of East Grand Forks; and in men's doubles, Thief River Falls, Bill Holmes and Mitch Rustad reached the finals before losing 6-4, 6-4 to Bruce Brantley and Dean Rudrud of Grand Forks.

PART OF Times sports editor Mike Lundgren's vacation schedule last week was spent watching the 1983 American Legion state baseball tournament at New Ulm. He snapped this photograph during a first round match between District 4 champion St. Paul Arcade-Phalen (in the field) and District 2 champion New Ulm. Johnson Park was in immaculate condition for the 11-team, 21-team event that also found a portion of the games played at nearly Sleepy Eye. Ninth District champion Moorhead lost its two starts in the double-elimination event, falling to Edina 4-0 and then being eliminated by Waite Park 6-5 in eight innings. Edina repeated as state champion with a pair of one-run decisions over host New Ulm in the Monday night finals, 2-1 and 1-0. New Ulm had beaten Edina 4-1 the day before in a match-up of the tournament's final unbeaten teams.

Neibauer's Enters State Fast Pitch Tournament

Neibauer's will be Thief River Falls' lone entry at the 1983 Minnesota state fast pitch softball tournament, with the leaders in the city league standings seeded into Class A state tournament play which begins Saturday in South St. Paul.

Schmidts-Coke tried to earn a state tournament berth over the weekend in the combined District 6-7 tournament at Duluth but the Thief River Falls entry lost two of three starts in the 24-team, double-elimination tournament that qualified four teams for Class B state tournament play this weekend in Hutchinson.

In opening round play, Schmidts-Coke beat Anderson Construction of Detroit Lakes 1-0 despite collecting just one hit. In second round play, Schmidts-Coke grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first inning, but wound up losing a 3-2 decision to Hoyt Lakes.

Schmidts-Coke was eliminated Sunday morning with a 7-4 loss to CTV of Duluth.

Team manager Bill Dormady said, "Although we lost out in the district, overall I would term our season quite successful based on the job we did in tournaments in Grand Forks, Detroit Lakes, Fargo and Canada. I feel we have the personnel to be a Class A fast pitch team. I just feel we peaked a little early and didn't have anything left for Duluth."

Maynard Moen is Neibauer's team managers. Players making the state tournament trip will include Al Erickson, Bruce Johnson, Jeff Cwikla, Tony Johnson, Darrell Stromlund, Roger Cota, Ron Ostby, Mike Kvarnlov, Tom Neibauer, Larry Coltom, Nick Neibauer and Bennie Johnson off the team's regular season roster, with the addition to two alloted pick-up players: Mitch Dicken from Popplers in the Thief River Falls league and Marty Brown of Williams.

DNR hotline

1. May I dump "fill" (mineral soil) in wetlands on my property?

This question may be answered on a site specific basis by a specialist from the Division of Waters-Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. DNR has worked with the counties and the public in identifying wetlands and water bodies which should be protected. Dumping fill or altering these protected areas in any way is very restricted. These protected areas are indicated on a county map at the offices of the DNR Division of Waters and county auditors. Owners of unprotected wetlands may alter their property as they wish, but should be cautioned that if their actions impose a hardship on their neighbors, they may find themselves involved in a civil suit. Harvey Tjader, Northome District Forester.

2. Can I, as an individual landowner, get assistance from the Department of Natural Resources in managing the woods on my land, and what does it cost?

Forestry assistance is available to landowners with less than 1,000 acres of timberland. Each landowner may obtain up to four man days per year of assistance at no charge. Assistance available is: written management plans, planning for tree planting, setting up timber sales, tree stand improvement, and insect and disease diagnosis. For more information, contact your local Department of Natural Resources - Forestry Office. Hubert Larson, Blackduck Area Forester.

Earn State Slow Pitch Tournament Berths . . .

Two TRF Clubs Win Titles At District 7 Tournament

Two Thief River Falls teams won District 7 men's slow pitch softball tournament titles Sunday at Crookston to earn state tournament berths.

American Legion-Miller Beer-TG Sporting Goods of Thief River Falls won the Class B tournament title with win over L.T. Jacobs of Bemidji 6-4, Lake Sports of Detroit Lakes 18-9, Aho & Sons of Detroit Lakes 12-2, two-time defending champion LePiers of Fosston 18-6 and Hillcrest Mink Ranch of Detroit Lakes 9-0.

Top hitters during the tournament for the winners were Tim Engelstad with a .850 batting average and 10 runs scored; Don Grabowska with a .611 average and 12 RBI's; and Randy Dallman with five home runs and 11 RBI's.

Other members of the American Legion-Miller Beer-TG Sporting Goods squad, now headed for the Class B state tournament in Owatonna August 27-28, include Rocky Ammerman, Dennis Bendickson, Dan Brinkman, Rick Nelson, Tim Olson, Rick Reierson, Tom Ronchetti and Jeff Tunberg, with Tom Bendickson and Rex Rugland both sidelined by injuries.

Meanwhile, E.T.'s Bees of Thief River Falls played six games en route to winning the Class C tournament title, beating Oklee-Trail 14-5, Miller Beer of Crookston 8-3, Lake Park 14-6, Lake Bronson 7-3 and Erskine State Bank 3-0 before losing to Erskine State Bank 7-3 in the double-elimination format.

Third meeting between those two saw E.T.'s Bees beat Erskine State Bank 6-4 for the title and a berth in the Class C state tournament at Marshall August 27-28.

Pre-Registration Required . . .

Controlled Hunt Is Set At Thief Lake WMA

Pre-registration will again be required for the controlled goose hunts at the Thief Lake and Lac qui Parle wildlife management areas, wildlife officials of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources have announced.

Hunters may apply to reserve one of the stations within the controlled area. Applications must be made on a standard 3½ by 5½-inch postcard bearing the applicant's full name and address and listing first, second and third choice dates. Applicants should indicate whether they will accept any other date if none of their choices are available.

At Thief Lake the reservation system will be in effect through October 23, but after that date stations will be available on a first-come, first-choice basis. The system will be in effect at Lac qui Parle for the entire season, but the area will be closed when the quota of geese established for that area has been taken.

Applications should be sent to: Controlled Hunt, Thief Lake WMA, NE Star Route, Box 17, Middle River, MN 56737; or Controlled Hunt, Lac qui Parle WMA, Watson, MN 56295.

Only one postacrad per hunter may be submitted to each area and only successful applicants will be notified. Those submitting more than one application per area will have all of their applications rejected.

Applications will be accepted on the basis of the earliest postmark. Applications postmarked before September 1 or after September 25 will not be accepted.

Successful applicants will be mailed reservations for the day of their hunt.

Hunters with reservations will be assigned shooting stations by a drawing at 5 a.m. on the morning of the hunt. Successful applicants may be accompanied by one or two guests.

Hunters at Thief Lake will be limited to one trip to the station for the season, either as a guest or as a successful applicant. At Lac qui Parle, hunters will be permitted up to three trips to the stations either as guests or successful applicants.

Six-shell limit and steel shot regulation will be strictly enforced. Because of the unusually late spring, the fall flight of geese this year will include few young birds, said waterfowl specialists.

Thief River Falls men's fast pitch softball league completed its 1983 season Tuesday when already-crowned pennant winner Neibauer's split a doubleheader with United Satellite Systems (USS).

United Satellite Systems won the opener 7-3, with Neibauer's taking the nightcap 6-1.

Tim Bottem opened the USS scoring in the first game with a first inning home run. Two more hits and Tony Johnson's fifth home run of the year made it 4-0.

Neibauer's came right back in the bottom of the first on a three-run home run by Mike Kvarnlov, but USS maintained that 4-3 edge until the winners tacked on three more runs in the seventh. Johnson was the game's winning pitcher and also had three hits and five RBI's at the plate. Al Erickson was the losing pitcher.

In game two, Roger Cota led off the first inning for Neibauer's with a solo home run. The winners added three runs in the third and single runs in the fifth and seventh, including a Ron Ostby home run.

United Satellite Systems averted the shutout when Bottem hit the first pitch of the sixth inning out of the park for his third homer of the year.

Last week, Neibauer's took a Tuesday night doubleheader from Schmidts-Coke 4-0 and 5-4 to lock up the league title. In the opener, Neibauer's scored all four runs in the first inning. In the second game, Cota slammed a fourth inning grand slam to boost a slim 1-0 lead into a comfortable 5-0 cushion. Schmidts-Coke rallied with runs in the final three innings, including Mark Lundin's solo home run in the seventh, but fell short.

Only other game last week found Popplers doubling United Satellite Systems 4-2 on Thursday as Jeff Hendrickson pitched six innings of shutout ball.

Deer Hunting Rules, Licenses Now Available

Deer hunting regulations and licenses are now available from license agents, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) annouced. But officials said hunters applying for antlerless or special area permits should be aware of some of the fine points in the rules.

DNR is forecasting a record high deer harvest for this year and is making available 156,350 antlerless permits, compared to 89,925 last season.

Officials emphasized that persons who want to hunt antlerless deer should apply for a permit even if they received one last year. An application must be made each year in order to gain preference for future drawings.

They added that, with the increased number of permits available this season, even those with lowest preference levels will obtain permits in some hunting areas this year.

Application for antlerless and special area permits must be made on the form issued with a firearms deer license.

Hunters 18 or over must provide a drivers license or official Minnesota I.D. card number on their application or it will be rejected.

Hunters under the age of 18 who do not have a drivers license or Minnesota I.D. card may use their firearms safety training number to enter a special non-preference youth drawing. All youth choosing this option will have an equal chance of being drawn within their permit area, but no preference will be gained.

Dealine for applying for all firearms antlerless permits and special area permits is September 15.

DNR Payments Are Made For Counties

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is in the process of making payments to Minnesota counties totalling $4,284,509.72.

Payments are in lieu of taxes on DNR lands located within the boundaries of the respective counties during fiscal year 1982.

Payments to the individual counties are calculated based on the following formula:

1 — Three dollars multiplied times the number of acres of land acquired by the DNR through purchase, condemnation or gift;

2 — 75 cents multiplied times the number of acres of tax forfeited land owned by the state and administered by the county;

3 — 37.5 cents multiplied times the number of acres of other land owned by the state and administered by the DNR.

By law, counties are required to deposit 40 per cent of the payments they receive in the county general fund. An additional sum of 37.5 cents for each acre of county administered natural resource lands is deposited by the county in a "resource development fund" for use in resource development, forest management, game and fish habitat improvement and recreational development and maintenance of county administered natural resource land.

From the funds remaining, each organized township receives 30 cents per acre for acquired natural resource land and 7.5 cents per acre for other natural resource land.

Any remaining funds are deposited in the county general fund except that if the amount exceeds $35,000, the excess is used to provide property tax reduction.

In addition to in-lieu payments, counties also receive payments for income produced from DNR administered lands through sale of state timber, public hunting grounds, gravel and agricultural leases, mineral leases and other sources.

In the area, Pennington county receives $5,388.80 for in-lieu payments, complemented by the $4,012.20 received from other DNR payments. Marshall county received $60,654.68 for in-lieu payments to go along with the $25,810.32 received from other DNR payments. A total of $1,030,024.09 is scheduled for in-lieu payments to the 21 counties in the DNR Region 1 area served by regional offices in Bemidji.

Those counties include Becker, Beltrami, Clay, Clearwater, Douglas, Grant, Hubbard, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Otter Tail, Pennington, Polk, Pope, Red Lake, Roseau, Stevens, Traverse and Wilken counties.

Following is a list of counties and the in-lieu tax payments they received for fiscal year 1982:

Changes Announced In Wolf Management

Changes in U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) regulations governing management of the Eastern timber wolf in Minnesota were announced by Harvey K. Nelson, FWS regional director in the Twin Cities.

Rule changes were published in the August 10, 1983 Federal Register, and will become effective in 60 days. Changes carry out recommendations of the FWS Eastern Timber Wolf Recovery Team and will make it possible for the state of Minnesota to implement its wolf management plan.

"These changes, along with a nine-point management plan that Minnesota intends to implement, provide ample protection for the wolf at optimum population levels," Nelson said. "These changes are in full compliance with the Endangered Species Act as it applies to threatened species, and are in keeping with the administration's efforts to encourage better federal-state cooperation in wildlife conservation." Nelson noted further that the Endangered Species Act provides numerous mechanisms for federal-state cooperation in managing endangered and threatened species.

Wolf population in northern Minnesota is the last large surviving segment of the species south of Canada and has reached a stable population level of 1,200 to 1,400 animals. First listed as an "endangered" species in 1967, it was reclassified to the less dire status of "threatened" in 1978.

Highlights of the changes are as follows:

1. Limited trapping will be allowed in certain areas, as recommended by the Eastern Timber Wolf Recovery Team in 1978. Restrictions on trapping are imposed to maintain optimum population densities in the wolf range. The taking will be allowed primarily in areas of recurring wolf depredation on livestock, and will not be permitted in areas where it might affect wolf recolonization of Wisconsin.

2. Greater flexibility in depredation control is provided. Formerly, the FWS was restricted to trapping wolves within one-quarter mile of where a predation occurs. In the new regulations an extension of this limit to one-half mile is provided.

3. Wolf pups can be taken through a depredation control program. This provision is based on evidence that pups of depredating adults learn depredation from the adults and thereby perpetuate the depredation problem from one generation to the next.

While the Minnesota wolf population has remained relatively stable over the past decade, it has increased in some areas and declined in others. The discontinuance of timber cutting caused a decline in the wolf's main food source, the whitetail deer, in the northeastern part of the state, forcing the wolves to expand their range to the south and west into areas where farming and livestock production are primary land uses. Predation problems and public hostility toward the animal are generally attributed to this movement.

FWS proposed the timber wolf management changes a year ago, and published them in the July 14, 1982 Federal Register. In that publication, the FWS notified the public that comments would be accepted and considered if they were received no later than September 13, 1982.

Public hearings were held on the proposal in Minneapolis August 4, 1982, and in International Falls August 11, 1982.

Information and opinions received during the comment period and at the public hearings resulted in the FWS modifying the proposed regulations. One such modification prohibits the taking of wolves in those parts of Minnesota that might help the recolonization of wolves in Wisconsin.

Regulations also were modified to specifically prohibit trade in live wolves. However, sale in interstate and foreign commerce of wolf parts taken by the public is authorized, and is controlled by a tagging system.

MOTHER MALLARD was nearly matched in size by her brood, but still kept a careful look-out for the group as Times photographer Mike Lundgren got within camera range on Twin Lakes in the Park Rapids area during last week's vacation. Three broods of five-to-six ducks each were concentrated in the area, providing entertaining waterfowl watching. They will have to be on guard in October when the 1983 Minnesota waterfowl hunting season gets underway.

DNR NEWS

An estimated 1.1 million hours of fishing occurred in the first 48 days of the season on Mille Lacs Lake this spring, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

An estimated 288,000 angler trips produced nearly 340,000 walleyes weighing nearly 180 tons. Average catch was three hours per walleye.

When compared to the mid-May through June period in 1976, the 1983 creel count represents a doubling of fishing pressure, a catch of walleye up by nearly 1.5 times and a catch rate improved from one walleye in four hours of fishing to one walleye in three hours.

Average weight of the walleye in 1976 was 1.6 pounds compared to 1.1 pounds in 1983.

Perch also showed a significant increase with 122,000 harvested in 1983 compared to 28,000 in 1976.

Comparison of fishing pressure and harvest from mid-May through June on Mille Lacs Lake for 1976 and 1983 showed 145,397 angler trips in 1976 to 288,306 in 1983, a 98.3 per cent change; 631,806 angler hours in 1976 to 1,123,339 in 1983, a 77.8 per cent change; 143,852 walleyes harvested in 1976 to 339,124 in 1983, a 135.7 per cent change; 28,066 yellow perch harvested in 1976 to 121,873, a 334.2 per cent change; 1,265 northern pike harvested in 1976 to 1,965 in 1973, a 55.3 per cent change; and 1,119 rock bass harvested in 1976 to 3,195 in 1983, a 185.5 per cent change.

Dam Projects

A bill passed by the last legislature appropriating $626,800 for dam safety projects has been signed into law by Governor Perpich.

Larry Seymour, Director of the Department of Natural Resources division of waters, said the funds will be used to match those provided by counties and municipalities under the "grant-in-aid" program, including the dam located in Thief River Falls.

He said dams with safety problems have been identified by the division of waters on a priority basis and will be repaired under an on-going dam safety program.

Local units of government are reimbursed for up to 50 per cent of the engineering and construction costs required to repair defective dams.

Seymour said the new appropriation will provide sufficient funds for about 12 projects as follows:

+Major repairs at the hydropower dams owned by the cities of Lanesboro, Granite Falls and Rochester.

+Reconstruction engineering or small scale repairs planned for dams loacted at Holt Lake, Shady Lake at Oronoco, Pelican Rapids, Redwood Falls, Fairbault, Thief River Falls, Jackson, Stewartville and South St. Paul.

There are an estimated 25,441 dairy farms in Minnesota with a total of 902,000 dairy cattle.

Sparby Reviews Small Business Legislative Aid

Decisive legislative action this past session will result in job development and an economic recovery, and put Minnesota on the road to economic stability, according to State Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls.

"Small businesses, in particular, were the focus of our attention and efforts, because that is where the greatest number of new jobs and technological breakthroughs occur," Sparby said. "Small businesses will benefit from three new tax credits: one for the transfer of technology to small businesses, another to stimulate equity investments in small businesses, and a third for contributions to non-profit small business assistance offices."

As part of the focus on small businesses, $15 million was appropriated to establish the Minnesota enterprise fund. This will provide financial assistance to small businesses in the form of direct loans, loan guarantees and the purchase of loan packages.

"We also passed a bill that will significantly decrease the bad check losses incurred by small businesses," Sparby said. "Banks may not open checking accounts where people recently had an account closed because of writing bad checks."

Sparby says that all businesses were beneficiaries of the worker's compensation package. One part of the package creates a state worker's compensation insurance fund to provide businesses with a cheaper alternative to private insurance. The other part of the package establishes a two-tiered system of benefits which offers incentives to both the employer and the employee for an early return to work.

Legislators even adopted a plan to reduce property taxes, according to Sparby. Under the plan, a reduced assessment ratio on the first $50,000 of market value of commercial - industrial property will result in a 15 per cent tax reduction of that property value.

Another effort to improve Minnesota's economy is increased funding for tourism. "Resort owners and related businesses should experience a surge in patrons and customers as a result of an $8 million appropriation for local and national marketing of the Minnesota tourism industry," the state representative said.

Besides all the new jobs created by an improved business climate, Sparby says that the legislature also instituted an emergency jobs program. Under the program, eligible businesses can hire additional employees and receive a state wage subsidy of $4 per hour for each new job created, with an additional $1 per hour provided for benefits.

Perhaps the most exciting aspect of business legislation this session, according to Sparby, is the focus not only on the businesses themselves, but also on the markets they serve.

"In order for our economic base to expand, the markets we serve must be expanded," Sparby said. "Consequently, there was a six-fold increase in funding for a strengthened and reorganized state effort to promote Minnesota products nationally and internationally." In addition, $2.6 million in short-term credit will be provided to small and medium - size Minnesota businesses trying to break into the export market.

"We spent a significant amount of time and effort this past session devising initiatives to encourage economic growth in Minnesota," Sparby said. "I sincerely hope the result will be a much stronger job and business climate."

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Your town, because of its friendly atmosphere, has always been our favorite camping spot. However, during our last visit in July, your people outdid themselves.

Our youngest daughter was injured in the park beside the campground. Two very caring people drove her and our older daughter up to our trailer and explained what happened.

Because the injury she received was to her head, we thought it would be best to have her checked at the Falls clinic. The service we received there was, to say the least, unbelievable. Within two minutes after we walked in the door, she was upstairs and the doctor was checking her. We were astounded by the fast, courteous service we received from everyone — from the receptionists at the front door to the doctor and nurses who cared for her.

Although her injury was only a slight concussion and she recovered a few hours later, I am confident my wife and myself will never forget what the people of Thief River Falls did for us.

To all of your people — thank you for making Thief River Falls such a pleasant place to visit, and a very special thank you to the two people who drove her up to the campground and to the staff at the Falls clinic.

Yours truly,
John Raines

BRIDGET, a seven year old German shepherd owned by the Art Anderson family of 702 South Kendall Avenue in Thief River Falls, has her own way of cooling off on these hot summer days. Art says she has had a thing about the garden hose since she was about two years old. If he attempts to water the lawn or wash the car she leaps at the stream of water. If he lays the hose down, she begins pawing at the squeeze-type nozzle until she gets the desired result, a squirt in the face, which is sometimes a little more than she's ready for. Art says he has to be careful about remembering to turn the spigot off or Bridget will run the water bill way up. She obviously has found a way to get through the "dog days" of summer.

When one has finally acquired a home like this, in a neighborhood like this, one has no more problems. Right?

Wrong! Economic problems may be fewer. Personal and family problems often become more complex. Some mighty unhappy people live on Easy Street.

There's nothing wrong with wanting to get ahead. Initiative, ambition, perseverance are endowments God wants us to develop. But material goals must not crowd out spiritual aims. In trying to gain everything one can become nothing.

Your family is in need! In need of Faith. In need of Love. In need of Direction.

Needs that God supplies!

Test May Tell Odds Of Person Getting Cancer

by William Hoffman
U.M. News Service

Simple blood test that can show whether some individuals are at high risk for acquiring certain types of cancer is being developed by a University of Minnesota geneticist.

The test, which should be available for routine use within the next year, could indicate whether a person is more vulnerable to assault by cancer-causing chemicals, viruses, radiation or smoking.

Jorge J. Yunis, a professor of laboratory medicine and pathology in the medical school, recently found that certain "fragile sites" on chromosomes, the gene-bearing bodies in cell nuclei, may act as warning signs for critical rearrangements. When chromosomes break at those sites, a malignant tumor can develop.

Yunis's findings are being published in the July 15 issue of the journal Science as part of a major article on chromosomes and cancer.

"Workers heavily exposed to pesticides and insecticides and petroleum and paint products may have a higher risk of developing leukemia if they have certain fragile sites on their chromosomes," Yunis said in an interview.

Smokers with a certain fragile site (located on the short arm of chromosome 3) may have a higher risk of developing a common form of lung cancer, based on the first indications of large-scale study Yunis is currently undertaking.

"Now we must confirm the results by testing a large segment of the population," he said, adding that once the test is made more sensitive it may become especially valuable for genetic screening in industry, agriculture and other occupations in which some people are exposed to suspected carcinogens.

Fragile sites on chromosomes are largely curiosities until Yunis made the connection with chromosomal defects and cancer. So far 17 sites have been identified, but Yunis believes that more than 50 eventually will be found, many of them indicating a predisposition to a specific type of cancer.

Presence of a large number of carcinogens in the environment may ultimately prove to be a less important factor in cancer than the genetic vulnerability of some individuals to attack by cancer-causing agents, according to Yunis.

Some fragile sites are inherited, but others are acquired at conception.

In testing a number of cancer patients, Yunis compared the chromosomes of tumor cells to those or normal cells in the blood. Where characteristic defects — the rearrangement or loss of genetic material — appeared in the chromosomes of tumor cells, the chromosomes of normal blood cells displayed a fragile site in the corresponding place.

Yunis said he is working on a highly sensitive fragile site blood test that should prove easy to implement as a routine laboratory procedure.

A high resolution chromosome banding technique that he developed in 1976 has enabled Yunis to show that chromosomal defects play a central role in most cancers.

"It was previously thought that some cancers could be explained through specific chromosomal defects, but that they are not a common occurrence in the formation of tumors," Yunis said. "We have tried to call attention to the fact that chromosomal defects are quite common and play a central role in most cancers."

Yunis's discoveries fit well with a theory current among molecular biologists that the root of human cancer is individual genes that serve a normal function in the cell but go awry to produce cancer.

"Knowledge accumulated on chromosomal abnormalities and cancer gener (oncogenes) has just begun to merge," Yunis said.

"When we entered the field of cancer in 1980 we suspected that most cancers would have a chromosome defect and therefore would have to be explained at the gene level," he said.

Seventeen occogenes have already been mapped to specific chromosomes. Yunis believes there could be about 50 oncogenes in all responsible for the 200 types of common cancer. Some of them are capable of inducing more than one type of cancer because two to six related tumors can share the same basic chromosome-gene defect.

Cancer is a multistep process of which primary chromosomal rearrangements and activated oncogenes are a crucial first step, Yunis said.

A second step involves genes responsible for cell differentiation that determine what specific type of cancer develops, he said.

A third step involves the appearance of certain secondary chromosomal defects in a given tumor that are responsible for a more rapid progression of the disease and resistance to treatment, according to Yunis.

Twenty-five primary chromosomal defects, 17 oncogenes and 17 fragile sites have now been identified, Yunis said. "We may need 50 of each to tell the cancer story."

Controlling Those Everyday Aches And Pains

By Dr. R. William Soller

Bright lights, job deadlines, noise pollution, poor posture—what do these have in common? All are environmental stresses that can cause headpain.

These are some of the findings from a unique research project, undertaken by Glenbrook Laboratories, a division of Sterling Drug Inc., called Panadol® Acetaminophen Dialogues on Pain. The research is unique because, unlike hospital-based clinical studies or market surveys at shopping malls, it probes the inner thoughts and feelings of people from all walks of life. It asks how people experience everyday pain, what are the sources of these pains in today's evolving world, and how have people learned—through practical experience—to cope with these stresses.

From this collective experience three important steps for an effective lifestyle approach to the management of everyday pain have emerged. First, realize that you are not alone. Don't isolate yourself. Nearly everyone suffers from some form of daily aches and pains at one time or another. Second, take steps to adjust your environment. For example, change the lighting at your workplace; organize your work by priorities and ask for help if you need it; study your posture to improve your body mechanics.

At times, a third avenue to pain management—responsible self-medication with a non-prescription pain reliever—can be useful. Your choice may be an aspirin product, like Bayer,® or a non-aspirin pain reliever, like Panadol. In either case, responsible self-medication includes reading label directions to avoid misuse or abuse of the pain reliever of your choice.

Consider all three steps for the management of your everyday pain. And, remember one more point of the dialogue: set aside some quiet time for yourself each day.

Dr. R. William Soller, Ph.D., is vice president and director of scientific affairs of Glenbrook Laboratories, a division of Sterling Drug Inc.

Dorothy Miller

Mrs. Marvin Gustafson and Mrs. Morris Miller returned home on August 2 after visiting with relatives in Norway. They were house guests at Signe's cousin Solveig Dale in Amli. Also her uncle Aslak Dale and wife Barbra, uncle Eivend Dalkait and Anne, her aunt Ragnhild Skrede in Tyresdal, aunt Anne Nevestad in Arendal, a cousin Signe Reidum Haverstad and husband John in Oslo. They were also guests at Olaf and Anna Vassand (a cousin) Gro Dale an aunt in Hillestad also spent a day in Grimstad with relatives. They spent a day with another cousin Signe Mjaland at her "hytta" where a feast was served including rommegrat and ol. They visited with a cousin of Signe's in Gjovik, Dagfinn and Signe Fadum where they spent Saturday and Sunday sightseeing. Also saw the seven miles of Mjosa inlet from the sea.

On July 17 Signe and Regina attended services and communion in a little church in Tovdal, where their mothers were baptized and confirmed.

After the services a potluck dinner was served to relatives at an aunt's place near by. Signe's aunt is "kloku" at this church. There were 35 relatives attending. A cousin and husband Signe and Norman Lyngmyer of Porsgrun and her mother Amanda Dale also arrived there and all motored to the Dale homestead where the fifth general is living. He is also in the fifth generation who is carrying the name of Sven Dale. He has several thousand chickens, and a couple hundred sheep, and also does a little farming.

July 24 Regina and Signe attended services in the Amli church. This church was also soon 200 years old. There were three baptisms that day. There they have services every three weeks as the pastor has three churches to conduct services in.

There was quite an excitement in the little town of Amli one day, when an eight year old girl was almost kidnapped by two men in an Opel red car, near Solveig Dale's place. But a girl, Mona Austena, who rooms there ran and saved her. The men were later seen in Hamar, but got away. All Norway was on the look-out for them.

Norway has almost better roads than here now. Graveled roads in driveways only and highways are all asphalt and kept up.

On Friday Gunhild Sutherland entertained at a supper at the Amli restaurant for Regina and Signe and twelve other friends. Mrs. Sutherland usually hosts a dinner once a month. She spent 43 years in New York and then returned to her hometown, Amli in Norway.

The weather in Norway was wonderful, not too hot, the humidity was low, so we enjoyed the outdoors. And we want to say it was a month of enjoyment, in the beautiful countryside of Norway.

Mayo Name Is Commonly World Known

The Minnesota name probably best known throughout the world is Mayo. The accomplishments of this family in the field of medicine have brought fame both to its members and to the state.

The name has come to mean the Mayo clinic at Rochester, a medical complex that each year serves hundreds of thousands of patients from throughout the world.

The first member of the family was Dr. William Mayo, an Englishman by birth, who came to the Minnesota territory in 1854 at the age of 31. In 1859 he and his wife moved into a house in LeSueur where their first son, William James, was born in 1861.

When the Sioux Uprising exploded the following year, Dr. Mayo joined neighbors in the defense of New Ulm while 11 refugee families joined his wife in their home for safety during the seige.

In 1864, after a visit to the thriving town of Rochester, he moved his family there to found the family medical practice that his sons developed into the famed Mayo clinic. His second son, Charles Horace, was born there in 1865.

William and Charles each attended medical school and joined their father's practice. Like their father, the Mayo brothers insisted on being in the vanguard of progress in the medical fields, especially surgery.

In 1883 a disastrous tornado struck Rochester, killing and injuring hundreds. The Mayos set about caring for the injured, assisted by the Catholic Sisters of St. Francis. The Sisters were so impressed with the skill of the Mayos that they offered to build a hospital in Rochester.

When St. Mary's hospital was completed in 1899, the Mayos attended the patients, becoming specialists in surgery and in the treatment of almost every known illness. Thousands flocked to the city for surgery and diagnosis, and other doctors journeyed there to witness the Mayos at work.

As their fame spread and the patient load increased, the Mayos, increased their clinic's staff. In 1938 the one millionth patient was treated. By that time the Mayo clinic was united with the graduate school of the University of Minnesota, forming the Mayo foundation for medical education and research.

Today, visitors can visit the Mayo home at LeSueur or tour the Rochester clinic, the medical museum, and Mayowood, the 38-room mansion built in 1911 by Dr. Charles Mayo. For more information on how to plan a trip to these sites and travel throughout the state, contact the Minnesota Travel Information Center, 240 Bremer Building, 419 N. Robert St., St. Paul, MN 55101. The telephone number outside the metro area (toll-free) is 1-800-652-9747. The information center is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

CAR CARE CORNER

ACID RAIN—WILL IT DAMAGE YOUR CAR?

Car owners are warned by automotive experts that acid rain can cause damage to the finish of automobiles.

Bruce Milen, president of the International Carwash Association/National Carwash Council, presented evidence at association headquarters in Hillside, Illinois, that damage to the paint on cars by acid rain points to a growing national problem.

With acid rain being blown by winds everywhere, it is no longer just a regional problem, he said. Acid rain is caused by rain, snow or dry particles that contain solutions of sulfuric or nitric acid.

Milen pointed to an Associated Press news wire story out of Albany, New York, quoting the New York Environmental Conservation Commissioner, Robert Flacke, as stating that "acid rain is now blamed for ruining new car finishes" and that the damage is "significant."

As additional evidence, Milen said "for some time automobile dealers have informed us that there are spots on new cars in their lots and some of the manufacturers have expressed concern over the problem and have informed the association of this concern."

He said the association continues to receive reports of "unexplained spotting" on auto finishes from various parts of the nation that are traced to acid rain fallout.

The first sign that your car's finish has been damaged by acid rain may be unexpected spotting.

Since car wash operators throughout the nation report that they see vehicle spotting from acid rain, Milen urged car owners to have their cars washed frequently to avoid the problem.

"One of the concerns we have is that most people don't notice the damage from acid rain until there is discoloring on the hood and roof," he said. "This is the first stage of damage. Another sign is the appearance of what looks like water spots that won't come out with wiping or buffing."

At this latter stage, he said, the affected area must be sanded down and repainted. "Don't wait that long," he said. "Be sure your car is kept clean by washing it at least once a week."

Costly Delay

Delay of the Minnesota legislature in taking substantial action regarding unemployment compensation is costing the state's businesses millions of dollars in interest costs alone. A 10 per cent surtax has been added to 1982 unemployment insurance taxes to help the state meet obligations to the federal government.

When the Minnesota unemployment fund went broke in 1980, the state began borrowing from the federal unemployment fund. On April 1, 1982, the federal government understandably began charging interest on those loans. In April of this year the federal government notified the states that the interest accrued in the last fiscal year would be due by September 30. At that time Minnesota will owe $18 million in interest — not to mention principal.

Spearheaded by the DFL leadership, the legislature opted to pay the interest through the 10 per cent surtax on local business unemployment insurance taxes, based on 1982 payroll figures.

In addition, the federal government imposed its own .3 per cent surtax penalty on business to recapture the principal, beinning with the 1980 interest-free loans. Minnesota currently owes $370 million to the federal fund, and as of July 1 the interest on the unemployment fund debt in Minnesota was accumulating at a rate of $54,424 per day! Interest was therefore accumulating at a rate of $1.6 million per month.

House Minority Leader David M. Jennings correctly points out that neither of these surtax penalties (state and federal) address the real problem facing the Minnesota unemployment insurance fund. "We must overhaul the system," he said. "We must streamline the benefit qualifications back to their original intent."

Rep. Jennings notes that the original theory behind the unemployment insurance system was to pay benefits to workers forced out of work and looking for another job. The benefits were never intended to go to just anyone who had collected a few dollars in wages at one time or another, but to the permanent workers in our work force.

Corrective amendments offered by the Independent-Republicans in the 1983 legislature — intended to tighten the system and target the benefits to the right people — were rejected by the DFL majority. Included were amendments to restrict seasonal workers from collecting during periods they would normally not work anyway, and those which would set higher qualifying standards of eligibility for people fired for misconduct or who voluntarily quit their jobs. Dozens of amendments in committee and on the House floor were rejected by the DFL.

The problem is not going away. The delay in taking significant action is costing the state's already burdened businesses $54,424 per day in interest. If Minnesota continues to take no action to pay off the debt, the federal surtax penalty will be increased by .3 per cent each year until the debt is erased, probably in five or six years. Next August the fiscal year 1984 interest will be due, and local businesses will pay another 10 per cent surtax charge.

"The question is whether we will choose the wiser route of facing our debt — paying it and reforming our unemployment system — or continue using our local businesses as our whipping boy because we lack the courage to make the tough decisions," Rep. Jennings said.

The need for meaningful reform — not just token movement so politicians can claim things are better than they were — is urgent. Immediate attention is necessary because delays are certainly costly.

Move Over, Mr. Watt

Following editorial is from the Ely Echo:

There has been no end to the furor over James Watt, Secretary of the Interior, and his real or imagined threats to the environment, wilderness areas, etc., etc. Indeed, there are various "environmental" organizations whose whole thrust is currently aimed at getting Mr. Watt removed from office and to this effort they have enlisted the enthusiastic help of many stalwart members of the Congress, particularly those on the Democratic side of the aisle who are fervently hoping that hatred for Watt by citizens interested in the nation's out-of-doors can somehow be translated into votes for a Democratic president in 1984, to say nothing of their own re-elections.

Thus it is interesting to see these same members of the Congress voting en masse for destruction of much of the nation's outdoors and with little more than an occasional "tut-tut" and "ahem" from their environmental friends. We refer, of course, to the annual stampede to pass various ditch, drain and dam legislation which is aimed at pumping federal money into the home districts of the Congressmen. It is usually referred to as a "pork barrel." Possibly a better term is "pork grease" since the intent is to spread around taxpayer's dollars in the hope that some of it will eventually slide back into the campaign coffers of the elected public servants.

If it was just the money, there would be little to complain about since most of the Congress seems oriented toward unlimited spending anyway, but in the instance of the public works projects, some horrendous effects have been perpetrated on the nation's outdoors. Entire rivers have been turned into mud-bottom ditches; millions of acres of native marshland have been drained at public expense to create cropland of political cronies, . . and also eliminate the natural flood reservoirs of the nation with the result that cities downstream get bigger and more devastating floods. Whole farms and forests have been buried under water backed up behind dams built for the express purpose of putting bucks in the pockets of contractors and providing a few months of work for union journeymen in somebody's home district.

At various times we have commented on such stupid and environmentally unsound projects as the Garrison dam project in Tennessee's Tombigbee River and other costly bits of Congressional insanity. But in the waning days of the current session, millions of dollars have been voted for these and other programs by Mr. Watts critics in the House and Senate. . . and, strangely enough, there has not been an accompanying clamor on the part of the nation's environmental watchdogs for the removal of those Congressmen who approved the expenditures.

Could it be because the sponsors of nearly all of this legislation happen to be Democrats, those righteous gentlemen of environmental integrity?

On the other hand, one piece of genuine environmental legislation with real long-term benefits got scarcely a nod from the saviors of the outdoors: Senator Dave Durenberger's bill to require farmers to employ minimum soil conservation practicies on their lands to keep the farms and fertilizers from washing off into the rivers. Durenberger's courage in attacking what is probably the nation's worst environmental abuse, drew little applause from anywhere.

Durenberger, of course, is not a Democrat.

Analyzing The Presidency

In a recent speech to the Minnesota Press club, former U.S. Senator Eugene McCarthy provided the following analysis of the U.S. Presidency:

Roosevelt proved the president could almost live forever.

Truman proved anyone could be elected president.

Eisenhower proved we didn't need a president.

Kennedy and Johnson proved we were better off without a president.

Nixon killed the presidency.

Ford embalmed the presidency.

Carter buried the presidency.

Reagan is proving there is life after death.

Be A Winner

This comparison between winners and losers has been making the rounds of area papers lately. The original writer is unknown:

The winner is always part of the answer. The loser is always a part of the problem.

The winner always has a program. The loser always has an excuse.

The winner says: "Let me do it for you." The loser sees a problem in every answer.

The winner sees a green near every sand trap. The lower sees two or three sand traps near every green.

The winner says: "It may be difficult, but not impossible." The loser says: "It may be possible, but it is too difficult."

Be a winner.

Interesting Opinions:

"The number one threat at work destroying economic progress in our world is the rapidly increasing number of people. We are producing more people than our economies can absorb. . . . the well-off countries — those with per capita incomes above $7,500 — now contain about 13 per cent of the world's population. By 2020 they will contain only about nine per cent."

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District I

The $1.9 billion Education Aids bill passed by the 1983 Minnesota Legislature should provide enough continued funding for educational programs statewide and in our own area, but may also place a greater burden on local school districts that wish to offer any new programs over the next two years.

In the past few years, the Legislature was forced to reduce education aids to school districts due to decreasing state revenues and increasing costs of operation. As a member of the Senate Education Committee, I was involved in helping to design a new legislative commitment to education, including a 12.3 per cent increase in the foundation aid, "per pupil" formula allowance, which rises from $1,313 to $1,475, plus a four per cent hike in other categorical aids as well.

I voted for this major improvement in the school formula because it will maintain the state's commitment to helping our schools meet the costs of basic instruction, pupil transportation, special education, community and adult education and area vocational-technical institutes (AVTI's). A new "five-tier" formula approved in the bill replaces some outdated formulas — the grandfather levy, the replacement levy and the low-fund balance, and discretionary levies, in an attempt to better balance aids to our schools.

The effect of these changes should be to provide the needed revenues especially to our small rural school districts. In our own area, 16 out of the 23 school districts in our Senate district will receive an increase in aids between the 1982-83 and the 1983-84 school years. (Following are these comparison figures and their differences by school district and county:)

Other significant reforms included in this bill are improvements in the areas of special education, "gifted and talented" and pre-school screening programs in the state, with community education funded as well.

In order to address the concern over financing education, the legislation also calls for a future assessment and study of school financing, school reorganization and cost-sharing, and includes an attractive feature for small school districts that might want to consider inter-district cooperation.

The new plan for financing is based on the idea that the more a school district wishes to spend, the greater must be the local share for funding these expenses. It also calls for suggested improvements in our educational system which have been called for, such as minimum curriculum requirements, school year length and cost effectiveness.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

The French gave us a beautiful symbol of freedom called the "Statue of Liberty." It was given to us in 1884 and will be 100 years old next year.

The 99 years have taken a toll on the statue, which will take $30,000 to repair and with our help she will be preserved. Without it she will fall into the ocean.

To help this precious gift, send your contributions to: Statue of Liberty, c-o Ellis Island Foundation, P.O. Box 1986, New York, New York, 10018.

Let's do something to preserve our symbol of freedom.

Sincerely,
Baird McDowell

Getting Rich Quick may be the Only Way You'll Get Rich!

"Based on supply/demand considerations . . . if present trends continue, producer supplies and consumer demands must be brought together by very high silver prices — well over $100 per ounce by 1985-86 . . . There can remain little doubt that sometime in 1982 we will see the beginning of a major new multi-year rise in the price of Silver. REPORT

From The

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

Until this spring, Minnesota's worker's compensation system was a rallying point for critics who charged that the state had a poor business climate.

Unfortunately, because these critics were right about worker's comp, they gained credibility when the discussion moved from worker's comp to the general business claimte.

Worker's compensation was a problem area. The State of Wisconsin, for instance, had essentially the same level of benefits as Minnesota but substantially lower premiums. However, last May, the Legislature corrected the problem.

Through the courageous efforts of Governor Perpich and a unique coalition of outstate DFL'ers and Republicans, a worker's comp bill passed that will not only please business, but may also become a model throughout the nation. I worked together with the original 15 DFL'ers, known as woodticks, because of the very serious nature of the worker's comp problem. The creation of this coalition should dispel the notion of far too many people that state government does not respond to business.

The problem of the worker's compensation system was not with the concept of compensating injured workers. Indeed, as testimony indicated early in the session, the concept of worker's compensation is very old, beginning with the Babylonian Code of Hammurabi which stated that whoever caused an injury receive an equal injury. This was echoed by Moses in "an eye for an eye; a tooth for a tooth."

Later, even pirates on the high seas set down a code to compensate their fellows for injuries incurred during the course of duty. In the mid-1800's, German Chancellor Bismarck enacted a series of reforms dealing with injured workers, and, in 1897, English reform took place.

Where we ran into problems in Minnesota was in the actual delivery of benefits. Lawyers and litigation, administrative backlogs by the state, some injured workers shopping for a doctor who would diagnose a higher-paying injury, and liberal interpretation of the worker's comp law all contributed to rising insurance costs.

The new worker's compensation law cleans all this up. A key element of the law is the two-tiered benefit rating system which offers incentives to both employer and employee to promote an early return to work. The rating system also ties a specific benefit to a specific injury thus eliminating doctor-shopping. Finally, the rating system eliminates the need for litigation since the specific injuries and benefits are clearly spelled out.

The new law also makes some other changes. It provides a new administrative procedure based on the one used in Wisconsin, itself a national model. The Department of Labor and Industry, by the way, was one of the few state departments to receive any new employees. The new administrative people in the department will counsel both injured workers and businesses regarding worker's compensation.

As part of the overall worker's comp reform, legislators totally deregulated the insurance industry, allowing the free enterprise system to work to the greatest possible extent. As a result, we may see specialty insurance companies formed to offer new and unique kinds of coverage.

Despite the positive changes made in worker's compensation, the tangle of problems in the old system will need to be unscrambled before any cost reductions are realized. This could take awhile. Still, I have no doubt that the savings will be substantial.

I would like to mention that the worker's compensation bill was supported by most major business and insurance groups, including the Minnesota Association of Commerce and Industry, the Minnesota Insurance Federation, and the Minnesota Business Partnership.

I am confident that this new law is the first step of a new era in which business, labor and government put aside their adversarial role and work together to solve Minnesota's problems.

Meteor Shower Framed In August Sky

Flashy meteor shower against the faint background of the Milky Way, a bright planet herding 14 moons, and an invisible black hole swallowing star filaments are the main features of the August sky.

Year's most impressive meteor shower — the Perseids — peaks at about midnight on August 12, as billions of pebbles and dust particles fall into our upper atmosphere. Called "shooting stars," they are really cosmic debris that enters Earth's envelope of obstructing air at about 35,000 mph, then evaporates because of friction by about 60 miles above Earth.

Every year at this time in our orbit around the sun, we encounter this meteor shower, a trash trail of debris left over from the comet Swift-Tuttle's passage through the solar system. Views of the shower should be especially clear this year because the moon will be nearly new, offering very little interfering light, according to University of Minnesota astronomer Tom Jones. Yellowish and reddish meteors will be visible from about 10 p.m. until 4 a.m. on August 11, 12 and 13, peaking at around 1 a.m. August 12 with about 60 meteors per hour.

Well beyond the Perseids lies the Milky Way, a vast swatch of stars and dust spread across the summer sky from the northern to the southern horizon. The star-thick center of this, our galaxy, is visible just above the southern horizon now, as we face it in our orbit around the sun. Although astronomers now know that there are billions of galaxies in the universe, people used to think that the Milky Way was the only such phenomenon; in fact, the word galaxy comes from the Greek word for milk.

In our solar system the brightest single object now visible is the planet Jupiter, visible in the southern sky on August evenings. Larger than a thousand Earths, this planet operates a mini solar system of at least 14 moons but is actually a failed star, never large enough to have burst into thermonuclear fire as our sun did some 4.6 billion years ago. It remains a globe of liquid and gaseous hydrogen, shadowed by faint rings.

Much farther along in its evolution — indeed at the end of its life — is Cygnus X-1, the first black hole ever discovered. Hidden within the cross-shaped constellation Cygnus, which is almost directly overhead now, the hole lies just under the point where the two lines of the cross would meet. The black hole is swallowing vast expanses of gas from the companion star it circles. This companion star is visible through a small telescope. Though black holes are invisible — light cannot escape their intense gravity — they can be identified by the X-rays that flare around them as star matter falls inward, never to re-emerge. Black holes are formed by the collapse and condensation of massive stars.

Independent School District No. 564, Thief River Falls, Minnesota, today announced its policy for free and reduced price meals for children unable to pay the full price of meals served under the National School Lunch Program. Each school and the main office of the Thief River Falls Public Schools has a copy of the policy, which may be reveiwed by any interested party.

The following household size and income criteria will be used for determining eligibility:

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced price meals.

Application forms are being sent to all homes with a letter to parents or guardians. To apply for free or reduced price meals, households should fill out the application and return it to the school. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application will be used for the purpose of determining eligibility and may be verified at any time during the school year by school or other program officials.

For the school officials to determine eligibility, the household must provide the following information listed on the application: names of all household members, social security numbers of all adult household members or a statement that the household member does not possess one, total household income, and the signature of an adult household member certifying that the information provided is correct. Households are required to report increase in household income of over $50 per month or $600 per year and decreases in household size.

Application may be submitted at any time during the year.

Under the provisions of the free and reduced price policy, Kathryn Kinsman will review applications and determine eligibility. If the parent or guardian is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, they may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If the parent wishes to make a formal appeal, they may make a request either orally or in writing to:

Dr. Leo Ruberto
Box 160
Thief River Falls, MN 56701
681-2700, Ext. 386

for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

If a household member becomes unemployed or if the household size changes, the family should contact the school. Such changes may make the children of the household eligible for reduced price meals, or for additional benefits such as free meals if the family income falls, at or below the levels shown above.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a household has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals for them, the household should contact the school for more information.

The information provided by the household is confidential and will be used only for purposes of determining eligibility and verifying data.

In the operation of child feeding programs administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, sex, national origin, age, or handicap. If any member of a household believes they have been discriminated against, they should write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

INFECTED WITH BOTULISM as a result of eating food containing the fatal toxin, this bluewing teal has a good chance for survival due to treatment at the Agassiz national wildlife refuge. Birds weakened by the poison but captured in its early stages can sometimes be saved by force feeding of fresh water. Agassiz personnel note that such capture and treatment is incidental to the main effort of picking up dead and dying birds to reduce spread of the toxin, but is done whenever possible. Cooler weather and some rainfall have reduced the threat of widespread losses at the refuge and the adjoining state-owned Elm Lake wildlife management area.

Black River Flood Control Work Awarded

Agassiz Construction company of Crookston has been awarded the general contract for the Black River flood control project by the board of directors of the Red Lake watershed district.

There were nine bidders on the project with Agassiz bidding $665,010 and the high bid being $960,424.84. Subcontractor for earth moving on the project will be Roy and Charles Gowan of Oslo and work has been authorized to start immediately. Project calls for completion in 110 working days.

Congressman To Visit Here This Thursday

Congressman Arlan Stangeland will hold meetings with constituents in seven counties during the week of August 22-26. The Thief River Falls office hours will be conducted this Thursday.

Congressional "office hour sessions" in Fergus Falls, Moorhead, Crookston, Thief River Falls, Greenbush, Karlstad and Warren will allow residents to meet with Congressman Stangeland on a face-to-face basis to discuss national issues or get a hand with federal red tape.

"If people need assistance in unsnarling a bureaucratic problem, I encourage them to bring all the related papers and documents to the meeting," Congressman Stangeland said.

Office hours in Thief River Falls will be from 9 to 11:30 a.m. this Thursday in the Pennington county courthouse. The Congressman will attend a noon chamber of commerce luncheon at the Best Western and tour the newly-opened Arctco plant at 1:30 p.m. Reservations for the luncheon at $3.85 must be made by calling 681-3720 by Wednesday.

Office hours in Greenbush will be from 3:30 to 5 p.m. on Thursday in the community center. The Congressman will also speak at the court of honor for Eagle Scout Jamie Foster at the Greenlin supper club.

Office hours in Karlstad will be from 9 to 11 a.m. on Friday in the city hall and in Warren will be from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. in the Marshall county courthouse.

City Council Meets Tuesday On Employees

Thief River Falls city council meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in council chambers at city auditorium. Among topics on the agenda will be utilities committee recommendations to replace employees who were granted early retirement benefits as a cost-cutting move.

Others topics will include an application to the state for enterprise zone designation, permit requests for alcoholic beverages in Oakland Park, requests for zoning varieances, status of the Carnegie Library building, participation in the Minnesota emergency employment development act, vacating of cab stalls in the 300 block of North Horace Avenue, appointment of a new fire chief, and cost of the senior citizen cab subsidy.

Botulism Threat Is Curbed By Rainfall

Cooler weather and rainfall in the past several days should do much to curb an outbreak of botulism which caused loss of approximately 200 ducks and shorebirds on Agassiz national wildlife refuge and an additional 200 on the adjacent Elm Lake wildlife management area.

First outbreak was noted on the state-owned Elm Lake area where area wildlife manager Jon Cole picked up about 65 birds, mostly ducks, on August 10. A check the following week turned up about the same number of dead birds, mostly shorebirds. More recent checks indicate that the losses seem to have diminished, Cole said, although he will continue to monitor the situation and dispose of carcasses which are found.

Samples sent to the national wildlife health laboratory in Madison, WI, confirmed the cause of death to be botulism, Cole said. Samples from birds recovered at Agassiz national wildlife refuge are also being sent to the same lab for analysis.

Jim Mattson, assistant manager at Agassiz, said the losses there seemed to be confined to one area of Tamarack pool. He said the pool level had been maintained about six inches below normal water levels earlier this year and the combination of extremely high temperatures and lack of rainfall had combined to cause high evaporation. This exposed mud flats which would normally be covered by water and created conditions in which the bacteria carrying the botulism toxin could flourish.

Mattson explained that the invertebrates in the area ingest the toxin and in turn are fed on by the waterfowl. The bacteria carrying the toxin are able to live in anaerobic

Seven Inches Of Rain Falls Here

Rainfall measured up to seven inches fell late Saturday evening and early Sunday morning in the Thief River Falls area, causing flooding in a number of basements from seepage and sewer back-up. Nearly all homes with basements experienced some moisture problems from the deluge.

Light rainfall began about 7:30 p.m. with the heaviest downpour from 10:30 p.m. to midnight at Thief River Falls. Pennington county extension director Terry Courneya said the heaviest rainfall appeared to be in a five-mile radius of Thief River Falls, with most problems from the excess moisture occurring in Rocksbury, North, Smiley, Silverton, Cloverleaf and Sanders townships.

With about 85 to 90 per cent of the small grain harvested in the area, damage to crops standing or in the swath is confined to isolated fields, but damage in those fields may be extensive. From a county standpoint, more serious

Hazardous Waste Report Draft Now At NW Library

CUTTING THE RIBBON, Mayor Bob Carlson opened Bemidji Airlines first flight to Minneapolis as the officially designated carrier for Thief River Falls regional airport early Sunday morning. Utilizing a twin-engined Beech Queenair, nine passenger plane, Bemidji Airlines will be providing five round-trip flights between Thief River Falls and Minneapolis, Monday through Friday; and three round-trip flights on Saturday and Sunday. That first flight left on schedule at 6:45 a.m., and arrived in Minneapolis at 8:15. The four passengers on board reported that the flight was quite comfortable. Also participating in the ribbon cutting ceremony were Larry Diffley, president of Bemidji Airlines, and Barbara Berggren, general manager.

Minnesota waste management board's draft hazardous waste management report — representing the most extensive and thorough picture to date of the nature and extent of the hazardous waste problem in Minnesota, and of the measures believed needed to deal with that problem in the future — is now available for review in libraries in communities throughout Minnesota, including the Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls.

The 390-page report is expected to be further revised and updated prior to its final issuance in November, after special public meetings on the report — and on the state policies to be based on the report — that will be conducted in September and October.

The Minnesota waste management board is required by state law to issue the report, which estimates the types and volumes of hazardous wastes in Minnesota and the facilities and technologies that will be needed to manage these wastes through the year 2000. The report must evaluate all "feasible and prudent" alternatives to disposal, including hazardous waste reduction, treatment, processing, recycling and other measures.

In November the board will issue the state's hazardous waste management plan, which will recommend the measures and facilities needed to manage hazardous wastes in Minnesota for the coming years and represent the state's guiding hazardous waste management policy. As with the report, the plan will emphasize waste reduction, pretreatment, processing and other alternatives to the land disposal of hazardous waste.

The plan will also be the basis for the certificate of need for a Minnesota hazardous waste disposal facility, to be sited by the board in early-1986.

Among its key findings the report states that:

—An estimated 174,000 tons of hazardous wastes are generated in Minnesota each year, with Hennepin, Ramsey, Washington, St. Louis and Dakota counties ranking — in that order — as the top five generating counties in the state.

—Four categories of hazardous wastes comprise 75 per cent of the state's total: oils and greases (35 per cent), heavy metals and inorganic solutions (19 per cent), solvents and organic solutions (13 per cent), and residuals from the clean-up of old hazardous waste dumps and spills (eight per cent), with the remainder comprised of a wide variety of materials, including sludges, paint wastes, and pesticide and herbicide wastes.

—Approximately 70 per cent of Minnesota's hazardous waste is generated by firms in the seven-county Twin Cities metropolitan area, by 81 per cent of the hazardous waste generators in the state.

Under a state policy of "high waste reduction," the report estimates that 160,000 tons of hazardous wastes would still be generated in Minnesota by the year 2000, with incineration, fuel blending, waste oil refining, treatment, metal recovery and a variety of other facilities handling almost 80 per cent of the total — and 36,000 tons remaining that would require containment in a secure disposal facility.

To prompt widespread discussion on the development of the state's hazardous waste management plan, the report also includes a tentative statement of general board policies. The policy statement declares that environmental protection is the board's highest goal, and that the waste management methods favored by the board, in their order of preference, are reduction, recycling, treatment and disposal.

The policy statement also declares that:

—Hazardous waste management should be a private enterprise function, but the state may have to go beyond the role of regulator in some instances. In addition, incentives should be preferred to regulations as a means of improving waste management.

—Improved enforcement of hazardous waste regulations is a major concern of the Hearing On Old Library Draws Few Proposals

Hearing August 16, intended to gather ideas and suggestions regarding the fate of the old Carnegie Library building in Thief River Falls, raised familiar arguments and some new questions, but no firm proposals that hadn't been heard before, at one time or another.

Conducted by the finance committee of the Thief River Falls city council, the meeting was chaired by Alderman James Womack, who kept it at an informal level, directing the discussion only to the point of keeping it on the subject matter. Also sitting on the hearing committee were Aldermen Ambrose Wysoski, Ken Murphy, Don Goodrich and Bill Penning.

Between 40 and 50 people attended the hearing, with a large percentage of the audience consisting of senior citizens, who expressed concern over their search for a senior citizen service center site more than for the old library building. Previous feasibility studies indicated that conversion of the building for their purposes would not be practical due to the high costs of making it accessible to wheelchairs. However, since a proposal made by Gerald Mundt Architects, Golden Valley, included a 4,450 square foot addition to the east of the existing building, the question was raised about whether that lot could be made available to the senior citizens group.

Because of the building's history, it has been recommended by the state historical society for inclusion in the national register of historic places. This was done in spite of a request from the city council that recommendation be delayed. If it is selected for the national register, the federal government will not allow the building to be torn down, or even remodeled unless the historic character of the building is maintained.

Alderman Penning, who has been outspoken about his desire to demolish the building, would like to accomplish that end before the historic site designation can be made. He referred to the building as a "monstrosity" and suggested that it costs $8,000 to $10,000 a year to heat and maintain. (Figures obtained from the city clerk's office show that gas and electricity for the building cost $4,050.59 in 1982. Penning said that he would favor allowing the senior citizens to build on the lot if the building was demolished.

Mundt estimated that demolition of the building

Normandin And Sterger Vows Exchanged Here

Sandra K. Normandin of Thief River Falls and Thomas Ray Sterger of Fertile exchanged marriage vows at a candlelight service on Saturday evening, July 16, at 6:00 p.m. at the United Methodist church in this city.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Ross of Leechburg, Pa.; and the groom is the son of Mrs. Ida Sterger of Crookston.

Rev. Bernard R. Lewellin officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Music was provided by the United Methodist hand bell choir.

For her wedding, the bride, selected a white lace, sleeveless and backless, floor-length gown lined in mint green. To complete her attire, she wore a handmade, waist-length lace veil with mint green trim. She carried her mother's white Bible topped with a pink rose, ferns and white ribbon.

Midge Green, Thief River Falls, a friend of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of mint green floral print and carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds and lace.

Serving as flower girls were the bride's daughters: Kandee and Sally Normandin. Their mint green floor-length gowns, trimmed with green and white lace, were complemented by white hats accented with green lace. Each carried a white lace basket filled with pink rosebuds and lace accents.

The rings were carried by Ronald Normandin, a son of the bride. Like the groom, he wore a green tuxedo, white shirt with green ruffles, and a pink rosebud boutonniere.

Wearing similar attire was Dan Duquette, Gentilly, a friend of the groom, who was best many. Ushers were Jim Sterger, Grand Forks, N.D., a brother of the groom, and Kevin Solie, Fertile, a friend of the groom.

A reception in the church parlors followed. The Ruth circle of the United Methodist Women, headed by Ruth Pfiefer, was in charge. Josita Duquette, Gentilly, was at the guest book and Suzanne Pfiefer and Lori Stocks were gift bearers and served as waitresses at the wedding table.

Centering the serving table was a four-tiered, heartshaped wedding cake decorated with pink rosess and topped with the same miniature bride and groom ornament that had topped the cake at the bride's parents' wedding. The cake was cut and served by Margaret Race.

Following a wedding trip to New Prague, the couple is at home at 304 East Main, Fertile. The bride is a graduate of Kiski Area senior high school at Vandergraft, Pa., and the Thief River Falls AVTI. The groom is a graduate of Central high school, Crookston, and is employed by Master Feeds, Fertile, as truck driver. Photo, Marie Sorenson

Art Exhibit To Be Previewed At State Fair

Preview of the 72nd annual Minnesota state fair fine arts exhibition will be open to the public from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday, August 23 at the arts center on the fairgrounds.

Special feature of the preview will be a mask contest, open to the public and judged by theatrical supplier Jerry Tenner. Cash prizes of $10 will be awarded to persons with winning masks.

Exhibition showcases selected entries in a variety of categories including paintings, drawings, prints, ceramics, sculpture, textiles and photography. Photography has generated an increasing amount of interest in recent years and, as a result, is highlighted in the '83 exhibition.

Ted Hartwell, curator of photography at the Minneapolis Institute of art, selected winning entries for the photography portion of the show. Non-photography entries were selected by jurors Thomas Rose, sculptor and art instructor at the University of Minnesota, and Dean Swanson, consultant in the fine arts and former director of the Minnesota Museum of Art in St. Paul.

To emphasize the focus on photography, the state fair is collaborating with Film in the Cities to co-sponsor a special invitational photography exhibit at the arts center titled "State Fair." Seven of the state's top fine arts photographers were invited to participate in the exhibition. Organized by Film in the Cities gallery director James Dozier, it includes photographic interpretations of state fair activities.

Public events at the arts center throughout the '83 state fair, August 25 through Labor Day, September 5, include "meet the artists" sessions, voting for the second annual people's choice award, performances by Minnesota dance groups, tours of the exhibition, lectures and discussions.

Night Classes In Roseau Set By Northland

An off-campus associate of arts degree program will be offered by Northland community college at Roseau beginning this fall quarter. It will provide students with an opportunity to earn 9-12 credits quarterly toward a two year college degree.

Classes are scheduled three evenings a week, according to Madalyn Novellino, vice provost of Northland community college, who scheduled the courses. Credits earned can be transferred to a senior college and can increase employability.

Objective of the off-campus evening program is to make NCC programs available to individuals who are unable to commute to Thief River Falls but are interested in obtaining their degree. Features of the program include: savings of time and finances through reduced commuting time; opportunity to retain full-time employment while attending college; convenience of offerings to meet individual needs; and opportunity to obtain a two-year college degree by taking evening courses over a 2-3 year period.

Following courses will be offered in Roseau at the high school:

+ Principles of Accounting on Tuesday evenings from September 13 to November 29.

+ Advanced Computer Programming on Monday evening from September 12 to November 28.

+ Freshman English on Thursday evenings from September 8 to December 1.

+ General Psychology on Thursday evenings from September 8 to December 1.

In addition, a course on basic computer programming will be taught in Warroad at the high school on Monday evenings, September 12 to November 28.

Tuition per credit is $22.50. Texts can be purchased the first evening. Financial aid is available for eligible students who enroll for six or more credits, and tuition reimbursement is available for eligible persons who take less than six credits.

Counselors will be available upon request to assist students in program planning. Appointments are necessary and can be arranged by telephoning Northland college at 681-2181 or Pricilla Weston in Roseau at 463-2012. Weston should also be called to register. Pre-registration is encouraged.

Botulism At Refuge Curbed By Rainfall

conditions — a situation in which there is no air or free oxygen. Birds which take the toxin into their bodies through the food supply develop profound muscular paralysis which affects mobility, vision and breathing.

In many cases involving ducks, the poisoning causes loss of muscular control which results in the birds being unable to hold their heads erect. The heads of the weakened birds dip into the water and they drown. Recovery and disposal of dead birds is made more difficult by this situation, since the birds tend to expire against the edge of cover where their natural body camouflage makes them difficult to see.

"Without the airboat which we got several years ago the task would be impossible," Mattson said. "The air boat can travel on very little water and in much of the Tamarack pool area the water was only a couple of inches deep. Ability of the boat to move around the area enabled us to pick up and dispose of many of the infected birds, which had died and even capture and treat birds which had recently been infected and were too weak or lacking in muscular control to fly or dive. The toxin can cause death in birds in as little as 48 hours."

Mattson explained that recovery and disposal of dead birds was important to prevent spread of the toxin. Unrecovered birds attract flies which lay eggs on the carcasses. These develop into masses of maggots which float free containing the toxin and are fed on by other birds, thereby expanding the cycle.

It is suspected that some losses occur from botulism nearly every year but are difficult to determine because of the relative inaccessibility of many of the marshes. Larger outbreaks have been infrequent and are directly related to unusual weather conditions. Mattson said the losses are a source of concern, but not major in relation to the approximately 15,000 ducks and thousands of shorebirds which are produced on the refuge in an average year.

Rainfall at the refuge headquarters Sunday was measured at about two inches and was considerably heavier to the south, including the Elm Lake area. Coupled with cooler temperatures, the fresh water supply is expected to be a big boost in reducing the botulism threat.

Seven Inches Of Rain Falls At T.R. Falls

losses are likely to result to sunflowers, corn and hay.

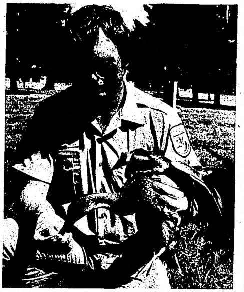
Courneya noted that, the heavy rain can cause two problems for corn and sunflowers. It can hasten maturity, in which case yields will be reduced, or it can retard maturity in areas where water accumulates on the surface for a number of days.

In the case of hay, the heavy rain will delay cutting for about a week, lowering quality as the crop matures. Hay which had been baled but not stacked will lose quality as well, and baled or cut hay in standing water will be lost.

It was also noted that the rainfall will delay seeding of protective winter cover on PIK acres which was to have been established by September 1. Farmers unable to meet the seeding deadline may receive an extension of two weeks by calling the ASCS office, according to Philip Bergland, director of the Pennington county office.

Should conditions not permit seeding within the two-week extension, the natural growth of weeds and grasses would provide satisfactory cover to meet demands of the program. "It's a lousy way to farm, but it would meet our requirements for winter cover," Bergland said.

City power plant officials said that the heavy rainfall caused some scrambling to open gates at the dam but that no real problems resulted. By 2:30 a.m. Sunday the gates had been opened and the level of the reservoir behind the dam — which had risen six inches from its previous level — was beginning to recede. The reservoir is now being maintained about a foot and a half below normal levels and will be gradually raised as the run-off subsides. One small power outage affecting a few homes was all that was reported in the city.



A YOUNG DRAKE MALLARD was among the apparent victims of botulism at Agassiz national wildlife refuge east of Holt last week. Combination of warm temperatures and lack of rainfall contributed to the outbreak which has caused modest losses of ducks and shorebirds. "The loss has not been extensive in terms of total production," states Jim Mattson of the refuge staff, pictured above. "But we take the threat very seriously because it can spread so rapidly and has the potential to result in massive loss of birds." Mattson said availability of an airboat, purchased several years ago, has contributed immeasurably in efforts to control spread of the toxin by allowing refuge staff to pick up many of the birds that have died and even rescue some sick birds. Force feeding fresh water can save some infected birds if the treatment is begun early enough.

Waste Report Draft Now At Public Library

—Minnesota is directly responsible only for its own wastes, but reliance on facilities in other states is unavoidable for the near future. Facilities necessary to meet the board's hazardous waste management goals, the document states, need not necessarily be in Minnesota.

In addition to libraries, the report has been distributed to several city halls and county offices. For further information on the report contact the board at 1-800-652-9747.

Hearing On Old Library Gets Few Proposals

would cost approximately $20,000. His proposal to remodel the building with a 4,450 square foot addition on the east side, hinges on its designation as a national historic site. By maintaining the historic character of the building, he notes that the investors whom he represents can use the expense as a tax shelter. His proposal is to use the building for professional offices, with a possible restaurant in the basement, which would serve wine and beer. By returning the building to private ownership, he suggested that it would benefit the city by providing additional tax income.

When he originally made his proposal in June, Mundt suggested that because of the benefits to the city, they should sell the building for approximately $1,000. Womack later noted that that offer has now been raised to $30,000 with the stipulation that the city provide some in-kind services, such as improvements and landscaping to the parking lot east of the building. These figures are still negotiable items, however. Mundt has suggested that his project would cost approximately $500,000.

Alderman Goodrich said that he had contacted an architectural firm which is currently doing some work for the hospital. He suggested that the library building should be studied further to determine its suitability for other public uses. He suggested that the architects could at least make some suggestions without incurring any costs. Goodrich said it was foolish to get rid of a building without investigating the alternatives.

Spence Sandford, owner of Cloud 9 Waterbeds, questioned whether the council would consider allowing the purchase of the building for use as a retail outlet. Since the library dilemma has been in front of the public for several months, he was told by Alerman Womack that if he could bring a firm proposal for its use before the council prior to its next meeting, it would be given consideration. Womack commented that they were attempting to be fair to all parties, but that Mr. Mundt had asked for a decision on his proposal by the end of the month.

REFLECTI NS

What a sad world this would be without children . . . what an inhuman world without the aged. Children create so much joy . . . and renew our hope for the future. The aged are examples of dignity and wisdom who's years of experience can benefit all if we but ask them to share their memories. Enjoy and love young and old alike . . . they enrich our lives.

Johnson Heads Delegation To Soviet Union

Lt. Governor Marlene Johnson will lead a delegation of 120 Minnesotans to the Soviet Union in late November. The trip is part of the "Missions to Moscow" program sponsored by the Friendship Force, a non-profit organization to promote international understanding.

The visit is one of several planned by the Friendship Force for the end of the year.

Members of the delegation will be selected over the next month. Johnson has asked eight people, one from each of the Congressional districts, to recruit individuals from their section of the state. In addition, two others will select 12 people from throughout the state. An emphasis will be placed on recruiting a diverse group.

The 10-day visit to the USSR will allow the group to visit farms, homes, schools, cultural institutions, and USSR-USA Friendship Societies in Moscow, Leningrad and one other interior city. The goal for participants will be to initiate friendships with Soviet citizens on a one-to-one basis.

The delegation will depart the Twin Cities on November 25 and will return on December 4. Two options are available to extend the visit to cities of southern Germany, Austria and Switzerland.

Cost will be $1,600 and the trip is open to any interested Minnesotan. In addition, one person from each Congressional district will receive a subsidy to cover 75 per cent of the cost of the trip. The subsidy will be awarded on the basis of financial need.

"The goal of the Friendship Force — to establish friendships across international boundaries — is particularly appropriate for a trip to the Soviet Union," Johnson said. "The purpose of the mission is to help understand both the differences and similarities between our two countries. By making contact with ordinary Soviet citizens, we undoubtedly will come away with greater understanding."

Surplus Cheese Distribution Set For Area

Inter-County community council of Oklee will distribute surplus cheese and Northwest Community Action, Inc., of Badger will distribute cheese and butter in separate programs beginning next week.

Inter-County notes that commodities will be distributed on a first come, first served basis only as long as supplies last or until the scheduled ending time at each distribution center. Picking up commodities locally is requested since it helps in planning and enables the staff to balance supplies with eligible recipients.

Northwest community action notes that eligible families may receive two pounds of butter and five pounds of cheese and that written permission must be presented if someone is picking up commodities for other households. Those receiving commodities should bring a sack for packaging.

Income guidelines include a maximum of $7,923 for a one-member household, increasing to $21,940 for a 10-member household. Steps in between include $10,361 for two, $12,799 for three, $15,236 for four, $17,674 for five, $20,112 for six, $20,569 for seven, $21,026 for eight and $21,483 for nine.

Distribution of cheese in Pennington county will take place August 30 from 10 a.m. to noon at the St. Hilaire council room, August 31 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Thief River Falls city auditorium and September 1 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Goodridge senior citizen center.

In Red Lake county the distribution will take place August 30 from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at Eckstein's in Red Lake Falls, August 31 from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Oklee municipal building, and September 2 from 10 to 11 a.m. at the Emardville hall, in Plummer and 1 to 2 p.m. at the Brooks town hall.

Worthwhile Program

One of the better volunteer programs to come along in awhile is the telephone reassurance program being organized through the Pennington county social services office. It is a simple procedure but could mean a lot to many people, even to the point of being life-saving.

The program will register elderly or handicapped people living alone who do not have regular daily contact with others and match them with volunteers willing to make that telephone contact at least daily. The volunteer will then be asked to call at pre-arranged times to be sure that the participant receiving the contact is all right.

Volunteers can be virtually any responsible persons who have ready access to a telephone. They will be asked to make an agreement with their "client" to call at specified times. The arrangements can be quite flexible, but a procedure is to be followed if the call is not answered as it is expected to be.

The caller will call and let the phone ring at least 10 times. If no answer, the call will be repeated, again allowing 10 rings. If still no answer, the volunteer is to call the operator to be sure the phone is in working condition. If the line is out of order, necessity for quick repair is noted and a neighbor called to contact the client personally and explain the reason the call did not come through. If the line is working but there is no answer, the pre-arranged emergency plan developed between caller and client will be implemented.

This is a great way for someone who can not be physically active for one reason or another to provide a great service for others. Many telephone friendships would likely result and the assurance that somebody cares enough to call would certainly be beneficial to a person's mental health.

To become a caller or a person called, contact the Pennington county social services office in the basement of the Pennington county courthouse or call 681-2880.

Claims And Counter Claims

The business of politics goes on even after the legislative session in Minnesota is past. Spokesmen for the DFL and I-R parties are busy gringing out news releases and columns trying to convince the public that what they and their parties have done — or been unable to do, in the case of minority party membership — has been or would have been most beneficial to Minnesota.

Quite likely all of the writers are at least partially convinced themselves that what they write is true. Would an elected office holder in Minnesota deliberately lie to his constituents: Not so you could catch him at it. More often the truth lies in what is not said rather than what is said. And almost every claim of success can be countered with a claim that the action is harmful or counter-productive.

Both Sen. LeRoy Stumpf and Rep. Wallace Sparby have commented in print recently about efforts of the legislature on workmen's and unemployment compensation, claiming improvements for businessmen and employers because of legislative action. We are in no position to dispute the claims and we hope that they are right in their assessments.

One who disagrees is Sen. James Ulland of Duluth, senate minority leader, and he points out some recent happenings in support of his claims.

"The big news in July was that Minnesotans lost over 1,000 jobs they now have, plus another 1,000 they could have had under a more competitive tax climate," Sen. Ulland writes in a news release.

He points to announcements of plant closings and relocation of jobs to other states made by SAFT America Inc. for its St. Paul plant, Whirlpool corporation for its Cottage Grove plant, Jeno's Inc. for its Duluth headquarters, Donaldson company Inc. for its St. Paul plant and Kroy Inc. for its Woodbury headquarters. Those closings will cost Minnesota more than 1,000 existing jobs.

In addition, the Sperry corporation announced that it had received a new defense contract that would create about 1,000 jobs, but that those jobs would not be located in Minnesota. "A Sperry executive told us that high taxes, unemployment compensation costs and to some degree worker compensation costs are the reasons why the jobs would not be in Minnesota," Ulland said.

"During the session the governor and DFL leaders argued that their tax increases, the largest in a single session in history, were not going to cause further deterioration in Minnesota's ability to compete for jobs. They even made bold predictions about attracting large numbers of high tech jobs because of extensive, if expensive, state services.

"Well, in the first month of the new policy we have lost a significant number of high quality manufacturing jobs while the high tech jobs, such as those at Sperry, seem to be joining the exodus."

In addition, Sen. Ulland noted that recently Microelectronics and Computer Technology corporation, a major high technology consortium, eliminated Minnesota as a possible headquarters location because of high taxes and other business costs. A $500 million research facilities expansion by 3M at Carlton Park was abandoned and Sperry decided to fulfill a new $433 million naval computer contract in Florida for the same reasons.

"While the full impact of the budget passed by the legislative majority was certainly not felt in one month, employers know full well how it will affect them and they are taking the only action they can," Ulland said. "They are leaving."

He predicted an even greater job exodus as the current budget "continues to hamper Minnesota's ability to retain even the jobs it now has."

Who Is To Blame?

Following column was written by Cliff Markuson, manager of the American Dairy association of Minnesota, in the August issue of the "Dairy Center News" published by the Minnesota ADA and Minnesota dairy promotion council:

I have had a number of my city friends ask why so many farmers are in so much trouble again. They ask why surplus stocks of agricultural products are so high the government has to spend billions of dollars to store them.

What is being politely implied is that farmers have obviously done something wrong and brought this on themselves.

In my opinion, this isn't the case. Surpluses are not something the farmer brought on himself. There are some major factors, completely out of the farmers' control, that together have put, not only dairy, but all of U.S. agriculture, out of whack.

Over the past few years some extremely good weather conditions throughout the country have led to record high yields for many crops. This means larger amounts of grain on the market and cheaper feed costs for livestock. Combined with ever-increasing technological advances, agricultural production has been very high.

From the standpoint of demand, agricultural products have lost ground both nationally and internationally. The grain embargo, a worldwide recession, high interest rates and a strong U.S. dollar have all helped in knocking us out of many foreign markets.

Domestically, in the grocery store, agricultural food products are competing with a growing list of synthetic counterparts that didn't exist five years ago. Per capita consumption of many animal food products has also suffered from a number of speculative claims made by elements of the health community over the last five to ten years.

When added together you come up with the basis of agricultural problems today — surpluses. If you look over the list it becomes obvious that, of all the factors I listed, few are in the control of farmers. So, is it fair to blame them?

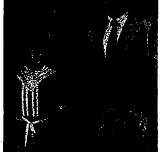
Farmers have displayed their ability to produce profitably in the market place when given the chance. Minnesota dairy farmers participating in dairy advertising and promotion are a good example of this. They have established programs for themselves that give them something so often missing — control of programs that impact their own operation.

We need to arrive at a point where agriculture can control its own destiny. All the chaos that agriculture has been experiencing lately is not going to go away until the producers provide the solution for themselves.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The sophisticated 13-year-old informed her father at dinner that an older friend had received a friendship ring and that the friend's older sister had received an engagement ring. Asked what the difference in the two rings was, the girl replied, "Well, once you're engaged, the friendship is over."

The shapely young lady in shorts and halter sauntered across a busy street at the rush hour to a chorus of screeching brakes and wolf whistles. A policeman escorted her to the curb. "Thank-you, officer," she cooed. "I just love the way you direct traffic." Gallantly he replied, "And I admire the way you stop it."



FAITH LUTHERAN BRETHREN church in Thief River Falls and Silverton Lutheran church will have a new pastor beginning Sunday. Rev. Charles A. Johnson, shown with his wife Lorna and their children Stephanie and Steven, will be installed at an 11 a.m. service at Faith Lutheran church with a dinner to follow at the church.

Bedrock Waste Disposal Report Now Available

Report related to the Minnesota waste management board's search for potentially suitable sites for a crystalline bedrock repository for hazardous industrial wastes is available for public review at libraries near areas the board is studying as possible hazardous waste disposal sites.

Report is available at Northwest regional library, 101 East First Street, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Although the report, prepared by the geology department of the University of Minnesota and entitled "Subsurface Isolation of Hazardous Wastes", was issued in June, 1982, many residents in the siting areas have requested that it be made available at local libraries for public review.

Report discussed the feasibility, possible cost, and potential design of a crystalline bedrock repository — which is one of three different technologies the board is considering for final disposal of treated residues from hazardous industrial wastes. Other technologies are an above-ground tank storage facility for long-term containment of hazardous wastes and a hazardous waste landfill using clay liners and leachate collection systems.

University report does not draw any final conclusions regarding the crystalline bedrock disposal technology. Within the next few weeks, the board will receive a detailed report from the Battelle Institute of Columbus, OH. that will compare the costs, risks and potential impacts of the three disposal technologies the board is considering.

Currently, the board is studying 18 areas in nine Minnesota counties — Benton, Chippewa, Morrison, Redwood, Renville, St. Louis, Sherburne, Stearns and Yellow Medicine — as preliminary sites for a crystalline bedrock repository.

Also under consideration are "candidate" sites in Aitkin and Marshall counties for above-ground tank facilities, and sites in Carver and Scott counties for either above-ground facilities or hazardous waste landfills. Board is expected to choose the final site and disposal technology in 1986.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

The following is something I found in a magazine. I am presently doing time in Stillwater prison and I felt that if there was one thing I could do for my community, it would be to show the people that prison is no place to be.

I guess that I am one of the lucky ones here because I am able to earn a college degree while I am doing my time. I am working on receiving a degree in social welfare and community services through the U of M. I would like to have this put in the paper. I hope that you will see it as beneficial as I do to the children of today.

Thank you,
Willard J. Hince Jr.

The magazine article follows:

The reason I'm writing this is quite simple: I want to help those who think its cool to be the fool. I want them to realize that being in a place such as this is not what everybody thinks. I want people to know what prison is all about.

The following are my true and personal feelings about prison life. This is also how all my "gray-bar brothers" feel.

+ Prison is a place where you exchange the dignity of your name for the degradation of a number.

+ Prison is a place where you live from visit to visit. . . if you are lucky enough to have a visitor.

+ Prison is the place where you learn the counting of life: You count the years, seasons, months, weeks, days, hours, minutes, seconds.

+ Prison is a place where you hope and pray not to die.

+ Prison is a place where you are lucky if you never have to kill some fool.

+ Prison is a place where therapy and religion are not looked upon as beneficial in themselves; they are looked upon as beneficial in a parole-board report.

+ Prison is a place where the word freedom can bring tears of remembrance to the meanest of killers.

+ Prison is a place where some of the "gays" are more men than some of the men.

+ Prison is a place where convict's wages stand still and canteen prices rise to the sky.

+ Prison is a place where your ingenuity, your creativity, and your inventiveness rise to the surface — if your eyes are open.

+ Prison is a place where you can become mentally crippled because responsibility is stolen from you.

+ Prison is a place where your wealth is determined by the number of smokes you own.

+ Prison is a place where you can bear the echo of family and friends saying, "I told you soooooo."

Don't come to prison for a life means nothing here. LIVE!

Otteson Cows Attain Elite Hereford List

Two cows owned by Otteson Hereford ranch, Thief River Falls, are among 1,689 cows on a special American Hereford association listing of cows which have combined the economic traits of fertility and growth of off-spring during their lifetime.

To be a member of this group, a cow must be four years of age or older, calved at 25 months of age or younger, have a calving interval of 370 days or less, and her calves must have attained weaning weight at least five per cent above the average of her herd.

Only one-half of one per cent of the nation's registered Hereford breeding cows can meet the rigid standards to attain listing, according to H.H. Dickenson, executive vice-president of the AHA.

Solution

The Banvel® herbicide advantage: Roots out Canada thistle on Set-Aside/PIK or harvested acres.

NOW: Get a clean start in '84.

Canada thistle, and other tough perennial broadleaf weeds keep coming back—getting worse every season. But you can root out Canada thistle and the rest of these stubborn weeds after harvest or on idle acres with Banvel® herbicide.

When you use Banvel herbicide at recommended rates in a Between Crops Application, you kill perennials clear through the roots—so they can't creep back. Use Banvel herbicide before a killing frost. It penetrates weed leaves. Is absorbed by the roots. Moves through the entire plant—leaf-tip to root-tip. Then rotate back to wheat, corn or milo.

Get the control you need for Canada thistle... bindweed...and other tough broadleaf perennials.

KTRF-KSNR Owners Are Experienced As Radiomen

The owners of KTRF and KSNR radio stations are both experienced radiomen. Theodore S. Storck, and Joel A. Swanson, both originally of Morris, MN, came to Thief River Falls after owning or managing other radio stations.

Storck started his radio career in Morris, at KMRS radio; then worked as a news reporter at The Forum in Fargo-Moorhead for 3½ years before joining the Navy as a public affairs officer. After eight years of active duty, he served on the Los Angeles Police Department, first as a street police officer, and later in the public affairs division.

His first ownership came in 1974 when he purchased KTCH in Wayne, NE. He placed the FM on the air there, and then sold the stations in 1978 to move to California. There he owned KUKI and KIAH in Ukiah. He then sold those stations to buy KTRF and KSNR. He remains active in the Naval Reserve, where he is a commander.

Swanson started his radio career at WQPM Radio in Princeton, MN where he started out in sales and was later named sales manager. In 1979 Swanson took over as vice president and general manager of KDMA Radio in Montevideo, a position he held until moving to Thief River Falls. Swanson is married and has four children. His wife Donna is employed as the bookkeeper at KTRF and KSNR. He served on active duty with the United States Marine Corps and is currently a major in the Marine Reserve.

Both say they moved to Thief River Falls, because it is a town on the move, and they hope to be a part of this revitalization. Storck serves as president and general manager, while Swanson serves as vice president and manager in charge of sales.

THE KTRF-KSNR BUILDING JUST NORTH OF Thief River Falls has undergone extensive changes since Ted Storck and Joel Swanson bought the stations.

The Prowler sports this year will be heard on KSNR, FM 99. General Manager Ted Storck said the move to KSNR was so KTRF could serve the outlying towns. He said, "This year we not only will be carrying all the Warren football games, but other smaller towns in the area. We are not just a Thief River Falls radio station," he said, "so we feel we must serve the other towns with local sports."

Major Changes Are Made At Radio Station

Theodore S. (Ted) Storck, and Joel Swanson purchased KTRF and KSNR radio station on Nov. 16, 1982 and since have made great strides in improving the stations. The most noticeable change, according to Storck, is the addition of more local and area news. Ron Foley was added to the staff as the news director in December, and since that time has been regarded as the finest news gatherer in Northwestern Minnesota. His daily expanded newscasts at 7, and 8 a.m., noon, 5 and 6 p.m. are a "must listen" for anyone who wants to know what is going on in the area. In between, Foley is busy preparing news for the other announcers to read to keep the area informed. Storck also pointed out the addition of the Minnesota News Network, which keeps our area in tune with the rest of the state. Remote broadcasting is also an important part of the broadcast day of KTRF, as is the farm programming.

The call letters of the FM station was changed to KSNR in February, and an entire new format of adult music is being presented with announcers. Since that time, Storck said, it has become an extremely popular station in Red Lake, Pennington, Polk, Marshall and Clearwater counties.

KTRF Listened To Most In This Area

KTRF radio is the most listened to radio station in Pennington and Red Lake counties, according to the latest Arbitron report. The report, scientifically taken, revealed that not only do more people listen to KTRF than any other radio station, they listen longer.

President Ted Storck said the survey was taken, much as the political polls are taken, so it is closer to being correct than any other survey taken of radio listening. In fact, he said, a similar survey is taken for TV, and stations "live and die" by the results.

The Arbitron revealed that not only does KTRF have twice as many listeners as any other station, but that people stay tuned to KTRF three times as long each day as to any other station.

KSNR, it was revealed also has a wide listenership in the three county area with only KTRF surpassing it in the number of hours people listen to it.

"We are proud of this," Storck added, "and thank our listeners for their fine support."

You'll find yourself intrigued as they take a look at what's happening today in their own unique styles.

KTRF-KSNR Radio Stations Join CBS Broadcast Network

KTRF and KSNR radio stations in Thief River Falls have joined the CBS radio network. KTRF, AM 1230, is broadcasting the hourly newscasts of CBS, while KSNR, FM 99.3, is broadcasting CBS's Radio Radio, a news program designed for the contemporary radio listener.

John Burroughs of CBS in New York City said, "I'm pleased that KTRF and KSNR have joined the CBS family of fine radio stations."

KTRF-KSNR president and general manager Ted Storck said, "CBS, by far, is the most responsible radio network, and we here at KTRF-KSNR feel it will complement our excellent state and northwestern Minnesota news coverage."

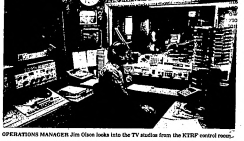
A study by a radio group, called "radar" has found that of all radio programs, CBS takes six of the top ten in number of people listening daily. One of the programs KTRF is now carrying is the popular "CBS World News Roundup" with Dallas Townsend each morning at 7 a.m. "It is the most comprehensive review of news on radio," said Storck, "and is followed by Ron Foley with a look at News Of The North."

Another popular program is "The World Tonight" at 6 p.m. with Douglas Edwards. There will also be business updates throughout the day, sports with Brent Musburger, and Win Elliot, Dateline with Charles Kuralt, Commentary by Dan Rather, Mike Wallace, Charles Osgood, Harry Reasoner, Andy Rooney and Diane Sawyer.

Storck said KTRF will also be carrying the baseball world series, Monday night football, along with other sports like the Super Bowl. KSNR will remain basically a music station, but Storck said Radio Radio will add a new dimension to this FM station. In Minnesota, only four stations have been privileged to be CBS affiliates. They are in Duluth, Minneapolis, Moorhead and now Thief River Falls.

Brent Musburger

Jim Kelly



OPERATIONS MANAGER Jim Olson looks into the TV studios from the KTRF control room.

Musburger To Report KTRF Sports

Sportstime with Brent Musburger on KTRF weekdays at 6:25 p.m. reaches behind the scores to bring fans the inside story from the exciting world of sports. Musburger interviews sports newsmakers, players, coaches and managers — previews of upcoming contests and insightful commentary all add up to a winning combination for the fan who wants to know more than just the final score.

Another sports reporter, Jim Kelly, reports sports at 5:54 and 7:25 a.m. on KTRF. No matter the sports season, Kelly is always on hand to sum up the most up-to-date sports news, adding actuality, replays, timely interviews and the latest scores to complete this weekday sports feature. Immediately following Kelly at 7:25 each morning, Joel Swanson fills in with the Thief River Falls area and Minnesota sports news.

NFL Football Comes To KTRF

This year all the NFL Monday night football games will be heard on KTRF. Game time will be about 6:50 p.m. each Monday night. In addition, KTRF is carrying all the Minnesota Viking games.

Olson Tasks Are Varied At Station

KTRF-KSNR operations manager Jim Olson has varied tasks at the two stations, from an air shift to some engineering.

Olson, who first worked for his father, Don Olson at KTRF, for 10 years, has also worked in Sioux Falls and Rapid City, S.D. He said, "This has given me experience in how stations in slightly larger markets operate, experience I use at KTRF-KSNR."

Olson's major task is to assist Ted Storck and Joel Swanson in the smooth running of the two stations. That includes an air shift, weekdays from 9 to noon, reproducing the Dick Clark and Top 30 Count up show, producing commercials, and assisting with the engineering.

"It's a big job," Olson said, but "in a small market, you get to do everything, and I like that." He is married and the father of a son.

KSNR Radio Has Top Announcers

KSNR Radio, FM 99.3, has some of the finest announcers in the radio business with Don McAlister, Cliff Saunders, Bill Kefurry and Terry Nelson. McAlister wakes up the Thief River Falls area with his wit at 5 a.m. Saunders is the midday man, keeping the housewife and all others entertained. Kefurry comes along at 3, with his music a tempo above, followed at 7 by Terry Nelson. His wit is known throughout the area, and many say will soon become this area's most listened to announcer.

Each one selects the music suited to the time of the day, with Nelson playing the songs for the younger audience, while McAlister plays the tunes to get you up and moving.

Charles Osgood Poetry New KTRF Feature

Charles Osgood, the 'poet in residence' is heard Monday through Friday on KTRF at 7:54 a.m. on Newsbreak.

It's a delightful and rare look at the news of the day through the eyes of Osgood, often called the CBS poet in residence. In the midst of a whirlwind of hard news reports, Osgood gives listeners the opportunity to sit back and catch their breath and perspective. Sometimes in poetry, sometimes in prose, his reports poke fun at the powerful and is a welcome addition to the hard news of the day on KTRF. Many have compared him favorably with Paul Harvey.

KTRF-KSNR OPERATIONS MANAGER Jim Olson positioned a TV camera before newsman Ron Foley begins one of five major newscasts he presents on KTRF and TV Cable Three.

Newsman Foley On Radio-TV

Ron Foley came to KTRF-KSNR last November to be the station's news director, only to find out that he would also be a TV newsman.

Foley said, "although radio news is what I like, I enjoy being on TV, too. It allows our listeners on the cable system to see me in action."

Foley was a co-anchor of the news on a TV station in Austin, before deciding to go entirely into radio, or, as he says, "close to being entirely in radio with our TV broadcasts here."

He grew up in Breckenridge, attended Moorhead State University, and worked in Minnesota Radio & TV for 12 years. He is married and the father of a son.

Foley presents the news on KTRF and Cable 3 each day at 7:10, 8:06 a.m., 12:06 noon, 5:06 p.m. and 6:06 p.m. immediately after CBS news. In addition, he is heard in the morning, noon and late afternoon on KSNR.

WMB Makes Progress On Hazardous Waste Plan

Minnesota waste management board is "making significant progress" on developing a state hazardous waste management plan "that will emphasize advanced technological alternatives to landfilling, clarifying important liability issues and make strong recommendations regarding hazardous waste regulations," board chairman Robert Dunn said today.

Dunn said the board is still looking at a variety of potential recommendations for inclusion in the state plan — which is to be issued in draft form to the Minnesota Legislature in November — but that the board's work thus far on hazardous waste policies will result in a "far-sighted and comprehensive approach to managing hazardous wastes in Minnesota in the coming years."

In issuing a state hazardous waste management plan the board will make recommendations to the Legislature on the policies, facilities, regulations and other measures needed to manage hazardous wastes through the remainder of this century and beyond. The Legislature must provide for implementation of the plan's recommendations; future facility proposals or other hazardous waste management measures will be evaluated against the plan.

State law requires that the plan emphasize waste reduction, pretreatment, processing, recycling and all other alternatives to the land-disposal of hazardous wastes, but provide for at least one hazardous waste disposal or retrievable storage facility — for those wastes that cannot be further reduced or recycled — in Minnesota.

The board is investigating a variety of disposal technologies, including a secure landfill, above-ground storage facility or crystalline bedrock repository for hazardous waste.

The board has stated it considers the development of the hazardous waste management plan its more important responsibility. It is also identifying "preferred areas" for hazardous waste processing facilities and will select at least one hazardous waste disposal or retrievable storage site by early 1986.

Dunn said that recent board discussions and workshops have not resulted in the board's final policies, "nor do these preliminary views represent the opinions of all board members. They do, however, indicate the board's directions in key hazardous waste policy areas," including:

+ Hazardous waste regulations: The board is leaning toward regulations to ban specific categories of wastes from land disposal, and may recommend a new approach to state hazardous waste regulation that would apply different standards to different types of hazardous wastes based on their "degree of hazard."

Dunn said the proper and effective enforcement of state hazardous waste regulations is a major concern of the board, and that new funds needed for that enforcement would most probably come from hazardous waste generators.

+ Hazardous waste reduction: Board members have stated that wastes inappropriate for land-disposal should have priority for waste reduction efforts, and that prohibiting wastes from land-disposal will increase costs to hazardous waste generators and promote hazardous waste reduction.

Waste reduction, Dunn commented, is the "first priority" of the plan.

Generators might be helped in waste reduction by tax incentives for waste reduction equipment, technical assistance or state-sponsored research and development.

+ Hazardous waste treatment: Treatment of hazardous wastes prior to final disposal should be required whenever possible, Dunn said, and the industry generating the hazardous wastes would have the burden of demonstrating that treatment of those wastes is not possible.

Board discussions have centered on the possible encouraging of industries to manage their hazardous wastes "on-site," at the plants where the wastes are produced, whenever possible. The board may encourage large generators to manage hazardous waste generated by smaller generators if the larger firms have such capabilities. Such encouragement may come through changes in liability laws, special state contracts and subsidies, or new state permits for private firms.

+ Liability: The board may recommend that the state assume liability for a hazardous waste disposal facility located at a state-owned site, provided it is stringently regulated. Liability would only be assumed for wastes generated in Minnesota, and liability assumptions would generally not be used as an incentive for facility development.

Board discussions have pointed to a general policy that the state's primary responsibility is for hazardous wastes generated and managed in Minnesota. Board members generally prefer incentives over regulations in furthering proper hazardous waste management by industries, but any incentives or subsidies offered by the state should be limited to Minnesota generators and facilities.

The hazardous waste management plan will be based on a detailed hazardous waste management report, which will outline the nature and extent to the Hazardous waste problem in Minnesota — specifying how much hazardous waste is produced, where and how it is now managed and the possible alternatives available to Minnesota for managing hazardous wastes in the future.

At its July 28 meeting the board approved a revised draft of the hazardous waste management report. Copies of the report will be distributed to libraries in communities around Minnesota, and report summaries will also be available from the board offices.

In late-August and September the board plans to conduct public meetings on the report and the potential recommendations of the hazardous waste management plan. The meetings are required by state law, and will enable residents to help develop the state's long-range hazardous waste policies.

NCC Quarterback Delayed

Bob Rockwood, expected to be the starting quarterback again this fall for the Northland community college football team, may be a little late reporting for the start of 1983 practice drills with the Northmen.

Rockwood is a member of the Fargo American Legion baseball team that will take a 56-13 record into the Central Plains Region 6 tournament at Ely this week. The eight-team, double-elimination tournament will start Wednesday and run through Sunday. The winner will move on to the American Legion World Series Sept. 1-5 at Fargo.

Northland football players are scheduled to report for an organizational meeting Saturday at 9 a.m. at the school. First practice drills will be held Monday from 7 to 7:45 a.m. and from 2 to 4 p.m.

About 35 players are expected to report, said Holley. The Northmen open their 1983 schedule Sunday, September 11, with a 7:30 p.m. road game against the Bemidji State University junior varsity.

In addition to Rockwood, Northland is represented on the Fargo American Legion baseball team by Ladd Bjugson, who was recently named the most valuable player award in the North Dakota Class AA state tournament when he was 9-for-19 at the plate for a .478 batting average, drove in 10 runs and scored six.

Rockwood, a pitcher, and Bjugson, a catcher, are both members of last spring's Northland baseball team that participated in the NJCAA Region 13 tournament here in Thief River Falls. They both played hockey for the Northmen, too.

Miscellaneous

+Jim Wallace, sports editor of the Brainerd Dispatch, notes that Don Karlsgaard, new head men's basketball coach at Brainerd community college, is doing a fine job recruiting, landing 6-2 Curt Johnson of Brainerd, who is transferring from Golden Valley Lutheran; 6-4 Paul Howard of Region 6A champion Staples; 6-0 Bob Mancuso of Cromwell and 6-0 Don Struss of Long Prairie. "We're working on two players from Elk River, one from St. Cloud Tech, one from Frazee and one from Bismarck," Karlsgaard also told Wallace.

+Radio broadcasts of Lincoln high school sports teams this year will be heard over KSNR-FM, with all Warren games being aired on KTRF-AM, it was announced by station officials, who also plan to carry other area games on KTRF, along with NFL Monday Night Football.

"Crookston American Legion baseball coach Jim Simon retired the No. 18 jersey worn by catcher Ken Perreault. It's the only jersey to be retired by a Crookston baseball coach. "It's easy to have a favorite when he's someone who gives you 110 per cent all the time," Simon told Lori Mateer of the Crookston Times. "I'll never have a kid like him in the dugout again. "I'm not ashamed to say he's my favorite." Perreault, who led the team with a .389 batting average this summer, told Simon he would assist him with the coaching duties during next year's American Legion season. Perreault was one of only two 19-year-olds on the team this year. One of those returning next summer will be lefthanded pitcher Craig Stahlecker. "Craig can be the best pitcher in Minnesota, bar none," predicted Simon. This summer he struck out 192 of the 232 batters he faced in 65 1-3 innings, walking just 43. A 3-6-2 record belied what kind of pitcher he really was, said Simon.

Jay Moum Wins Seventh City Golf Title Sunday

Jay Moum returned to his accustomed place in the winner's circle after a year's absence Sunday with a 4-and-3 victory over Marv Carlson in the 18-hole finals of the men's city golf tournament at the Thief River Country Club.

WINNER OF the consolation title in the championship flight Sunday during the finals of the 1983 men's city golf tournament at the Thief River Country Club was Jerry Johnson, pictured here with a chip shot onto the No. 3 green. Johnson, who was the tournament's runner-up finisher a year ago to Alex Easton, beat Joel Carlson in yesterday's consolation finals.

New Members Are Added To MSHSL Board

Board of Directors of the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) will have five new members serving the 500 school membership during the 1983-84 school year.

Beginning service August 1 on the 16-member governing body were Dr. Ruth Randall, St. Paul; Michael Kuntz, Jackson; Richard L. Stanton, Fridley; Clinton Peterson, Tracy; and Brent Gish, Naytahwaush.

Randall, the new Commissioner of Education for the state of Minnesota, will succeed Dr. John Feda, the former commissioner. Prior to assuming her new position this summer, Randall served as superintendent of schools at Rosemount public schools.

Elected to a four-year term serving Area 1A (Regions 1 and 2) was Kuntz, the superintendent of schools at Jackson. Kuntz replaces the former Area 1A representative on the board, Willard Olson, Lake City, who completed a two-year term.

Stanton, principal at Fridley senior high school, will serve a four-year term representing Area 3AA (Regions 5 and 6). Stanton replaces Gene Olive, Richfield, who completed a four-year term, the last year serving as president of the board.

Peterson is the new activity representative for music on the board. Band director at Tracy high school, Peterson will serve a two-year term. He replaces Al Raitor, Sauk Centre, who completed two two-year terms.

Fish becomes the MSHSL second minority representative on the board. He replaces Lurline Baker Kent, St. Paul, who had been a board member since 1980.

Five new members will join 11 other board representatives at the first meeting of the 1983-84 school year, scheduled for August 15-16.

Among those 11 other board members, terms will expire for four of them after the completion of the upcoming school year. Those beginning final years of current terms include Richard Frolland, superintendent of schools, Hendricks, who serves Area 2A (Regions 3 and 4); Richard Baker, Superintendent of schools, Fergus Falls, who serves Area 4AA (Regions 7 and 8) and was vice-president of the board last school year; Judy Johnson, Burnsville, activity representative for girls' sports; and Marlin Spangrud, Mankato, activity representative for speech.

Other members of the Board of Directors serving the League during the 1983-84 school year are Fred Switzer, superintendent of schools, Morris, Area 3A (Regions 5 and 6); Donald Faulkner, Sandstone, a school board member, Area 4A (Regions 7 and 8; Kerwin Engelhart, athletic director of Rochester public schools, Area 1AA (Regions 1 and 2); Ken LaCroix, superintendent of schools, Hastings, Area 2AA (Regions 3 and 4); Jody Brandvold, Brooklyn Center, and Gayle Bergstrom, Adams, both of whom are representatives from the Minnesota School Boards Association; and Russ Adamson, athletic director at Willmar high school.

Board is responsible for administering state tournaments and meets, interpretation of rules, establishment and operation of the MSHSL office, issuing of publications, and hiring of the executive staff.

Meetings of the board are held eight times during the school year to consider management of programs, finances of the MSHSL, eligibility cases, and all other matters which constitute issues of interest and importance to the 500 members high schools throughout Minnesota.

Neibauer's Is Beaten At State Tournament

Thief River Falls' entry at the 1983 Class A Minnesota state fast pitch softball tournament in South St. Paul, Neibauer's, was involved in three one-run ball games over the weekend, winning the first one but losing the next two in the double-elimination format.

Regular season pennant winner in the Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league, Neibuaer's opened the state tournament with a 1-0 decision over Windom in 11 innings Saturday morning.

Three-time defending state and regional champion Lake Lillian came from behind to edge Neibauer's 5-4 in a second round game late Saturday night.

Neibauer's second loss was a 2-1 verdict Sunday morning at the hands of Stewart Taylor, a Duluth entry.

A Neibauer's spokesman said the team had a good tournament. "We could have very easily won the games we lost and lost the game we won," noted team member Mike Kvarnlov.

TEAMMATES GATHERED at home plate to congratulate Jeff Johnson, who hit a three-run first inning home run over the center field fence for Farmer's Co-op Elevator Thursday in a Thief River Falls Men's Slow Pitch Softball Association Division II playoff game against First Federal Savings & Loan Association. In a match-up of the final two unbeaten teams in the week-long, 10-team, double-elimination tournament, Farmer's Co-op Elevator broke open a see-saw game over the final four innings for a 20-6 victory and a berth in the Friday night finals.

— Men's Slow Pitch —

Farmer's Co-op Elevator, a second place finisher to Berkner Agency - Best Western Inn during the regular season pennant race, emerged as the Division II playoff champion Friday as the 1983 Thief River Falls Men's Slow Pitch Softball Association closed out its summer schedule.

Week-long, ten-team, double-elimination Division II playoffs included a set of games Thursday when Farmer's Co-op Elevator defeated First Federal Savings & Loan Association 20-6 in a match-up of the tournament's final two unbeaten teams, while Norwest Insurance Agency eliminated Bakke Insurance - TRF Office Products 9-4 in the loser's bracket.

That same night Norwest Insurance Agency doubled First Federal Savings & Loan Association 18-9 to earn a spot in the finals against Farmer's Co-op Elevator.

Friday's finals found Norwest Insurance Agency nursing a 1-0 lead into the bottom of the seventh inning. A Norwest Insurance Agency Victory would have necessitated a second title-deciding game that night.

In the dramatic last half inning, Farmer's Co-op Elevator loaded the bases with nobody out. Norwest Insurance looked like it might escape unscathed, though, with two easy outs only to see an infield throwing error on the final play of the game allowing the tying and winning runs to cross the plate.

Farmer's Co-op Elevator joins Division III playoff winner Country Kitchen-Coke in the post-season winner's circle. Country Kitchen-Coke won the eight-team, double-elimination Division III playoff title the previous Sunday by beating regular season first place finisher Wennberg's Welding 12-11 in the title game after Wennberg's Welding battled back from a first round loss to force a second title-deciding game that day with a 14-1 victory over Country Kitchen-Coke.

Division I playoffs, scheduled yesterday (Sunday), were scrubbed earlier in the week. Instead, several Thief River Falls teams participated in a 32-team invitational at Roseau when American Legion-Miller Beer-TG Sporting Goods won the title with a five-win day that included an 11-4 victory over the Border Bandits of Badger-Karlstad in the finals.

Players are reminded the post-season Thief River Falls Men's Slow Pitch Softball Association banquet will be held Wednesday starting at 6:30 p.m. at the American Legion Club.

Marshall Co. Farms Eligible For FmHA Loans

Marshall county has been designated by the United States secretary of agriculture as eligible for emergency loans, due to damage and losses of crop yields caused by adverse weather conditions during the 1982 growing season.

Applications will not be accepted after February 12, but incomplete applications received prior to that date may be completed and approved. Applications will be processed under FmHA instruction 1945-D, under which crop losses on all land farmed must total 30 per cent or more to qualify. No guaranteed loans will be authorized, nor will there be any annual production loans or major adjustment loans as in past disaster designations. Actual loss loans only will be coded SO81 and the interest rate will be eight per cent.

Farmers wishing to apply should gather crop records and grain slips for five years prior to the 1982 crop year. Established proven yields from ASCS may be used where personal records aren't available and county averages may be used when neither are available.

Forms may be obtained at the FmHA office at 105 Division Street in Warren. Claims and applications must be filled out in entirety.

To test whether you might be eligible for a loss loan, add any insurance benefits received to 1982 production figures. If that figure is less than 70 per cent of your normal production you should be eligible for a loss loan.

Therapeutic Recreation Course At NCC

"Leisure time is rarely a problem for healthy individuals to utilize to their satisfaction. The handicapped, ill or elderly, however, often view leisure time as a problem. Disabilities can inhibit relaxation and enjoyment of leisure time," according to Madalyn Novellino, vice provost at Northland community college.

Forty-four per cent of the population is now 75 years old or older while more than 90 per cent of this population live outside established institutions that are equipped to resolve this difficulty.

Therefore, we are experiencing a growing need to service this population. Present and future generations will want and need individualized programs and activities," Novellino said.

Therapeutic recreation is one form of professional service that provides recreational and related activities specifically designed to meet needs of individuals who are suffering from any disability or socialimpairment. Recreational therapists utilize sports, drama, nature study, games, arts and crafts experiences to assist in the rehabilitation of people who have been impaired.

Lynae Johnson, a former Northland community college student who interned for her bachelor of science degree at Northwestern regional hospital, stated that therapeutic recreation is dealing with individual needs and fulfillment of those needs.

Therapeutic recreation program at Northland has the goal of teaching students to help others utilize their leisure time with recreational options that positively meet personal needs, according to Laurie Axtman, therapeutic recreation program instructor at NCC.

The program began at Northland to enable students to gain employable entry level education in one of the newest in health occupation fields. Henry Holte, activity coordinator of the day-night unit at the hospital, has been pleased with Northland student interns who are working toward an associate of arts degree. "The students we have worked with are well prepared and they work to provide for individuals needs," he said.

"Students who are in the therapeutic recreation program at NCC are people who are very much interested in life and in making the most of life," Novellino added. One student, Shari Hallstrom, was surprised that more students were not entering the field she believes to be very fulfilling.

"The people a technician works with have so much personality undiscovered by others; the people we've worked with are special in a very true sense of the word," she said.

The two-year program at NCC prepares students as activity coordinators and therapeutic recreation technicians. These positions require specialized levels of knowledge in basic sciences and communication. The program also transfers to a four-year institution.

Students report that the program taught by Axtman prepares graduates with the basics of therapeutic recreation, namely how to help others enjoy life.

For more information on the program contact Laurie Axtman at Northland community college, phone 681-2181.

FLAG CEREMONIES opened and closed each session of Cub Scout Adventure day camp Monday through Friday of last week at the Pennington county fairgrounds in Thief River Falls. Conducting this ceremony was John Deward (facing camera at left), Boy Scout from Crookston. The camp attracted 160 boys from packs in 10 northwestern Minnesota communities. They were involved in such activities as crafts, songs, skits and yells, fishing, riflery, archery, rocketry, chariot races, egg drop, knot tieing and other group events. The Cubs were assigned to 20 dens of eight members each with some mixture among communities to allow participants to meet and make friends with other scouts.

Cancer Fund Memorials Are Received

Memorials to the cancer fund have been received by the Pennington chapter of the American cancer society.

Funds were received in the memory of Myrtle Stenberg, Violet Krohn May, Adeline Langseth, Jerry Wedul, Lawrence Nicholson, Ronald Vennes and Bertil Bakke.

These gifts help support the research, education and service programs of the American Cancer society, according to Mrs. Charles Krause, Memorial chairman.

Stumpf Named To Education Council Post

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer has been selected by Governor Rudy Perpich to serve on the Minnesota education council, it was announced from the State Capitol in Saint Paul last week.

Stumpf, who serves as vice chairman of the Senate education committee, said following the announcement he was "very honored to be chosen to serve with such a select group of education experts from other states, and I anticipate some interesting discussions to come over what the role of the states should be in providing quality educational experiences for our nation's youth."

The multi-state council is composed of members of education commissions of each represented state, plus 16 other persons — two from each congressional district, one being a state legislator, appointed by the governor for the length of his term in office.

Other members of this commission include professionals with responsibilities or interest in broad educational issues," Stumpf said. "The council is expected to meet at least twice each year to consider any and all matters relating to the recommendations of the education commission of the states involved."

The activities of the members representing each state serve as the forum for major education policies providing for the exchange of information about educational activities of interest to all parties.

Members of the commission serve without salary but are reimbursed for expenses incurred during their attendance at council meetings, Stumpf noted.

"I expect the council to consider a number of regional and national issues in education, such as recent reports critical of the nation's educational system, and changes in the tuition reciprocity agreements between our neighboring higher educational institutions," Stumpf added.

Gro-Rite Club Tops 13th Dist. Horticulture Show

Gro-Rite club of Badger and LaRae Barret of the Green Thumb club of Roseau earned high point honors at the 13th District horticultural society flower and garden show conducted Saturday at the Goodridge school.

"Flower City" was the theme of the show which attracted 589 entries from eight garden clubs in northwestern Minnesota. Host clubs were the Deer Park club of the Goodridge and Oklee area, Moccasin club of Thief River Falls and Forget-Me-Not club of Red Lake Falls. Together they planned the show, provided entertainment and served the silver tea.

Sweeping a total of 414 points in the club competition, the Gro-Rite club earned first place total point honors over the Moccasin club which totaled 352 points. LaRae Barrett totaled 169 points and won five individual trophies as high point individual while Lewis Wallace of the Gro-Rite club was second with 136 points.

Moccasin club topped all clubs entered with four individual winners. Bea Wilson received the grand champion award in the dahlia division and the trophies for most points in both dahlia and corsage divisions. Work Underway On Black River Watershed Dam

Earth moving work began Tuesday on the Black River project being undertaken by the Red Lake Watershed district. When the Black River and Moose River projects are completed, 47 per cent of the water from the Red Lake river watershed will be subject to controlled outlets.

Agassiz Construction, Inc., was awarded contract for the Black River project with a low bid of $865,010, just $11,000 under the bid of $876,194 entered by Construction Engineers, Inc., of East Grand Forks. High bid among the nine submitted was for $960,426. Engineer's estimate was $786,023.

The Black River flood control dam is being constructed in the south half of section 35 in Wylie township of Red Lake county, about eight miles upstream from the point where it outlets into the Red Lake river at Huot. Drainage area for the site is 107.7 square miles or 75 per cent of the Black River total drainage area. Runoff from an additional 16 per cent of the Black River drainage area is attenuated by the existing Baird-Beyer and Goose Lake impoundments.

The embankment being created for the dam is about 1,000 feet north of Red Lake county road 13. At this location the river valley is 1,000 feet wide and has a maximum depth of 36 feet. Total water storage capacity is 6,000 acre feet and the site is presently used for grazing.

With the proposed 100-year flood pool elevation of 989.7 feet MSL, the flooded area will be about 420 acres. Permanent pool, however, will have a planned elevation of 962 feet MSL, cover about 12 acres and have a typical depth of six feet. It includes the channel upstream from the work area and elevation of the pool is

Board Okays Towel Fee For Grades 6-10

Approval of a towel fee for students in grades six through 10 and a lease agreement with the city of Thief River Falls for softball fields east of the area vocational-technical institute was given at a regular meeting of the Thief River Falls board of education Monday evening.

The towel fee was suggested at $15 annually for 10th grade students and $10 annually for students in sixth through ninth grades. Hearing on the fee was set for September 12.

The Lincoln high school student-teacher handbook was approved and a resolution was adopted to continue operation of the swimming pool at Franklin on the same basis as the past year.

Bids were accepted from LaPier Oil company in the amounts of 82.35 cents for No. 2 fuel oil, 82.35 cents for No. 2 diesel fuel, 92.4 cents for No. 1 diesel fuel and 90.1 cents for gasoline for the 1983-84 school year. Base bid of $121,000 from Construction Engineers was accepted for updating Northrop elementary school. The project includes replacing the roof with additional insulation, replacing old windows on the south end of the building, insulating specific areas of need and adding low wattage lights in the gymnasium.

Resignations were accepted from annual census taker Robert Nieml and Lincoln management aide Debra Blazek, and a one-year leave of absence without pay was granted to Susan Brekke, confidential employee in the school district service center.

Hired were Nancy Wicklander, census taker for the remainder of the summer; Darlene Sunram, AVTI cosmetology instructor; David Ose, Roger Rivera Jr. and Lilas Bondy, lifeguards; and Ann Haugen, temporary buildings and grounds secretary.

David C. Peterson was recalled from unrequested leave to fill an SLD long-term substitute position at Lincoln and Terry Cork was reassigned as half-time nine-months secretary at the AVTI.

Extra-curricular assignments made were for Jay Forney, head girls swimming coach; Jody Dallmann, assisting girls swimming (diving) coach; and Lynn Dyer, head boys and girls cross country coach.

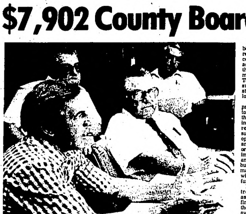
First day of school for teachers will be August 29 with first day for students being August 31.

Our Saviour's Academy Open On August 31

Our Saviour's Christian academy will begin on Wednesday, August 31, at 8:30 a.m. Academy Consists of kindergarten through twelfth grades. Five teachers on the faculty are: Miss Karen Ellertson, Mrs. Jan Galland, Mrs. Lori Trogstad, Mrs. Delores Kading and Mrs. Helen Lerud. Approximately 90 students are enrolled.

RAISING RABBITS seems to be a natural attraction for youngsters, but what to do with the animals produced has been a problem. Local efforts are now being made to develop a market for rabbits on a regular basis, providing an incentive for rabbit production. One pick-up of rabbits is being made here today and another is planned September 28. They are destined for Hillcrest Foods of Hill City, Kansas, which has a capacity for processing 5,000 rabbits a day in state and federal approved facilities. Ed Bjorgaard, whose sons Russell (left) and Eric are pictured above, is heading the local market development effort and notes a meeting of interested growers will be held September 14 at 8 p.m. in the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls. Additional information will be included in a story in Monday's edition of the Times.

Fair Success But Loses $7,902 County Board Told



FAIR BOARD CHAIRMAN Oliver (Skip) Swanson appealed to the Pennington county board of commissioners Tuesday for financial assistance and suggestions on operations for the annual county fair. Despite good weather and good crowds, the 1983 fair showed a net loss of $7,902. Swanson noted that the association is limited in its means of generating income and is therefore unable to materially improve the grounds and buildings. "Just because we broke even on our grandstand attractions, everyone seems to think we had a successful fair," Swanson said. "It was a very good fair from the public's standpoint, but there are a lot of expenses beyond the cost of grandstand performances." Seated next to Swanson in the above photo is county commissioner Glenn Tasa of Trail. In the background are fair board members Bernard Huot and Arlen Ellingson.

Pennington county fair board members brought a report of a successful 1983 county fair but a request for additional county support to the county board of commissioners Tuesday morning. The fair was reported as a success from the public's standpoint but showed a net loss of $7,902 on operations.

Oliver (Skip) Swanson, president of the fair board, told the commissioners that the fair association is limited in its means of producing revenue and is open to suggestions on all phases of its operations. He said attempts are being made to hold the line or reduce expenses, but that improvements to the grounds and buildings, addition of buildings and other means to make the fair more attractive will be dependent on outside funds.

Richard Anderson, treasurer of the fair association, reviewed a financial statement showing the decline in operating funds available to the association. At the end of the 1981 fair, which had income of $44,260 and expenses of $44,836, the fair association had a cash balance of $18,686. At that time the association had done little in the way of improvements to buildings and grounds and had accumulated the balance through operations and interest.

The board undertook an improvement program in 1982 and expenditures of $67,759 far exceeded income of $34,100, leaving the association with a cash balance of $5,036 at the end of the year. Income in 1982 included a $15,000 county contribution — $6,000 more than the $9,000 aid granted in 1981.

In 1983 income grew to $62,323 but expenditures rocketed to $75,281, leaving the association with a debt of $7,902. Anderson said the loss came as a result of three major items. Grandstand attractions had been budgeted to provide a $5,000 profit but produced only $1,200; a $7,500 contribution from the county had been anticipated but none was appropriated; and premiums were increased by about $2,100 to assist in attracting livestock exhibitors.

Grandstand receipts for 1983 were $41,488 — far above the $11,495 spent in 1981 and $13,649 paid in 1982. Expenses, however, were $40,251 compared with $11,286 and $13,835 the prior two years. Main difference was in the Charlie Pride show which was high in cost but attracted large crowds for two performances.

"It would appear to us that it will take in the neighborhood of $14,000 from outside sources to produce a county fair of the caliber we had this year," Anderson told the board. "Our receipts total includes a $2,000 advance from the carnival toward next year's appearance, which in effect leaves us about $10,000 short this year. What we feel we need is $10,000 to balance the 1983 operation and a commitment of $14,000 toward the 1984 fair."

City Helps Jobs, Hears Sewer Woes

Thief River Falls city council responded to questions regarding responsibility for sewer problems, discussed failure of the $20,000 early retirement program to deliver predicted savings, and handled some sticky personnel matters during an exceptionally long meeting last night.

In addition the council passed a resolution of sponsorship for application to the state department of energy and economic development to have a 400 acre site within the city designated as a competitive zone, resulting in tax advantages to businesses located within the zone.

According to a memorandum (prepared by Wayne Faust of the regional development commission, Jerry Sandstrom of Jobs Inc., and city clerk Gerald Wigness, who are working with a committee to prepare the application), the main thrust will be to increase the number of industrial jobs within the community. That letter goes on to state: "the focal point will be the city's leadership in effecting public-private ownership through the purchase of the partly occupied Arctic Enterprise (now called MinnStar) facility which includes 560,962 square feet of buildings located on 100 acres. It is proposed that the complex will be developed as an industrial mall and will offer small business development services to tenants. Arctco would be the "anchor in the industrial mall."

The memorandum adds that the city's direction in developing this complex will permit actions to halt physical deterioration (of the buildings), will contribute to the success of the new Arctco Corporation, and will assure their remaining in Thief River Falls. This is expected to allow broader efforts to attract expanding small businesses into the complex and to other locations in the zone.

Under the program established by the state, competitive zone designation would last for seven years, during which it was estimated that the total tax gain would be $377,000. Sandstrom

Plan Telephone Reassurance Program Here

Telephone reassurance program is being organized in Pennington county by the county social services department to assist older or handicapped persons to feel more secure being alone in their own homes. The service will also provide a social contact for those who are housebound or otherwise isolated.

Telephone reassurance volunteers provide contact as needed to elderly or handicapped persons. The program is being organized in response to a need expressed by such people and their relatives where distance prevents daily direct contact.

Under the program guidelines, the plan calls for the following procedure:

(1) Call at the agreed upon times, let the phone ring at least 10 times.

(2) If no answer is received, repeat the call, letting the phone ring a minimum of 10 times.

(3) If there is still no answer, call the operator and have the phone checked. If the line is out of order, explain the necessity for quick repair. Then call a neighbor of the person to be called and ask that person to call on the client in person to explain why the call did not come through.

(4) If the operator tells you that the number is in working

GENE BEITO of Thief River Falls was presented with a certificate of award from the Minnesota State Patrol on Monday, in recognition of his outstanding contribution in the field of traffic safety. Beito was recognized for his actions at approximately 6 p.m. on July 9, when he was the first person to arrive on the scene of a one-car rollover about six miles west of Trail. With four people trapped in the burning vehicle, Beito risked his own safety to remove one of the occupants, digging with his hands to create a hole large enough to drag Richard John Morrison of Minneapolis out through the window of the overturned vehicle. With assistance of another passer-by, attempts were made to rescue the other three occupants, pulling the handle off a door in an attempt to force it open. Their efforts continued until they were repelled by the intense heat of the fire. Captain Lynn Daniels, who presented the award, credited Beito directly with saving Morrison's life. "I'm pleased to be given this award," said Beito modestly, "but I'm sure anyone would have done the same thing under the circumstances."

Funds Available For Disaster Loan Program

Agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols said that a meeting with state Farmers Home administration (FmHA) director Russ Bjorhus helped clarify some of the confusion and quell rumors regarding the availability of federal low interest emergency loans in the weather disaster impacted Red River valley.

"Farmers in Red Lake, Pennington and Marshall counties are currently eligible to apply for eight per cent FmHA emergency loans under agricultural disaster designations granted earlier this year for crop losses sustained in 1982," Nichols said.

"Director Bjorhus reassured me that there is 'plenty of money available' and that although the federal emergency loan program has no specific state budget, past experience has been that all applications approved have encountered no loan fund shortage," Commissioner Nichols said.

He urges farmers in the three designated counties to take advantage of the current emergency loan application period, taking special note of the deadline dates. Farmers in Red Lake and Pennington counties have until October 5 of this year to apply under the 1982 agricultural disaster designation granted last April 5. Farmers in Marshall county, granted the disaster designation August 12, have until February 12, 1984, to apply for emergency loans. Nichols also noted that the state FmHA director has authority to grant up to a three year deferral of loan payments.

Bjorhus said that of the 128 applications received thus far from Red Lake and Pennington county farmers, 93 have been tentatively approved and are nearing final processing. Additional staffing also has been approved at the district FmHA office in Thief River Falls to expedite the processing of emergency loan applications.

On September 21, Governor Rudy Perpich and commissioner Nichols are meeting with U.S. agriculture secretary John Block to ask for the release of $600 million in economic emergency loan funds appropriated by Congress in 1981 and to change the disaster designation so that farmers who have suffered crop losses in other northwestern counties may also apply. They hope this new money will be released at an interest rate lower than the eight per cent for current emergency loans.

Commissioner Nichols said that the degree of 1983 crop losses remains to be assessed and determinations made by the respective county USDA agricultural disaster committees whether to request federal disaster designation. That assessment and initiative rest soley at the county level, he emphasized.

Hwy. 59 Work Moves Ahead; Caution Urged

Construction on highway 59 has been progressing rapidly since the middle of July, according to A.C. Larson, district engineer. The contractor, Dulninck Bros. and Gilchrist, has completed all bituminous surfacing between Plummer and Erskine and now moved the plant operations to near St. Hilaire. Bituminous surfacing and aggregate shouldering from Thief River Falls to Plummer will be resumed this week.

There will be much activity in the area between First street and county road 62 and motorists are asked to use extreme caution in driving this route, Larson said. There will be paving operations along each side and the center portions alike.

"Thanks to the public for patience and cooperation during this construction; another step forward for Thief River Falls," the engineer added.

Bell Customers To Beware Of Fraud Scheme

Northwestern Bell today advised its customers to be alert for a new, fraudulent long distance calling scheme that surfaced in Minnesota this week.

Reported in several parts of the country, the scheme involves calling cards, the credit cards to which long distance calls can be charged.

It works like this: A customer is contacted by someone who claims to be from the local telephone company. The caller asks the customer to 'verify' his or her calling card number. With this information, the caller then makes unauthorized long distance calls and bills them to the innocent customer's calling card.

Neither the customer nor the phone company discover the fraud until after the customer gets a bill for those calls.

Northwestern Bell uses other methods for discussing calling card problems with customers, so any such call that a customer receives could be assumed to be related to a fraud scheme.

To prevent this type of fraud, customers should not reveal any part of their calling card number over the phone. They are asked to notify Northwestern Bell's business office if they do receive a call asking for their calling card digits.

Plan Telephone Reassurance Program Here

order, call again, allowing a half-hour between calls.

(5) If there is still no answer, move immediately into the emergency plan as prearranged between the volunteer and the client.

A telephone reassurance volunteer will be requested to fill out a short monthly report on the person or persons whom they call. Volunteer should be responsible people 16 years of age or older.

To become a volunteer, contact the Pennington county social services office at 681-2880. After an interview with a social worker who will explain the program in detail, the interested person will be asked to complete an application form.

To receive telephone reassurance in person or for someone else, contact the same telephone number. Following the request, a social worker will meet with the person believed to be in need of the service and attempt to find an appropriate volunteer. There is no fee for the service which is dependent upon volunteer assistance.

Fair Success But Loss Hits Nearly $8,000

Commissioner Albert Koop, who served 22 years on the board of the Pennington county agricultural society prior to its reorganization at the Pennington county fair association, said he recognized the efforts of the fair board in building the county fair. But he noted that the $15,000 given to the association by the county in 1982 was intended to include an advance for 1983 to permit the association to undertake planned improvements.

"I think we all expected you to be back; I know I did," he explained. "I believe you carried out your end of the bargain in making the improvements you talked to us about."

Commissioner Otto Stenberg pointed out the dilemma faced by the board. "We want you to recognize that we are limited to a five per cent increase in tax levy," he said, "while every budget request we have received so far for 1984 is for 10 per cent or more. The problem is how we are going to come up with enough dollars to go around."

Anderson pointed out the commissioners that the board has made serious efforts to cut overhead. He noted that the fair association has lost the revenue from storage which had previously been received from Arctic Enterprises for use of buildings, and expenditure of accumulated funds on improvements had resulted in loss of interest from investments.

County board chairman Roger Hoffman said the board would give primary consideration to the fair association's current year financial plight and would "do the best we can for you" in the overall economic picture. He assured the fair board that a response would be forthcoming when the total budget picture for 1984 becomes clearer, and certainly before the fair association conducts its annual meeting in November.

NOVICE DIVISION winner with a grand championship and high total points at the 13th District horticultural society flower show in Goodridge Saturday was Jeanie Bassett of the Four Seasons garden club of Roseau.

AMONG HER FAVORITE entries at the 13th District horticultural society flower show in Goodridge Saturday, this arrangement by Mrs. Dorothy Svanjord is admired by Patti Radniecki of Thief River Falls. Patti served as floor chairman for the show which attracted 589 entries from eight northwestern Minnesota garden clubs.

Work Begins On Black River Watershed

adjustable to 965 feet to allow management flexibility and to extend the useful life of the pool as sediment accumulates.

District engineer Charles Anderson states in the project report that "the proposed plan is to use 4,000 acre feet of gate controlled water storage to reduce flood peaks on the mainstem rivers. This objective is achieved by designing the outlet works large enough to pass Black River flood flows with minimal loss of storage capability and then closing the control gates when the mainstem peak flows occur." He noted that travel time of flood water from the Black River to Crookston is about 18 hours.

The dam itself will be finished with three-to-one side slopes seeded to grass with a 20-foot wide berm. Top of the embankment will be 16 feet wide. The gated outlet is designed to pass 2,500 cubic feet of water per second with a 13-foot increase in pool elevation which corresponds to a 900-acre feet reduction in available storage capacity. An intake weir with 46 feet of length is provided and includes stoplog bays to adjust the pool level.

Downstream of th intake weir, two 6x14 foot gates will be installed. Conduit through the embankment will be a 12-foot square box culvert. A lower spillway with 152 feet of weir also discharges through the conduit, entering downstream of the control gates.

Plan of operation includes closing the flood gate 60 hours in advance of the predicted crest in Grand Forks above the 46 foot stage or 24 hours in advance of a predicted flood crest in Crookston above the 26-foot stage. Pool discharge would begin when both Crookston and Grand Forks existing and projected river stages are below dangerous flood conditions. Discharge would be at a rate of 1,000 cubic feet per second.

Total estimated project cost is $1,019,000. Funding committed includes $450,000 from the state of Minnesota through the legislative commission on Minnesota resources (LCMR), $335,000 from the Lower Red River watershed management board and $234,000 from the Red Lake watershed district.

TRF To Host League Of MN. Cities Meeting

Organization and hosting of these meetings is accomplished at the local level, with only meeting coordination itself done by league staff. Cooperation by host cities makes the whole operation of regional meetings an easier one, according to league staff, as well as responsive to local perspectives.

During the final portion of the evening program (that begins at 7:30 p.m.), city officials get the chance to quiz league staffers on issues of local concern.

During the month of September, city officials from nearly 500 cities are expected to gather at a series of 15 regional meetings to be held throughout the state to discuss economic development activities at the local level and programs of state assistance to cities and small businesses.

Thief River Falls will host one of the meetings Thursday, September 8, at the Best Western Inn.

The League of Minnesota Cities, a statewide association of nearly 750 cities working together for improved city government and local services, sponsors the series of meetings of its membership each fall.

The afternoon program, directed primarily at appointed city officials and staff, begins at 2:30 p.m., and will feature roundtable discussions of local economic development activities and issues. Officials from the Minnesota department of energy and economic development plan to attend most meetings.

These meetings have traditionally offered elected and appointed officials the opportunity to visit with colleagues from nearby cities and to hear from league staff and LMC board members on issues of importance to the league and to cities. A slide and tape production on the services and structure of the League of Minnesota Cities will be shown during the evening portion of each meeting to acquaint city officials with current league operations and the history of league involvement in legislative efforts on behalf of Minnesota cities.

Workshop On Small Business At Moorhead

Congressman Arlan Stangeland will host two sessions of his fourth annual small business workshop in Moorhead and St. Cloud on September 7.

"If you are interested in starting or improving a small business in Minnesota, I would strongly recommend attending one of these workshops," Congressman Stangeland said. "Scores of our neighbors have found them informative and useful in past years."

Special seminars on "Going Into Business" and "The Necessity of Good Management" will be hosted by experts at both locations.

The Moorhead workshop will begin at 8 a.m. in Room 110 of the King biology hall on the campus of Moorhead state university.

After opening remarks by Congressman Stangeland, the seminar will feature an outline of federal assistance, programs and regulations affecting new businesses by Celso Moreno (Minnesota's director of the U.S. Small Business administration) and Jerald Kluempke (director of information and advocacy for the U.S. Small Business administration.)

The "Going Into Business" seminar in Moorhead will feature Robert Pinkerton (North Dakota's director for the SBA), Leonard Sliwoski (director of the small business development center at Moorhead state university), and Mark Olson (president of Security state bank in Fergus Falls and co-chairman of the Stangeland banking advisory committee).

To reserve a seat or to get more information about either the St. Cloud or Moorhead sessions, call the congressman's toll-free number of 1-800-432-3770.

Council Aids Jobs, Inc. In Asking Grant

estimated that 500 jobs could be created during that time span, with approximately 70 per cent or 371 jobs "qualifying" to permit the employer to receive a tax credit of up to $3,000 per worker. Tax revenues lost would also be reflected in decreased payments to local bodies of government by the state.

Total amount of the city's grant request would be approximately $2.5 million, with the city to contribute approximately 10 per cent of that amount.

Unusual shape of the zone being applied for (seen in the accompanying illustration) results from efforts to include as much of the industrial area within the city as possible. Requirements established by the state, limit the zone to 400 acres within contiguous boundaries, but do not restrict the shape of those boundaries.

Thief River Falls was reported to meet all qualifications for designation as a competitive zone, and is expected to have a very good chance at having its application accepted, since no other cities have announced intent to file applications this year, within this district.

Council was questioned by a number of citizens regarding whether the city's insurance would pay for damages resulting from backed up sewers during the heavy rainfall on Saturday night and Sunday morning. City attorney Bob Wurst commented that he could not represent people in actions against the city, and could only advise that they contact an attorney. City clerk Jerry Wigness noted that insurance hasn't paid on claims of water damage in the past, adding that negligence would have to be proven.

Referring to the seven inch rainfall as a "100 year storm", Alderman Bill Penning noted that the wastewater system could not be expected to handle the kind of overflow which it was subjected to. Bud Enge, supervisor of the wastewater department, noted that the pumps at the lift stations were running full time throughout the storm, handling three times their normal capacity on Sunday. He emphasized that there was no mechanical breakdown, contrary to reports which were broadcast on radio station KTRF.

Considerable discussion centered on the source of the excess water, since legally, drainage from roofs, sump pumps, and storm sewers is not supposed to enter the sanitary sewer system. It was generally agreed that a large number of homes don't comply with that ordinance, however. Since streets were also under water during the storm, water also could have entered the system through manholes and cracked pipes. The wastewater and engineering departments were told to look into a program of inspections to determine the extent of the infiltration problem, with special attention to areas which experienced the most extensive damage.

Discussion on the early retirement plan which was instituted earlier this year, resulted from a report by Mayor Carlson that the public safety committee was recommending David Bjorkman to replace Duane Noel as fire chief. Noel was one of the employees who took advantage of the early retirement program which was instituted in an attempt to save money.

Approximately $20,000 was spent to encourage people to retire, on the principal that money would be saved if they were not replaced with full time people. Carlson reported, however, that after discussing the matter in committee, they were recommending that Bjorkman be hired to replace Noel, and another full-time fireman be hired to replace Bjorkman. He commented that "public safety is a poor place to be cutting costs," noting that he did not want the chief pulling a shift in addition to his supervisory duties.

Noting that some fire departments operate completely with volunteers, Alderman Don Goodrich called for a division of the question, recommending that volunteers could be used to fill the position vacated by Bjorkman. "It's ludicrous not to try it after spending the money on the retirement program," he said. Council voted to accept both recommendations in one motion, with Goodrich casting the only negative ballot.

Council followed that action by voting to accept utilities committee recommendations to: (A) advance Marian Ellingson from category D to category E to replace Hazel Cloutier, effective October 1; (B) hire a full-time person to replace Marian Ellingson in category D; and (C) hire a replacement for Paul Bedard as soon as possible. Later in the meeting, council voted to allow Martin Nelson of the park and recreation department to also take advantage of the early retirement program, although he had declined the offer prior to the June 30 deadline for application.

Hearing was held at the request of a utilities department apprentice lineman who was not recommended for permanent employment following two probationary periods. Recommendation not to rehire the employee was made by the utilities committee, based on recommendations of his line foreman. The employee requested representation by the Teamsters union, with shop steward John Johnson stating that they would file a grievance if the employee was terminated.

Attorney Wurst was asked for an opinion on what justification was required to terminate an employee on probationary status. He declined to give an opinion unless the meeting was adjourned to an executive session, but advised that there was not grounds to close the meeting until litigation was pending. After discussion, with the employee relating his version of circumstances regarding his work, council voted to place him on suspension, with termination to follow in five days. Alderman Goodrich abstained from voting on grounds that he did not have an opinion from the attorney.

In other business the council:

—Voted to discharge a sanitation department employee on the basis of tardiness, and was notified that the employee would not appeal the decision.

—Ordered the attorney to draft an ordinance establishing a policy whereby water and sewer main replacements would be paid for out of reserve funds. New developments would still be assessed for installation, but maintenance after that point would be paid for by user fees. That ordinance will be voted on September 13.

—Heard that three proposals for use of the Carnegie library building had now been received by the finance committee. Those proposals include one from Architect Gerald Mundt, which has been previously reviewed; one obtained by Alderman Don Goodrich, which is architecturally similar to the Mundt proposal, but which would maintain the building for public use, with an addition used as a senior citizen center; and one from Spence Sandford of Cloud-9 Waterbeds, who proposes to use the building for a retail outlet. Finance committee will review the proposals and bring a recommendation to council.

—Approved a request from the retail business association to use the auditorium rent-free for a style show on September 10.

—Approved a request by the Fifty-667 car club to use LaBree Avenue between Second and Third Streets for a car show from 1:30 to 2:30 on September 17.

—Approved participation in the Minnesota emergency employment development act (MEED) which offers to pay up to $4 per hour, plus $1 in benefits, for unemployed people hired, for up to 1040 hours.

—Recommended that the street committee handle purchase of gravel for use on streets and alleys, rather than calling for bids, since the amount involved is budgeted at approximately $3,000.

—Approved reinstatement of two hour parking at cab stalls on the 300 block of North Horace, since the cab company has moved to Dewey Avenue.

—Approved requests to consume alcoholic beverages in Oakland Park for Norwest Bank employees on August 30, and Al and Wally's Country Market employees on September 11.

—Approved board of zoning appeals recommendations to grant requests from Sheldon Buck for a 26 foot rear yard setback, and from James Carlson to construct a garage on the condition that it not extend beyond the front line of his house.

—Accepted the quote of Automatic Overhead Garage Door Co. for two overhead doors at the new municipal service building, at a cost of $4,117.40.

—Accepted the resignation of Arlo Rude, distribution engineer, effective August 31. Rude stated an intention to return to college and obtain his Masters degree. He did not wish to return to public employment.

—Received notice that the nursery school at the Carnegie Library intended to terminate their lease, effective September 15.

—Noted that $655.68 profit had been received from the surplus auction held August 16.

—Noted that the city share of costs for the traffic control signal at First Street, and Highway 59 was $6,163.90.

—Noted that the city's share of the bituminous surfacing and storm sewer construction on the Highway 59 project was $237,524.97.

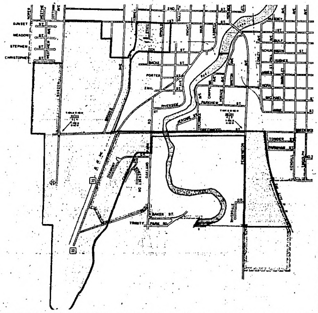
—Heard that a petition was circulating to not install sidewalks on the south side of Highway 59, to save 120 trees. Alderman Penning commented that many of those trees would likely be lost to Dutch elm disease in the next five years anyway, but noted that the hearing process would allow for discussion on the matter.

—Heard that an increase in the number of rats in the city had been noticed.

—Heard a complaint by Alderman Borsheim about trucks parking for long periods of time in front of the ODC on Davis Avenue.

—Noted that the regional league of Minnesota cities meeting is scheduled for September 8 at the Best Western Inn.

—Adjourned until 4 p.m. September 6, to review bids on the downtown alley improvement project.



COMPETITIVE ZONE which the city will be applying for to the Minnesota department of energy and economic development, is indicated by the screened area. Its unusual shape was dictated by an attempt to include as much of the industrial area of the city as possible in a 400 acre site enclosed by a contiguous boundary. Industries located within the area would be granted substantial tax benefits if the application is accepted, under a program developed by the state.

Yes, this is a Wurlitzer. Designed by Wurlitzer. Built by Wurlitzer. Backed by Wurlitzer. No, there hasn't been a value this big, a price this small or terms this easy in years.

There are a thousand tiny details that make the difference between just any piano and a Wurlitzer. It's the wood, not just for the cabinet, for the soundboard, bridge, pin block and back. And it's the way they're crafted.

It's the metals selected for the strings and plate. And it's the way they're designed and formed.

It's the way the keys and the action are made with patented technology. Precise. Uniform.

State Receives More Funds For Highway Work

Minnesota will receive an additional $9.7 million in obligation authority funding for highway improvement projects through September 30, Commissioner Richard P. Braun, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) announced today.

Approval followed a Minnesota request for an additional $41 million in obligation authority funding, because "We had projects ready to go and were able to commit the money by the end of federal fiscal year 1983," he said.

Mn-DOT was able to request the additional spending authority because it already had obligated its federal funds for this federal fiscal year by accelerating Minnesota's highway improvement program for 1983. "This means," Braun said, "the state can proceed with some projects now instead of waiting for the 1984 construction program."

Funds were available because many states didn't have enough projects ready to obligate all of their federal monies before the close of this federal fiscal year.

Monies will be used in the following categories: highway construction, bridge construction and safety-related construstion.

Based on the current allocation funding formula for every $1 Minnesotans pay to the federal highway users' tax, we receive $1 in return. Previously for every $1 paid, the state received $1.20, he explained, so this additional obligation funding is especially needed.

These funds will be an added boost to the state's economy in that over 400 jobs will be created in the private sector. Estimate is based on a formula for every $1 million spent, 42 jobs are created.

Stangeland Fights Milk Assessment

Congressman Arlan Stangeland recently endorsed legislation which will repeal the second 50 cent assessment on all milk sold commercially.

Secretary Block announced the USDA will increase the assessment by 50 cents to a total of $1 per hundred weight on all milk sold commercially September 1, 1983 to September 30, 1984. "Eliminating the assessment is a major goal in our work to reform the dairy program this year," Congressman Stangeland said. "It makes no sense to have USDA collect this fee on September 1, and then have Congress repeal it a few weeks later."

"Nearly everyone in the dairy industry agrees that allowing the second 50 cents assessment to take effect would be a mistake. Our experience with the first 50 cents assessment has clearly shown that dairy farmers are increasing their production in an attempt to make up for their losses from the assessment. At a time when we are having trouble storing today's surplus dairy production, the last thing we need to do is allow this new assessment to go into effect and spur still more production," Congressman Stangeland. "We should not repeat the same mistake on September 1."

"While we are negotiating for a long-term reform of the dairy program, we don't need the problems that a second 50 cents assessment would create," Congressman Stangeland said. "I expect quick action on this bill when Congress reconvenes on September 12."

LONNIE LONGTIN advanced to the rank of Life Scout at a court of honor held recently by Scout Troop 61 in Plummer. He is believed to be the first scout to obtain that rank in the history of the troop. Presently a seventh grader, Lonnie has earned 32 merit badges. Presentation of the award was made by Roger Skjerven, chairman of the Plummer scouting council. Activities were arranged by Jimmy Skjerven, patrol leader.

3 Livestock Auctions Set At State Fair

Three public livestock auctions will be featured at the 1983 Minnesota state fair, August 25 through Labor day, September 5.

An all breed swine auction, conducted by the Minnesota purebred swine breeders, will be held at 6 p.m. Wednesday, August 31 in the swine barn. Nearly 100 of the top-placing boars and gilts in the state fair open class swine show will be offered for sale.

On Saturday, September 3, the Minnesota purebred dairy cattle association (PDCA) will conduct their all breed showcase sale at 7:30 p.m. in the judging arena. Seventy head of dairy cattle including Ayrshires, Brown Swiss, Guernseys, Holsteins, Jerseys and Milking Shorthorns will be auctioned.

Proceeds from the dairy cattle auction will be used for youth recognition awards and PDCA-sponsored programs in consumer education and product promotion.

An auction of 4-H market livestock will be conducted by the Minnesota livestock breeders association at 12:30 p.m. Labor day in the swine barn. Forty lambs, 50 steers and 70 hogs will be available. All animals offered for sale will be purple ribbon winners, representing the best livestock in the state fair's 4-H competition.

At all auctions, buyers must pay on site.

"All fairgoers are invited to visit our display and talk with the people from our different divisions. We'll try to have something for everyone including films, safety demonstrations and even a place to sit down and relax," said DPS Commissioner Paul Tschida.

Public safety employees will provide daily demonstrations including: burglar proofing your home, fingerprinting, smoke detector success stories, and even winter storm survival techniques.

Daily drawings will be held for winter survival coffee can kits, DPS Tee-shirts, operation identification engraving tools and child safety restraints. Free brochures, buttons, litter bags and sun visors will also be given away, as well as balloons and Godfrey the safety gopher coloring books for children.

State patrol will display a 1929 Ford Model A patrol car and 1932 Harley Davidson patrol motorcycle. Driver and vehicle services division will help visitors obtain a computer print-out of their driving record. Natural disaster and emergency preparedness test will be offered by the emergency services division. A car damaged by M-80 fireworks has proven a very popular exhibit the last two years and the state fire marshal's office will again display the impressive damage. Films will be shown throughout the day on a variety of topics including rural crime, safety belts, DWI, home security, emergency preparedness, person protection and child abuse.

"MN Grown" Is Topic Of State Fair Display

Visitors to this year's Minnesota state fair, which opens this Thursday and extends through Labor day, are urged by Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols to tour the agriculture horticulture building exhibits to see the display of farm and garden products supporting the new marketing theme that "Minnesota grown is 2,000 miles fresher."

Exhibits will feature prize winning Minnesota grown fruits, vegetables, grains, oilseeds, honey, dairy products, flowers and foliage plants, under a 12 foot banner "2,000 miles fresher." Visitors can pick up free directories of where to buy fresh produce statewide.

On their way to the state fair, from all corners of Minnesota, travelers will see the "2,000 miles fresher" theme proclaiming this the peak season for Minnesota grown displayed on 118 billboards, bumper stickers, at farmers markets, roadside stands and in a growing number of supermarkets.

Minnesota grown exhibit spectacular will be further accented with 72 hours of educational presentations and demonstrations designed to improve the garden and home food and floral skills of the average do-it-yourself gardeners and homemakers. There will be hourly changes in these programs on the agriculture stage in the building from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily, except for an 11 a.m. start on the opening day and a 2 p.m. cutoff on the final day of the state fair.

Program topics range from raising fruits and vegetables to home freezing of the garden provender, beekeeping and honey production, landscaping, floriculture, flower arranging, lawn care, the stories of wild rice, maple syrup and Christmas trees.

During the entire state fair visitors to the agriculture horticulture building will be able to see and use computers cranking out individual county agricultural profiles, production statistics and rankings. Specially prepared state and world maps will also show Minnesota food and fiber production and end destinations in overseas markets.

New sound proof, telephone equipped booth has been added for use by broadcasters to tape or direct transmit interviews with farm personalities from the state fair.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I am an outraged parent who has just about had it with juvenile delinquency in Thief River Falls. There's "Mother's Against Drunk Drivers" to keep the drunks from killing the kids; well, who's going to keep the kids from killing the kids?

I'm here to tell you that I'm ready to organise and call it "Parents Against Delinquency", as it's definitely too late for the PTA!

Having two sons of my own, I realize there's bound to be friction now and then in a neighborhood if kids don't get along. However, there is at this point absolutely no excuse for the language that was used in my back yard one evening when some local boys were having a little disagreement. What really ruffled my feathers was when they directed it at me, when I was only trying to clear my premises. I just don't believe I or my kids have to put up with it.

I don't understand it. How can there be any control on the kids, when the kids control the parents? It's always been my understanding that if you have kids, then it's your responsibility to raise them and to care what kind of adults they are growing up to be. I mean, they didn't ask to be born, but how can they grow if they have no guidance? And, if you, as parents can't give it to them, isn't it your duty then to see that they get it somewhere else?

I realize that most kids go through the little rebellion era. I remember mine vividly, however in recollections of my most turbulent times, I had one thing going for me that I fail to see in a lot of kids today and that is respect; for parents, for the law, for teachers, for people in general, etc.

Well, what's happening here? Nobody cares, that's what! The kids sure don't, and why should they if their own parents don't? A lot of parents mumble about "the kids nowadays" and this and that. Well, who had these kids and who's bringing them up to become what they are becoming? Wake up, parents, these kids are running the streets and getting into trouble because you are letting them.

Well, it's sad to say, but some of you don't care, it's obvious; and some of you of course just don't have the time. I think you'd better start making the time before it's too late, if it already isn't.

And, I think the rest of us who still care and want to see some respect brought back into our society had also better get off our cans and get it together. If we don't, this once nice town of ours is going to rapidly become a crime pit that not even the law is going to be able to control. Do we want to become what some of our neighboring cities have become? I'm open to suggestions.

ADDITION of a new 3,200 square foot building to the antenna manufacturing facilities of United Satellite Systems prompted a visit from representatives of the Chamber Ambassadors, who recognized the expansion as more progress for Thief River Falls. Ambassadors Bill Duckworth, left, and Dwight Tangquist, right, presented signs denoting the progress to Doug Dehnert, president of United Satellite Systems. Dehnert conducted a tour of the plant, noting that the new building will be used primarily for administrative offices and research and development. Manufacturing operations will continue in the original 20,000 square foot facility. The company employs 28 people in the construction of five sizes of antenna systems, with dishes ranging from eight to 25 feet in diameter.

NEW OWNERS of the Agassiz Chiropractic Clinic, 311 North Main, Dr. Tom Mickelson, left, and Dr. Steve Keogh were congratulated on their new venture and welcomed to the Thief River Falls business community by Chamber Ambassadors Bill Duckworth, left, and Dwight Tangquist, who presented them with their first dollar of clear profit. The two doctors of chiropractic have been associated with the clinic for about three years, but purchased the business from Dr. Ralph Helm on July 1.

Tenth annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club Pigskin Preview will be held Saturday and once again fans will have an opportunity to get an early-season look at the Prowlers, enjoy a tasty barbecued beef dinner and help financially support the many Booster Club projects that aid Thief River Falls sports programs through the purchase of a dinner ticket.

East Grand Forks, Roseau and Thief River Falls junior varsity teams will be on the field for 1 p.m. scrimmages. East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls varsity teams will begin their scrimmage at 3:30 p.m.

A volleyball demonstration will also be presented at 3:30, with the dinner served at 5 p.m. near the grandstand at Prowler Field.

Advance sale dinner tickets, priced at $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for students, are available at athletic director Russ Smith's office and at Dean's Third Street Barber Shop.

Fans will also get a look at an East Grand Forks team that was a state Class A runner-up finisher a year ago at the Metrodome in Minneapolis. But the Green Wave return only one defensive starter and three offensive regulars from the team that lost to Brooklyn Center 30-8 in the state championship game.

"We have the potential to be a good football team," East Grand Forks coach Gary Berg told the East Grand Forks Exponent after welcoming a squad of 47 players for the start of practice. But he didn't predict a 9-4 finish like a year ago. "That would be difficult to duplicate. . . for anybody," he said.

East Grand Forks features a top-notch runner in Steve Ristau and will have good size in 255-pound Randy Gust, 195-pound Chad Bryant and 195-pound Tim Erickson, all interior lineman. They are seniors. The junior class is void of any real size, noted Berg, but the sophomore unit, which last fall was a power in the freshman league that includes Grand Forks, Crookston and Thief River Falls schools, features 220-pound Dave Vonesh, 218-pound Kevin Nunn and 200-pound Chad Grassel.

Ristau, a starter on both offense and defense last fall, and Rod Mosher, who was a back-up quarterback and often-used as a defensive back, will serve as 1983 captains. Not out for football this year is senior Todd Boushee, who was a regular last fall but who has been troubled with a series of shoulder and other injuries.

Sabo, Reds Lose Title Game

Thief River Falls' Scott Sabo gave up just two base hits in ten innings of work but still was the losing pitcher as the Detroit Lakes Angels edged the Crookston Reds 2-1 Saturday in the Region 12 amateur baseball tournament finals at Washington Park in Detroit Lakes.

Designated-hitter Flint Motschenbacher's two-out single in the bottom of the tenth produced the game-winning RBI after a pair of walks issued by Sabo, the University of Wisconsin hockey-baseball player. Only other hit he gave up was a bunt single by Marty Soukup in the fourth. Soukup stole second and scored when Sabo dropped the throw while covering first base on a ball hit to the right of the bag with two out.

Crookston scored in the sixth on an RBI sacrifice fly by Brian Bachmeier, but three times the Reds left the bases loaded and would up leaving 14 runners on base.

Both teams will compete this weekend in the 1983 Minnesota state amateur baseball tournament. Detroit Lakes, Kennedy and Crookston were all deadlocked at 1-1 after the first weekend of the three-team, double-elimination Region 12 tournament that qualified two teams for state tournament play. With a first round, the Reds were assured of a state meet berth and the Angels locked up the other spot Wednesday with a 21-1 rout of the Chiefs.

Both teams play Sunday at Hamberg, southwest of the Twin Cities. Crookston will be on the field at 12-noon and Detroit Lakes is scheduled for a 2 o'clock start. Jordon and Carver of Region 5 will be the opponents for the Angels and Reds.

WINNER OF the 1983 women's city golf tournament championship Tuesday at the Thief River Country Club was Deb Jacobson, who beat runner-up Sylvia Sjoberg by five strokes over the 54-hole event. Jacobson is shown here watching a putt roll toward the cup on No. 2 green during Tuesday's 18-hole championship flight finals.

Jacobson Wins Women's Title

Over the past five years the women's city golf title at the Thief River Country Club has rotated between Deb Jacobson, Marge Corliss and Sylvia Sjoberg. This year it was Jacobson's turn as she won the three-player, 54-hole championship flight with a come-from-behind victory over Sjoberg in Tuesday's final 18-hole round.

Jacobson, who won the club title in 1979, finished with rounds of 42-43 yesterday for a 257 total. Sjoberg, who won the tournament in 1981, had a 169-172 edge over Jacobson through 36 holes going into the final 18 but went 47-46 for a 262 second place total. She was meet medalist, though, with a 39 the first day.

Corliss, who won the event in 1980 and 1982, was well off the pace before Tuesday's finish with a 36-hole 186. She finished with rounds of 42-45 for a 273.

TRF Coaches Expect To Field Much-Improved Football Team

Despite back-to-back winless campaigns and a current 20-game losing streak, the 1983 Lincoln high school football team has a lofty goal: A Class A state playoff berth.

And John Schmitz begins his fourth year as Prowlers' head coach convinced that's an obtainable goal. He figures that the return of nine offensive and seven defensive starters from last year's competitive but luckless 0-9 squad should put the Prowlers in position to challenge East Grand Forks and Crookston for their first-ever post-season game.

"We feel that if we can avoid injuries we can have a good season," offered Schmitz. "With the number and caliber of football players we have returning, we feel we are capable of playing some good football. We should be right in there with Crookston and East Grand Forks for a playoff spot."

Those three northwestern Minnesota rivals remained grouped as Class A independents this fall and have a relatively simple formula for a post-season playoff berth: beat the other two and finish with a winning record. For that the Minnesota State High School League will grant you a playoff berth. East Grand Forks went that route last year and wound up in the Class A finals at the Prep Bowl in the Metrodome.

First the Prowlers must end their frustrating losing streak that dates back to the 1980 season when they lost their final two games in a 4-5 campaign. They were 0-9 in 1981, including two forfeit losses at the end because of a teacher's strike, and they lost all nine starts in 1982 when mistakes (16 interceptions, 29 fumbles, 52 penalties) and lack of offensive production hurt them dearly. They played well for the most part on defense, but they were shut out three times and scored just one touchdown in each of their other five games.

Still they were close in a number of games, losing four of them by one touchdown or less.

"We will be improved," promised Schmitz.

Heading a list of 14 returning lettermen (18 senior lettermen graduated) will be wide receiver-linebacker Steve Wiskow, the 1983 team captain. He caught 10 passes a year ago and played a strong linebacker. "We expect a good year from Steve," predicted Schmitz, "both on offense and on defense. He's our leader."

Thief River Falls' offensive backfield returns intact, although the Prowlers will sport a new look this year with their I-formation. Back are halfbacks Tim Bottem and Rick Spong, fullback Scott Fowler and quarterback Mitch Semanko. Fowler, who moved into the starting line-up late in his sophomore season, is the lone underclassman in the group. Bottem was the Prowlers' top ground-gainer last fall with 420 yards and a 4.7 average through eight games. Spong rushed for 334 yards and had a 3.6-yard average while Fowler had 150 yards and a 2.9-yard average. Senior Scott Jorstad is expected to challenge Fowler for that starting fullback job this fall.

Bottem and Spong provide the Prowlers with what speed the club has, and are expected to be the keys for improved offensive production. "We're looking for real good years from those two," explained Schmitz. "They're definitely two good runners."

Schmitz also looks for improved play from Semanko, who was 14-for-50 passing a year ago, a 28 per cent completion figure, for 103 yards and had six interceptions. Graduated Kerry Wollin did some passing for the Prowlers, too, going 10-for-35 for 182 yards (28.5 per cent) and nine interceptions. "Mitch has been throwing the ball well in practice," mentioned Schmitz. "He has worked on his passing in the off-season and it shows."

Seniors Gary Cornell and Jeff Hamerlinck, plus junior Shannon Kezar, owned starting positions in the offensive line a year ago. The 224-pound Kezar and 212-pound Hamerlinck provide the Prowlers with their biggest set of tackles in recent memory. But the only other 200-pounder on the roster is junior Jeff Johnson, a 205-pound guard.

"We're not big," admitted Schmitz, who didn't say his squad was small, either. "We're average."

Seniors Tim Kruse, Lynn Johnson, Ryan Bakke and Todd Ortloff, plus junior Roger Gonsorowski all figure prominately in the offensive line picture, but positions are far from being set after just one week of conditioning drills.

Defensively, the Prowlers will have ample experience in the secondary and at linebacker. All three deep backs return in Spong, Semanko and Jorstad, along with three of the four linebackers in Kruse, Ortloff and Wiskow. But missing will be linebacker Jim Hallamek, the team's most valuable player in 1982. Bakke, junior Joe Blankenfeld or senior Jeff Langan, a transfer student from Goodridge, all have a shot at Hallamek's former spot.

Across the front defensively, Hamerlinck, Kezar, junior Dan Upham and Jeff Johnson all have their eyes on the two tackle spots while Cornell, Bottem, Lynn Johnson and junior Gus Miller are the front-runners at ends.

Cornell, Upham and sophomore Dave Gobell are all capable of handling the place-kicking chores and Jorstad returns as the punter.

"Most of our people are back," acknowledged Schmitz. "We have the experience. We should be improved."

Serving as assistant coaches again this year will be Charlie Cornell, Tim Olson and Bob Forberg.

Reporting for the start of practice were:

Seniors — Ryan Bakke, Tim Bottem, Gary Cornell, Lee Genereux, Jeff Hamerlinck, Lynn Johnson, Mark Johnson, Scott Jorstad, Tim Kruse, Todd Ortloff, Mitch Semanko, Rick Spong, Steve Wiskow, Jeff Langan and Dirik Schulze, a foreign exchange student from Germany.

That's a squad of 43, down from the 55-to-60 who reported a couple of years ago. A small turn-out of just ten sophomores is a big reason for the drop in numbers, explained Schmitz. Freshman numbers are expected to be up, however, and he's optimistic the squad size will rebound in the future.

Class B, C, D State Meets . . .

Three City Teams Enter Slow Pitch Tournaments

Three Thief River Falls Men's Slow Pitch Softball Association teams will be competing in state tournament play at three different sites this weekend.

American Legion-Miller Beer-TG Sporting Goods will be played in the Class B state tournament at Owatonna; E.T.'s Bees will be entered in the Class C state tournament at Marshall; and Berkner Agency-Best Western Inn will participate in the Class D state tournament at St. Cloud.

All three earned their spots through District 7 tournament play at Crookston. Those Class B and C events were held earlier, with the Class D tournament completed Sunday.

Five Thief River Falls teams played in the Class D district tournament, with Stone's Mobile Radio, Sound Level-Hardees, Nichol's Beauty Nook-Paint & Glass and Wennberg's Welding joining Berkner Agency-Best Western Inn for the 32-team, double-elimination format.

Stone's Mobile Radio actually finished fourth and earned one of six available stae tournament positions, but team members declined to play in the event. Berkner Agency-Best Western Inn placed sixth.

Results at the district tournament for Stone's Mobile Radio included wins over the Bejou Merchants 10-6, Riverside Inn of Hawley 8-6 and Lee's Pro Shop of Mora 10-4 before they lost to Security State Bank of Lindstrom 12-4. Stone's Mobile Radio bounced back to beat Berkner Agency-Best Western Inn 11-7 in an all-Thief River Falls match-up then lost to Ron's Ritchie's Trucking of Mora 8-6.

Berkner Agency-Best Western Inn, meanwhile, beat Delaney Construction of Chisago Lakes 5-3 and Sound Level-Hardees of Thief River Falls 3-1 before losing to Ron's-Ritchie's Trucking of Mora 3-0. They rebounded to beat Barnesville Gold 11-9 and Blackduck 10-9 before losing to Stone's Mobile Radio 11-7.

Security State Bank of Lindstrom defeated Ron's-Ritchie's Trucking of Mora 11-5 in the finals.

Green's Plumbing of Detroit Lakes was a third place finisher in the Class D event at Crookston, with Lee's Sports Shop of Mora fifth between the two Thief River Falls finishers to round out the last of state tournament qualifiers.

American Legion-Miller Beer-TG Sporting Goods and the E.T.'s Bees were District 7 titlists.

Tennis Team Tops Rams 5-0

Fall sports schedule at Lincoln high school officially got underway Tuesday when the girls tennis team collected identical 5-0 varsity and junior varsity wins at Roseau.

Thief River Falls' Early Bird invitational tournament will be held Friday when the Prowlers host Bemidji, East Grand Forks, Crookston and Moorhead in matches that get underway at 10 a.m.

"We're looking forward to having a good year," said Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson, who has the unusual combination of youth and experience wrapped into this year's squad.

There is just one senior on the 21-member team, but five of last year's seven varsity regulars return, including senior Kim Lawrenz, juniors Michelle Olson, Penni Johnston and Natalie Wilson, plus sophomore Connie Grovum.

In yesterday's opener, Olson, Johnston and Lawrenz played 1-2-3 singles, while Wilson and Grovum were paired at No. 1 doubles. Eighth graders Kelly Cornell and Vickie Grovum rounded out the varsity line-up at No. 2 doubles.

Rest of the current squad members included juniors Karla Dick and Jenny Spencer; sophomore Kristen Freeman; freshman Christy Maidment, Karin Schmitz and Carl Offerdahl; eighth graders Missy Hanson, Ann Gobell and Sharon Dosser; seventh grader Amy Isaacson; and sixth grader Rachel Hanson.

Olson invites any other interested sixth-seventh-eighth grader to pick up the needed forms from Franklin middle school assistant principal Mike Novak and report for tennis practice, held at 3 p.m. each week day.

Traditional area power Detroit Lakes should be strong again this fall, predicted Olson, but he feels the Prowlers, Bemidji, East Grand Forks and Crookston should all be improved. "If we improve we'll be battling them (Detroit Lakes)," said Olson. "Looking down the road, we're looking for good success this year."

DNR NEWS

Shining Law

Public should be aware of a change in the law relating to the use of artificial light to observe wild animals, the Department of Natural Resources noted.

For years it has been illegal to use artificial light to observe wild animals while in possession of a firearm or bow. This portion of the law continues in effect but the legislature added a new provision.

It is now unlawful to observe wild animals with artificial light, even without the possession of a weapon, between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. from September 1 to December 31.

An exception is made for raccon hunters, who may use artificial light only while on foot and using dogs.

DNR enforcement director Fred Hammer said the new provision means that persons who want to observe wildlife using artificial light must do so before 10 p.m. or after 6 a.m. between September 1 and December 31.

He added that the Minnesota law is now nearly identical to that in effect in Wisconsin.

Hammer said another change in the law made by the legislature at the last session makes it a gross misdemeanor to take or illegally posses a big game animal during the closed season.

Previously the gross misdemeanor penalty only applied to persons convicted of using artificial light while in possession of a firearm or other weapon capable of killing big game animals, or knowingly transporting a big game animal illegally taken.

June Arrests

Arrests of fish and wildlife law offenders during June under the DNR's Turn In Poachers (TIP) program were centered in northeastern Minnesota, the Department of Natural Resources reported.

TIP program offers cash rewards and preserves the anonymity of persons who provide the DNR with information that leads to an arrest.

During June, conservation officers made 13 arrests using TIP information. Ten of the arrests were made in the northeastern part of the state and 11 were for violations of the fishing laws.

Program generated rewards amounting to $650 during the month, bringing the total to $6,775 paid out.

Since Jan. 1, conservation officers have made 87 arrests with information supplied through the TIP program.

Special phone number has been set up for the convenience of persons supplying information: toll-free 1-800-652-9093.

Trumpeter Swans

Eight rare trumpeter swan eggs have hatched at incubator facilities at the Carlos Avery wildlife game farm near Forest Lake, the Department of Natural Resources announced. Twelve eggs were flown in from the Red Rocks National Wildlife Refuge on June 17.

These swans will be raised and released as a project of the DNR nongame wildlife program.

At 13 weeks of age, the birds will be added to the existing population of trumpeter swans managed by the Hennepin county park reserve district.

Officials said four more years of trumpeter swan releases are planned.

Trumpeter swans are the largest species of waterfowl in North America.

Archery Club Members Are Promoting The Sport

For a nominal fee, explained Dana Klos, there is a family sport available for all ages at the Thief River Falls Archery Club, which is inviting interested area archers to take part in its club activities that increase in enthusiasm as the fall bow hunting season approaches.

"Archery is a lot of fun," said Klos, a spokesman for the club. "It's a real good family sport that doesn't cost a lot of money."

Yearly club memberships are priced at $5 for adults, $2.50 for juniors under the age of 16 or $12.50 for a family.

"We have several families that take part in a number of tournaments," pointed out Klos. "Bob and Diane Puetz participate in tournaments both here and in other communities, and their three children, Michael, Michelle and Christy, take part in the sport by shooting in the club's indoor league during the winter months."

Thief River Falls Archery Club has operated at its outdoor range south of the airport raod since 1952. Described as one of the best ranges in the state north of Minneapolis by club backers, the local range is located 4½ miles south of the city on Pennington Avenue (airport road), one mile west and 1½ miles north, or on the west side of the airport.

There are two courses at the outdoor range: a 14-target bale range used basically by the target shooters, and a 14-target lay-out using dirt mounds to accomodate broadheads used by hunters.

Designated as a 3-star National Field Archery Association field range, the bale range here features shooting at distances that vary from 15 to 80 yards. Shooting four arrows per target, there is a maximum score of 20 points per target and a perfect round is 280 points. No archer has ever shot a perfect competitive round on the course.

A constant supply of animal targets is available for the broadhead range, used heavily in the late summer-early fall as archers ready themselves for the upcoming hunting season. Distances vary from 10 to 50 yards. Shooting one arrow at each target with a maximum score of 20 points per target, there is a 280-point maximum score per round. Several perfect scores have been shot on the course during tournament competition.

"The club has several state and national champions, and members have good success rates during the bow season," noted Klos. "This is probably due to the fine ranges we have to practice on," he said.

Outdoor range is available to club members only, except for Wednesdays when it is opened free of charge to the public from 6 p.m. to dark.

Thief River Falls Archery Club sponsors one open tournament per year, having just completed its 1983 tournament Aug. 6-7 that featured entries from Thief River Falls, Bemidji, Detroit Lakes, Warroad and Canada. There will be a club broadhead shoot Wednesday, September 21, just before the Saturday, September 24, archery deer hunting season opener in Minnesota. Designed as a fun meet, the 6 p.m. broadhead tournament will have a $1 registration fee.

Club officers in 1983 include president Jerry Amundgaard, telephone 681-1369; vice-president Fred Olson, 681-5625; secretary Ed Swantek, 681-6291; and treasurer Tom Molskness, 964-5634. Officers and five directors make up the board of directors for the club. They can be contacted for additional information.

ACTIVE PARTICIPANTS for five years in the Thief River Falls Archery Club, the husband-wife combination of Fred and Dawn Olson completed their shooting and began scoring their arrows on the club's outdoor field range located south of the city on the airport road. Club officials are inviting interested area archers to join the organization. (Submitted photo).

ANIMAL TARGETS are available for shooters at the Thief River Falls Archery Club outdoor range located south of the city on the airport road. Dana Klos and his son, Jon, used the facilities last week. Interested archers are encouraged to join the club, which has been in operation since 1952. (Submitted photo).

The saying, "they breed like rabbits" did not come out of thin air. A single female European rabbit, theoretically, could have 16 million descendents in four years, says International Wildlife magazine.

Tom Seaver Named Chairman Of National Hunting, Fishing Day

Tom Seaver, one of baseball's best pitchers and a three-time Cy Young Award winner, will serve as honorary chairman for National Hunting and Fishing (NHF) Day, September 24, 1983.

"I'm very pleased to have this opportunity to tell people about the importance of conserving our natural and wildlife resources and how hunters and fishermen play a major role in this country's conservation efforts," said Seaver. "Contrary to what many people might think, all of American's wildlife is not endangered. In fact, he said, "the populations of many species are greater now than they were at the turn of the century."

Seaver noted that there are more than 12 million white-tailed deer in the U.S. today, whereas in 1900 there were only about 500,000. Expanding civilization and commercial exploitation had reduced the elk population to about 41,000 in 1907, but today there are more than a half million elk.

"The dramatic comeback of the white-tailed deer, elk and many other species such as wood duck, pronghorn antelope and wild turkey was made possible by conservation programs supported and financed largely by America's hunters and fishermen," said Seaver. Sportsmen's contributions to conservation have totaled more than $5 billion, he pointed out.

Seaver, who is an avid hunter and fisherman when he is not on the mound, began hunting as a youngster. "I started hunting with my father in California when I was about 8. I had a .410, and I'd tag along with him when he'd go quail hunting," he said.

Seaver has had an outstanding career in baseball. In his first year in the major leagues, he was named the National League Rookie of the year. In 1969, he posted a 25-7 record, led the Mets to their World Championship victory over the Baltimore Orioles and earned his first Cy Young Award. He also won the Cy Young Award in 1973 and 1975.

September 24 will mark the 12th annual observance of National Hunting and Fishing Day. NHF Day was established by Congress in 1972 as a means of giving recognition to hunters and fishermen for their many contributions to conservation. National Hunting and Fishing Day is sponsored by more than 40 of the nation's leading conservation organizations including the National Wildlife Federation, Izaak Walton League and the Wildlife Society.

Each year between 10 and 14 million Americans participate in an estimated 2,500 separate NHF Day activities sponsored by Sportamen's clubs, conservation organizations and civic groups.

Hog Prices To Tumble Again; Supplies High

It's the repeat of a performance played many times in the livestock industry: When prices go up because of smaller supplies, producers scramble to "get a piece of the action" by increasing production, notes the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

That's a natural thing to do in the livestock business because producers suffer through many periods of negative returns and when prices get better, they want to make up those poor returns. It's happened again in the hog industry.

Hog producers cut back on large inventories because of poor prices from mid-1979 through early 1982. Prices got better and supplies again predictably grew larger.

The larger breeding inventory and record-large number of pigs saved per litter this spring will push this fall's pork output up 15 per cent from last fall. Currently, the June U.S. hog kill showed 7.15 million hogs slaughtered in the U.S. with average weights of 246 pounds, for a total pork output of 1.76 billion pounds (liveweight).

Minnesota's hog kill of 436,200 head was fourth highest in the U.S., with average weights of 243 pounds. Total liveweight reached almost 106 million pounds.

Price-wise, what's ahead? U.S. borrows and gilts should average $46 to $49 per cwt. for the summer, well below last summer's $62. It won't stop there, through. Prices this fall will slide down even further, to about $38 to $42.

Because of this, producers may already have started to reduce herds. September 1 hog and pig report, released September 20, will give a reading on whether or not this has happened, the statistics service reports.

The nation's count of cattle and calves going to slaughter in June totaled 3.36 million, at average weights of 1,004 pounds per head. The resulting production was 3.38 billion pounds (liveweight) of beef.

In Minnesota, 100,500 head of cattle and calves were slaughtered. Average weights of 1,145 pounds put total liveweight at slightly over 115 million pounds.

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced price meals.

Application forms are being sent to all homes with a letter to parents or guardians. To apply for free or reduced price meals, households should fill out the application and return it to the school. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application will be used for the purpose of determining eligibility and may be verified at any time during the school year by school or other program officials.

For the school officials to determine eligibility, the household must provide the following information listed on the application: names of all household members, social security numbers of all adult household members or a statement that the household member does not possess one, total household income, and the signature of an adult household member certifying that the information provided is correct. Households are required to report increase in household income of over $50 per month or $600 per year and decreases in household size.

Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

Under the provisions of the free and reduced price policy, Ione Gonsorowski will review applications and determine eligibility. If the parent or guardian is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, they may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If the parent wishes to make a formal appeal, they may make a request either orally or in writing to: Charles A. Walrath, 117 Knight Avenue North, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, 681-1539 for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

If a household member becomes unemployed or if the household size changes, the family should contact the school. Such changes may make the children of the household eligible for reduced price meals, or for additional benefits such as free meals if the family income falls, at or below the levels shown above.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a household has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals for them, the household should contact the school for more information.

The information provided by the household is confidential and will be used only for purposes of determining eligibility and verifying data.

In the operation of child feeding programs administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, sex, national origin, age, or handicap. If any member of a household believes they have been discriminated against, they should write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Fine-tune your field speeds.

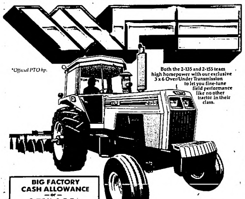
There's probably not a tractor built anywhere that lets you fine-tune field working speeds better than our 2-135 (137 hp*) and 2-155 (157 hp*) Field Boss* tractors. And if you come into the dealership during the next two weeks, we'll prove it.

More field speeds. Our exclusive 3 x 6 Over/Under transmission lets you shift to Under Drive, Direct Drive or Over Drive without touching the clutch. To get more on-the-go lugging power or more speed—whichever you need.

Three ranges in six forward gears means you have 18 forward speeds, including nine speeds between 2 and 7 mph. That's fine-tuning for performance.

Advantages you can see. We can show you other advantages on the 2-135 and 2-155 that you don't get with competitive tractors. And it doesn't cost you a dime to find out what they are. Come in today.

WHITE FARM EQUIPMENT COMPANY



*Official PTO hp.

Both the 2-135 and 2-155 team high horsepower with our exclusive 3 x 6 Over/Under Transmission to let you fine-tune field performance like no other tractor in their class.

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
Pennington County
Board of Equalization
July 11, 1983

Pursuant to Law the Pennington County Board of Equalization met in the Commissioner's room of the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 10:00 a.m. on Monday, July 11, 1983, the 11th of July being the first Monday after the 4th of July.

Members present: Hoffman, Koop, Stenberg, Tasa & Grabanski. All present. Also present: Gerard DeHaan, Leslie Finseth, Dave Olin and Kenneth Olson.

The Board discussed the MinnStar property (formerly Arctic Enterprises). Moved by Koop, seconded by Grabanski to return the value of the MinnStar property back to last year's value of $2,283,200. Assessor DeHaan will mail notice to MinnStar advising them of this action and setting a date for re-evaluation of July 21, 1983 at 7:00 p.m. Motion unanimously carried.

The Board discussed Consumer's Cooperative's request to lower the valuation of their building. Motion by Koop, seconded by Tasa to return the value of the Consumer Cooperative property back to last year's figure of $103,400. Assessor DeHaan will mail notice to Consumer's Cooperative advising them of this action and setting a date for re-evaluation of July 21, 1983, at 7:00 p.m. Motion unanimously approved.

Art and Emma Gustafson appeared requesting a lower valuation on their land in Hickory Township, Section 8. The Board delayed action on this request to get more information on this land.

Gary Paquin had requested to maintain his homestead classification after being gone for 12 months. Assessor DeHaan was of the opinion that this should not be granted. The Board agreed with the Assessor and did not grant homestead classification for 1984.

Assessor DeHaan gave a breakdown of increased or decreased valuation for each township and city.

Assessor DeHaan stated that, under present law, only two local assessors will be qualified for assessing in 1985.

Moved by Grabanski, seconded by Tasa to adjourn to convene on July 21, 1983 at 7:00 p.m. Motion unanimously carried.

At 7:00 p.m. on July 21, 1983, the Board reconvened. Present: Hoffman, Koop, Stenberg, Tasa and Grabanski. Also present were Auditor Olson, Assessor DeHaan, Attorney Olin and a delegation of businessmen and taxpayers concerned with the MinnStar and Consumer's Cooperative properties.

Attorney Olin read a telegram from MinnStar, Inc. stating they object to the valuation set by the Board on July 11, 1983.

The following presented the viewpoint that the valuation should be reduced on the MinnStar property to 1.6 million to insure Arctco's viability, keep jobs in Thief River Falls and maintain a healthy business atmosphere: Chris Twoomey, Arctco; Jim Winjum, VP Jobs; Leo Ruberto, School District 564; Mark Larson, Digi-Key; Gene Beito, President Northern State Bank; Duane Walton and Al Christofferson.

Commissioner Grabanski moved that the meeting be adjourned to reconvene on July 25 at 9:00 a.m. to grant the Board time to petition the Commissioner of Revenue for an extension of the Board of Equalization meeting until August 9, 1983, at 9:00 a.m. Upon request by the Chairman, Grabanski rescinded his motion until the representative from Consumer's Cooperative could be heard. Si Hanson stated that the feelings of the Consumer's Cooperative Board was that if MinnStar's value was lowered it would only be fair to lower the value on the Consumer's Cooperative property.

Commissioner Grabanski reintroduced his motion to adjourn this meeting until July 25, 1983 at 9:00 a.m. to request the Commissioner of Revenue to grant us an extension of time for the Board of Equalization meeting until August 9, 1983, at 9:00 a.m. Stenberg seconded the motion and upon vote, declared unanimously carried.

Chairman Hoffman opened the meeting for discussion.

Moved by Stenberg, seconded by Grabanski to set the value of the MinnStar property (formerly Arctic Enterprises) at 1.6 million and rescind the request for additional time from the Commissioner of Revenue. Discussion was held by the Board members with the suggestion of setting the value at 1.8 million and contacting MinnStar for their reaction. Commissioner Koop felt the value should remain at 2,283,200. Upon call for vote, the motion carried with Koop voting nay.

Moved by Koop to keep the value of Consumer's Cooperative at 103,400. After three calls from Chairman Hoffman the motion died for lack of a second.

Moved by Tasa, seconded by Stenberg to set the value of the Consumer's Cooperative property at 88,900. Upon call for vote, motion carried with Koop voting nay.

Moved by Grabanski, seconded by Koop that the real estate and personal property values as returned by the local Boards of Review, including MinnStar and Consumer Cooperative values, as set by the County Assessor and the Thief River Falls City Council and submitted by the County Assessor, be accepted and approved. Asks Governor Not To Reduce Aid To Cities

Citing the compound impact of recently announced reduction in the 1984 local government aid payment to cities, Mayor Robert Anderson of International Falls, president of the League of Minnesota Cities (LMC), requested Governor Perpich to ameliorate the effect of these reductions including, if necessary, calling a special session of the legislature.

In a letter to the governor, Mayor Anderson explained that cities have just been informed by the department of revenue that proportionate reductions in local government aid (LGA) payments necessitated by a $3.45 million shortfall in the LGA appropriation which provides funds to cities for 1984 city budgets will result in decreases in the amount of LGA payments anticipated by cities, in some cases amounting to as much as a 10 to 20 per cent reduction in local government aid.

"I believe that this impact is unnecessarily harsh. And, while the League of Minnesota Cities has no official policy on this issue, I believe that you should consider such means as may be necessary to fund the LGA formula with the amount of money required. . . to eliminate" these reductions.

"Some cities," Anderson stated, "which had already lost as much as 30 to 50 per cent of the local government aid for 1984 from their 1983 payment, found an additional 10 to 20 per cent reduction to meet the shortfall in the appropriation to finance the 1984 program."

Federal Pay Above Average In Industry

According to the U.S. chamber of commerce, average pay of the federal government's blue-collar workers greatly exceeds average pay for workers in the private sector of the economy.

In 1982, government blue-collar pay averaged $20,629 a year, compared with $16,805 in the private sector, or 22.8 per cent higher.

These figures are worth remembering when you read somewhere that government employees are entitled to catch-up raises to reach the level of similar workers in private business or industry. Bureaucrats claim their jobs are more difficult and complex.

But is that true? "Take postal workers," says Martin Lefkowitz, a senior economist for the chamber. "Is their work more complicated or difficult to perform than the average job in private industry? Yet, postal workers, largely represented by labor unions, earn an average $20,000 a year compared to average pay of $16,805 for private industry."

Marshall Co. Board Grants Attorney Funds

Following a nine-month period during which legal action had been brought and court decision given, Marshall county board of commissioners voted 4-1 last week to provide a budget of $47,200 for the office of county attorney Harold Myhre.

Motion to adopt the budget was made by commissioner Marcella Gonsorowski of Newfolden and seconded by Leonard Stoltman of Argyle. Also voting in favor were Delray Larson of Gatzke and Calvin Melgard of Warren. Kenneth Price of Stephen remained adamant in opposition and continued to vote in opposition to the budget.

The county attorney's budget for 1982 was $30,600. The board had set a budget of $39,000 last December, then reduced it to $33,400 in January. Myhre appealed the budget to district court and two judges ruled that $47,200 was a "modest budget."

Myhre, who has been county attorney for 15 years and assistant county attorney for 10 years prior to that, will receive a $25,000 salary for his work as part-time county attorney. Remainder of the budget will include $10,000 for salary of two part-time assistant county attorneys; $6,200 for a secretary's part-time salary and $6,000 for office and machine rental.

The Marshall county board also approved a motion to pay $3,702.50 to Curtis L. Charlson of Thief River Falls for legal fees as Myhre's attorney in the appeal. That action was directed by the district court.

In making the motion to adopt the budget, commissoner Gonsorowski said she was doing so to "relieve us of the torment of this issue."

Urges Juniors And Seniors To Take ACT Test

As a new school year begins, Lincoln senior high school juniors and seniors should give some thought to participation in the ACT assessment program, according to Whitey Olson, school guidance director.

The ACT assessment, which consists of four academic tests that measure educational development and a detailed questionnaire that collets information relevant to educational and career planning, is recommended or required by more than 2,700 post-secondary institutions and scholarship programs.

The Lincoln guidance office recommends that students participate in the ACT assessment program during the junior year or early in the senior year, so their results will be available in time for use in planning for post-secondary education and careers.

Students can obtain registration packets that contain all the information necessary to register and prepare for the assessment from the guidance office. The basic registration fee for the assessment is $9.50.

For 1983-84, ACT has established test dates of October 29 and December 10, 1983; February 11, March 31 and June 9, 1984. Respective registration deadlines for these tests are September 30 and November 11, 1983; January 13, March 2 and May 11, 1984.

It takes about three hours to complete the four ACT examinations in English, math, social studies and natural sciences. A sample copy of a full-length test is available in every high school. Students who would like to have copies of additional tests may obtain them at cost from ACT.

The ACT assessment also includes a two-part questionnaire that students complete at home when they register. The questionnaire focuses on the student's interests, academic and nonacademic accomplishments, and vocational and educational plans and needs.

Colleges use information from the ACT assessment program for academic advising, admissions counseling, course sectioning and placement, student services, and institutional research. ACT assessment reports are sent to students, their high school counselor, and only those institutions and agencies specifically designated by the student.

For more information about the ACT assessment, see Olson at Lincoln high school.

Year-Around Duluth Port May Be Reality

A plan authored by Congressman Arlan Stangeland to provide for "year round" shipping through the Port of Duluth has been approved by the House committee on public works and transportation.

The "Stangeland Plan" for an extended shipping season on the upper Great Lakes was incorporated into the 1983 water resources bill, which was passed by the committee on August 3, as Congress began its summer recess.

"This bill would certainly help Minnesota farmers and other taxpayers," Congressman Stangeland said. "By keeping Duluth open longer, farmers could market their crops in a more orderly fashion. It would allow them to sell later in the year when prices are better, and it would reduce their transportation costs."

The plan would help taxpayers by eliminating duplicate costs for the Coast Guard and the Army Corps of Engineers, and by increasing farm income.

As passed by the public works committee, the Stangeland plan would call for annual environmental studies on the impact of keeping the upper Great Lakes open for shipping during winter months. Those studies must be completed no later than June of 1989.

Stangeland, a four-term House veteran and the ranking Republican on the House water resources subcommittee, proposed the plan in 1981. If the final version of the water resources bill includes the current authorizations of ice-breakers and other equipment for the project, technical legislation on implementing the plan will follow quickly.

Other provisions in the Water Resources bill which will affect northwest Minnesota include:

+$1.4 million to remove silt and aquatic growth from Sauk lake in Stearns county. The area affected is near Sauk Centre.

+$200,000 for a flood control project near Noyes.

+$300,000 to correct bank erosion which is threatening a highway and bridge near Gentilly.

+$200 million for an environmental protection and water resources monitoring program for the Upper Mississippi river system.

The bill includes no new user fees on the inland water system, a provision that will keep transportation costs down for farmers and other workers whose goods are shipped on the system, Stangeland said.

Declines Seen In Nearly All State Crops

Production declines are forecast in all crops except rye, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. The August 1 forecast is based on conditions and estimated yields reported by farmers, objective yield surveys, and field observations. Yield may change later in the growing season depending on weather conditions. This report does not take into account the hot and dry weather the first part of August. The first forecast for sunflowers and fall potatoes will be October 12.

The state's corn output is forecast at 498.2 million bushels, down 32 per cent from last year. Yield is estimated at a record 114 bushels per acre, up one bushel from last year. This yield assumes normal weather conditions for the remainder of the growing season. Weather conditions after August 1 will influence future monthly forecasts.

Soybeans are forecast at 156.4 million bushels, down 10 per cent from 1982. Yield at 34 is down two bushels from last year.

The spring wheat crop is estimated at 83.6 million bushels, down 31 per cent from a year earlier. Yield at 40 bushels would be the same as last year.

Expected durum wheat output at 1.41 million bushels is down 54 per cent from last year. Yield is forecast at 37 bushels, down two from last year.

Oats production at 80 million bushels would be down 26 per cent from 1982. Yield is estimated at 64 bushels, down four bushels from the July 1 forecast.

Barley growers expect a crop of 49.6 million bushels, down three per cent from last year. A yield of 58 bushels would be down two bushels from last month's forecast. The rye crop forecast of 3.1 million bushels would be up 65 per cent. Yield is estimated at 32 bushels per acre.

Dry edible beans are estimated at 638,000 cwt., down 33 per cent from 1982. Flax production at 1,015,000 bushels would be down 38 per cent from 1982. The summer potato crop is forecast at 1,377,000 cwt., down 27 per cent from last year. Yield estimated at 270 cwt. per acre is down 15 cwt. from last year.

Alfalfa production is estimated at 6.11 million tons, down two per cent from 1982. Other hay at 1.85 millions tons is down four per cent from last year. The sugarbeet crop is estimated at 4.53 million tons, down five per cent from last year.

Set Community Health Service Week In State

Governor Rudy Perpich has proclaimed August 28-September 3 to be community health services week in Minnesota.

The governor's proclamation honors state and local government officials, advisory committee members and medical consulatants who make up the state's community health services (CHS) system. Set up under a state law passed in 1976, the CHS system is a network of 47 local health agencies, serving all but one of Minnesota's 87 counties.

With the support and assistance of the state health department, the CHS agencies provide a variety of public health services to the local community. The CHS law calls for "programs designed to prevent disease, promote health, provide alternatives to institutional care and provide a community focus for citizens' efforts to be responsible for their own health," Gov. Perpich noted in his proclamation.

Some 260 state and local officials, representing all segments of the CHS system, are expected to attend the sixth annual Minnesota boards of health meeting, August 31-September 2, in Brainerd.

FmHA To Open Area Office In Crookston

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has received guarantees from the Farmers Home administration (FmHA) that an office will be opened in Crookston to provide better service to farmers before the end of the year.

"We are currently looking for office space in Crookston and our plans are to open a new office there by no later than December, 1983," Stangeland was told by Minnesota's FmHA director, Russ Bjorhus. Stangeland had asked Bjorhus to open a new office at Crookston on August 1.

"There are so many families involved in farming in northwest Minnesota that it seemed necessary for an additional office to handle their needs," Congressman Stangeland said.

At the Congressman's request, Bjorhus made a study of workloads at the three area FmHA offices at McIntosh, Thief River Falls and Warren. "Our study shows that the area would be better served by four offices," Bjorhus said.

"I am very pleased with the decision to open the office at Crookston," Congressman Stangeland said. "Hopefully, farmers will find it more convenient when applying for loans or help with red tape."

Becky is a water baby — one part mermaid, three parts fish. We took her to the lake this summer, and she splashed and tumbled in the water joyously. I had to watch her every minute. I finally had to take her out by force — much to her consternation and objection. It took some doing to distract her.

Actually, it's relatively simple to comfort a small child whose wishes have been thwarted. A toy, a cookie, sometimes a loving hug will turn the trick.

But how about grown-up frustrations? When sick with disappointment, heartbroken or dejected by a bad turn of events, where can an adult turn for consolation and support?

God's Church is the mainstay to every situation. Radiating God's goodness, it offers reassurance and relief to the baffled and the hopeless. Men turning toward its promise find new confidence and faith and hope recovered.

But why?

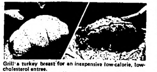
Ideas From The Reynolds Wrap Kitchens

GRILLING BRILLIANTLY



Grill a turkey breast for an inexpensive low-calorie, low-cholesterol entree.

Barbecuing is a time-tested favorite American lifestyle but many people limit their outdoor cookery to the basics—hamburgers, hot dogs and the like.

Now there's a cookbook that can help uncover the secrets and teach techniques for every type of "grillery" from low-budget dinners to the fanciest clambake. Step-by-step instructions take you through choosing the best barbecue grill for your family and outline the accessories that aren't frills but important necessities.

There's a wealth of time-saving ideas for today's busy families.

More than just a recipe book, Barbecue! is a guide book from the nationally famous Reynolds Kitchens that provides cooks with directions on preparing everything from beef and pork to lamb, game, seafood and a delicious display of side dishes.

The book is published by Random House. Priced at $9.95, it's available at book and department stores.

Here's a sample suggestion:

GRILLED TURKEY BREAST WITH VEGETABLE CASSEROLE

- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen broccoli spears
- 1 medium onion, parboiled and quartered
- 1 can (11 oz.) Cheddar cheese soup
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1/2 cup soft bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons melted butter

Partially defrost broccoli and cut into one-inch pieces. Place in Redi-Pan Square Cake Pan with onion. Combine soup and milk. Add to vegetables. Top with combined bread crumbs and butter. Cover with aluminum foil and cook 25 to 30 minutes over medium, indirect heat. Remove aluminum foil for last ten minutes.

Tie the thawed turkey breast to form an even shape. Thread on spit and brush with butter. Baste with your favorite sauce. Roast over medium, indirect heat for one and a half to two hours.

Let's Demand Action

Following editorial is from the Pope County Tribune:

The federal government is very likely going to end this fiscal year with a deficit of over $200 billion, and it has a lot of economists worried.

Congress, in fact, is even considering tax increases to partially offset projected huge deficits in the future.

But what would you say if a reputable individual who has made a detailed study told you that the nation could eliminate its deficits merely by eliminating government waste, duplication and "log rolling."

The individual is J. Peter Grace, who has been chief executive officer of the $6 billion a year W. R. Grace Co. since 1945.

Next month or possibly in October, Grace will issue a report, which has been a year and a half in the making, as chairman of President Reagan's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control.

Grace points out that government spending is out of control, waste is boundless and members of congress have shirked their responsibilities because they are interested only in their reelection. This not surprising to most Americans.

The Private Sector Survey on Cost Control is a volunteer group of business leaders who were asked by the President to uncover waste in the federal government.

Grace and his group discovered over $340 billion in government waste over a three-year period, plus another $60 billion lost from poor handling of federal funds.

Responding to charges that the survey is composed of "do-gooder business types" who have overstated actual waste levels, Grace said he and the others had barely scratched the surface, and that if they had time, they could easily double the $400 billion waste they discovered.

Grace predicted that between a third and a half of the survey's recommendations will be implemented within three years and well over half within 10 years.

However, Grace was not at all optimistic about the changes that have to be adopted by the legislative branch. "It's only going to get done if the people demand it," he said. "Members of congress have a racket for themselves. They have 200 different communities that are trading off against one another."

The "big spenders," he charged, actually increased their numbers by 48 in the last election, and because it works politically to spend federal funds, it will take a lot of pressure to get changes.

"Bracket creep" has forced up the average individual income taxes by 27 per cent in the last 10 years, and people are starting to squirm. "When people realize how dishonest all this is and how immoral it is, they're going to demand something, but I don't know exactly what it will be."

The high federal (and state) taxes have forced more and more people into the untaxed "underground economy," which has grown from an estimated $30 billion eight years ago to $95 billion this year.

Some of the problems mentioned by Grace include: more people drawing government benefits than are paying taxes; welfare recipients paid 140 per cent of the minimum wage removing the work incentive; a defense budget loaded with "pork"; 20-year military retirements which the nation cannot afford; subsidized electricity in the Northwest and through the TVA.

What is frustrating to the American taxpayer is that he knows the waste is there, but because of special interests, no one can convince congress to act. But one day perhaps the taxpayers will revolt and elect a new congress that will do something about the obscene amount of waste on the federal level.

Unfortunately, that day is not here yet, but if the present amount of spending persists and taxes continue to climb, people are going to demand action.

Our Mental Environment

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

An interesting article in a recent issue of U.S. News & World Report is headlined, "Lifestyle of the 1960's: Anything Goes."

It is reassuring, however, to read that there has been a change in adult relationships: "Monogamy is in, and promiscuity is out almost everywhere." The reasons may not be as noble as one might wish. Fear of herpes and the deadly AIDS, acquired-immune-deficiency syndrome, which leaves the body defenseless against disease, is one reason for the change, according to the writer.

The article adds that "in a period of uncertainty, people want romance again. They want relationships that are intensely personal, filled with affection."

Yet even as we read of renewed emphasis on what has always been considered good moral behavior, supporters of Rep. Gary Studds of Massachusetts hailed him as a hero on his first trip home after censure by Congress for having a homosexual affair with a young House page. "Studds waved a clenched fist and flashed a victory sign to the applauding onlookers along the route," a daily newspaper story reports.

No one should be anxious to cast the first stone, and we would not suggest that Studds should face some cruel punishment for his deed. But a hero's reception: In an editorial discussion of the two censured congressmen who some years ago engaged in sexual relations with teenages pages, the highly respected Christian Science Monitor puts it this eay:

"Indeed it is sad that elected public servants should have fallen prey to behavior that damaged not only their own integrity but that of two young persons whose welfare should have been carefully protected, even if the young people did not have the good sense to protect themselves."

The Monitor raises an interesting point as the editorial continues:

"Much is made these days of purifying the physical environment. How about a nation's mental environment — the environment in which intellectual, political, and social ideas are born, in which laws are made, social institutions function, new generations are raised? Should this not be protected with even greater zeal?

"Surely that is a central purpose of Christianity — to protect and elevate society by requiring a purification of individual thought and action. To refrain from murder, adultery, theft, perjury not only enobles individual character. It preserves the community as a whole, bringing under control the brutish elements of human nature that cause anarchy and violence. No society can function without the cement of moral order.

"If today there seems to be confusion and instability in many aspects of life, perhaps it is because the moral structure is not as strong as it should be, because so much immorality and amorality escape public judgment. Without fear of being thought self-righteous or old-fashioned, citizens and their leaders might consider the consequences of apathy to the fundamental virtues. Perhaps here lies the answer to such problems as economic instability, political turmoil, nuclear uncertainty. For without that binding glue of morality, the national social, political, and economic fabric suffers severe disruptions."

It simply is not right for a public official to argue that his behavior in private is his own business and that the public should judge him only on how he represents his constituents. Americans still have a right to expect decent moral behavior from their representatives. The Monitor is right when it says that no society can function without the cement of moral order.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Plain old English is often far more effective than the stilted language adopted by government officials. Consider the case of the plumber who wrote to the U.S. bureau of standards, stating that he has found hydrochloric acid good for cleaning out clogged drainpipes.

"The efficacy of hydrochloric acid is indisputable," the department replied, "but the corrosive residue is incompatible with metallic permanence."

The plumber wrote back he was glad the department accepted his method.

"We cannot assume responsibility," the department responded, "for the production of toxic and noxious residue with hydrochloric acid and suggest you utilize an alternative procedure."

Again the plumber wrote that he was glad the government thought his idea was O.K.

In desperation the department abandoned its federalese. "Don't use the hydrochloric acid," the final letter stated. "It eats hell out of the pipes!" That message was understood.

"I'm looking for a man," the college coed mused dreamily, "whose slightest touch will make me tremble all over."

"Come with me," her roommate offered. "I'll introduce you to my dentist."

Washington Report

Sen. Dave Durenberger

The recently signed 5-year grain deal with Russia, coupled with the settlement reached with China on textile and clothing imports, is the best news the American farmer has had in a long time. The agreements are signals from a skeptical world that other countries believe we are a reliable trading partner.

The United States will remember the lessons of the past before using export controls as a foreign policy measure again.

Russians didn't go hungry without our grain. They didn't pull their troops out of Afghanistan, either. They simply turned to another country to supply their grain needs in our place.

When we imposed sanctions against the Soviet Union to delay construction of their natural gas pipeline to protest martial law in Poland, construction didn't stop. Martial law wasn't lifted, either. Instead, when U.S. companies stopped exporting equipment to Russia, foreign competitors jumped in and took over their business. U.S. companies lost over a billion dollars in export revenues and 25,000 American jobs.

When the U.S. tightened clothing and textile imports from China, they in turn said no to 75 per cent — $1 billion worth — of our agricultural products into their country.

The Export Administration Act of 1979 is set to expire on September 30, and when Congress debates renewal of the act, it will have the opportunity to reinforce our trade reliability stature.

The 1979 act gave the president broad authority to use sanctions and embargoes to achieve foreign policy objectives for national security reasons. The White House wants that authority intact.

But Congress has learned from past experience, and the new act, the Export Administration Amendments Act of 1983, will reflect that experience.

The new act will establish a fair and necessary balance between our country's national security concerns and the increasing need to protect our exports and export-related jobs.

The new act requires that the full implications and probability of success be spelled out explicitly before any sanctions or controls can be considered against any country.

Under the new EAA, Congress would have to be consulted before any decision could be made to impose foreign policy export controls.

The act obligates the U.S. to seek agreement from other nations to limit the availability of their product before we sanction ours.

And most importantly, the new EAA contains a sanctity of contract provision. Existing agricultural contracts with other countries could not be broken.

The new act is the beginning of a new era of growth for the American farm economy. It reflects the lessons we've learned and the importance of agricultural trade to our economy.

The 5-year agreement with the Soviet Union also emphasizes the importance of sanctity of contract legislation I introduced in Congress last year and the president signed into law. The legislation stops embargoes and ensures the world that the United States will be a reliable trading partner.

After the agreement with the Soviet Union was signed, Don Loeslie of Warren, Minnesota, President of the National Wheat Growers, said: "Senator Durenberger's Sanctity of Contract legislation was the first real step in bringing the countries together rather than confrontation. Sanctity of Contract was the bridge to a Long-Term Trade Agreement and the Long-Term Trade Agreement is another bridge leading to overall better relations between the two countries. . . and agriculture is leading the way."

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Poverty: The quality of state of being poor or indigent; want or scarcity of means of subsistence; indigence; need; destitution.

That is how Webster's Dictionary defines poverty. The federal government has its own definition. According to the bureaucrats in Washington, the official definition of poverty in 1982 is $9,862 for a family of four. The U.S. Census Bureau has announced, with considerable fanfare and media attention, that by their definition 34.4 million Americans — or 15 per cent of our population — were "poor" in 1982. This is the highest percentage of officially poor Americans since 1965.

The liberal politicians and the poverty bureaucrats responded gleefully. See, they squealed, those "massive" budget cuts are making the poor get poorer just like we hoped (oops), predicted all along. Reaganomics is swelling the ranks of the poor. This recent report, they explain, means that we must spend billions more to "cure" poverty — and hire more bureaucrats to administer new and more expensive programs.

Thirty-four million impoverished Americans is a frightening thought. It would be even more frightening if it were true.

Far be it from me to suggest that our hard working bureaucrats have told a fib in reporting the latest proverty numbers, but it appears that in their haste to release numbers designed to embarrass the Reagan administration, and justify increased government spending, they have ommitted a small detail. It probably didn't strike them as important. It's just a little thing.

What they left out of their report — and the media left out of the headlines — was that these poverty figures do not include more than $72 billion in "in-kind" transfer payments. Things like food stamps, free medical care, subsidized rents or government housing.

Oh, I suppose a government that is spending more than $800 billion might forget about a piddling number like $72 billion. But before we rush out in a panic about the prospect of 34 million poor people we might consider that if this $72 billion in transfer payments were included in calculating incomes, it would reduce the number of people below the poverty line by more than 40 per cent. Thus the true number of individuals with a family of four income below $9,862 is 8.7 per cent, not 15 per cent.

The true poverty numbers are even lower than that if one could factor in the underground economy, now estimated at more than $200 billion.

How much of this unreported income, in the form of tips, off-the-books cash income or income from illegal sources, flows to technically poor Americans cannot be known. But even a small portion of that $200 billion would lower the true poverty numbers.

In their rush to rush to justify more government spending and higher taxes, the liberals have also downplayed the fact that these poverty figures are for 1982, a year of recession, and do not reflect the recent recovery this year that has created more than 2 million new jobs.

As a taxpayer who helped pay the salaries of the bureaucrats who came up with such distorted numbers I am angry. If a private business cooked numbers this way, they would face the justifiable wrath of the Federal Trade Commission for false and misleading advertising.

Whatever the true number of poor Americans, however, it is too high. Our goal as a nation must be to enact policies that reduce and ultimately eliminate poverty throughout the country. The political question is just what policies will work.

We know from experience that massive government spending is not the solution. Rather than eliminating poverty, these giveaway programs have created a situation where the poor have every incentive to stay on the dole and disincentives to work. Sadly, this suits the poverty bureaucrats whose justification for their jobs is a steady and growing constituency of the poor.

The alternative to government handouts — financed by ever increasing taxes — is a policy of economic growth. Between 1949 and 1964, before the Great Society and its many programs to redistribute income, the percentage of families in poverty fell from 32.7 per cent to 18 per cent. The anti-poverty program which brought this dramatic reduction in the ranks of the poor was a policy of economic growth which created real jobs and opportunities for all Americans.

Congress and the administration must resist the self-serving efforts of the poverty bureaucrats to engage in more and larger welfare programs, programs that only serve to entrap lower income Americans into dependency on the bureaucrats and politicians and that impoverish working men and women through higher taxes.

Rather than redistribute income, the government should get out of the way and allow Americans to create more jobs and more wealth. It is the only policy which has ever helped the poor. And it is a policy which — witness the present recovery — is working today.

THEN and NOW!

A lot of people have been pleased to find their fears of our environment were unfounded, when it comes to oil production in Alaska.

THEN: In 1968, the giant Prudhoe Bay oil field was discovered by Atlantic Richfield Company, just 1500 miles from the North Pole. It was—and still is—the largest oil and gas deposit yet found on this continent. Working with concern for the environment, all the activity required to get the oil out of the ground and down to the lower states, where energy is needed, has had little permanent effect on wildlife in the area. There are a lot more animals around there than many people realize. The short Alaskan summer features the midnight sun and temperatures that reach the 80s. That part of Alaska is a breeding ground for hundreds of thousands of migrating birds and a route of the caribou in their annual migration to traditional calving grounds. Since 1969, naturalists have found that the effect of the oil production on the environment has been neither permanent nor damaging.

NOW: More than $8 billion has already been spent to develop the Prudhoe Bay field. Another $10 billion is likely to be spent before the end of the century. A major part of this money will be spent on a massive water flood program that will help to sustain the daily production rate at one and a half million barrels for as long as possible. Nature has worked wonders in creating a reservoir the size of Prudhoe Bay, whose remarkable contents represent almost 30 percent of all the nation's known oil reserves and 11 percent of the gas reserves. Its holdings in Prudhoe Bay also make it possible for the Atlantic Richfield Company to produce the nearby Kaparuk Field, and that opens the door to further development in the Beaufort Sea. It could mean much more energy for America and an environmental protection record of which the people at Prudhoe can be proud.

Says Ontario Harassment Should Stop

"The continuing patterns of harassment of Minnesota resorters and tourists must stop," Congressman Arlan Stangeland said Thursday. "Periodic attempts by Ontario officials to disrupt our sports fishing and hunting industries don't help us in resolving mutual problems."

Congressman Stangeland was particularly disturbed by this week's actions. On Monday, Ontario officials ordered U.S. vessels to return to Minnesota until they had registered at ports of entry. For some fishing operations, that would require a 90-mile trip whenever they entered or left Candaian waters.

"This was a frivolous and unannounced action," Congressman Stangeland said. "I called the Canadian embassy in Washington on Tuesday and a letter was sent from the Canadian federal government telling Ontario to relax this regulation.

"But the incident was more than frivolous for some resorters," he added. "Their customers demanded refunds and cancelled reservations because of this arbitrary policy."

Congressman Stangeland personally contacted officials in Canada later Tuesday, seeking a meeting for a long-term solution to the on-going disputes. Since June, he has repeatedly requested such face-to-face discussion.

"Some of their officials are still unavailable, so now we should move ahead without them," he said. "We must have a solution that lasts."

Congressman Stangeland noted that he believes he has been more than cooperative with Ontario officials in seeking a resolution.

"I won the fight to maintain hours at border crossings that provide medical and fire-fighting services to Canadian border communities," he said. "I offered to spearhead international efforts to replenish fish resources in border waters. I even eased tensions by helping to persuade Minnesota resorters to get Ontario work permits.

"On the other hand, Minnesota has been lenient," he added. "Workers from Canada cross our border freely to jobs in our towns, our lakes and forests, and our raillines. Someone over there must realize that we want to work with them in solving problems."

Negotiation, not confrontation, is the way to handle the border problems, Congressman Stangeland said.

COUNTRY FOUR

The Oak Ridge Boys will perform at 6 and 9 p.m. Friday Sept. 2 at the Minnesota State Fair Grandstand. The gospel music-oriented group went country in 1977 with hit singles "Y'All Come Back Saloon" and "You're The One," and have since bridged the gap from country to pop music with "Elvira," "Bobbie Sue" and "American Made." Appearing with the Oak Ridge Boys will be Lee Greenwood. For ticket information, write Minnesota State Fair, St. Paul, Minn. 55108.

565 Youth Had ICCC Program Summer Jobs

Young people provided special programs and services this summer as a result of youth employment programs offered through inter-county community council, Oklee.

Students in the seven-county area performed a variety of jobs in nursing homes, hospitals and schools. Some worked outdoors in wildlife refuges and on farms, while others gained experience as gas station attendants and clerks in offices and stores.

In Thief River Falls, Lincoln high school provided three special education teachers to supervise 13 handicapped youth in summer jobs. Among the projects undertaken by these young people were preparation of city hockey rinks for the coming season, planting and caring for flower beds, general clean-up and maintenance of areas throughout the city.

Mary Lou Harthun, youth programs director, said that programs were operated in Kittson, Norman, Marshall, Pennington, Polk, Roseau and Red Lake counties.

Total of 565 youth worked in private businesses, public and non-profit agencies. Inter-county community council provided wages or training subsidies made available through the governor's youth program and the comprehensive employment and training act.

Harthun said that many of the workers were from families with low incomes. Most of the summer jobs ended August 12.

BSU Develops Programs For BS In Nursing

Bemidji state university (BSU) will initiate an upper division nursing program during the 1983-84 academic year to provide baccalaureate preparation for graduates of associate degree and diploma nursing programs.

Need for a nursing degree was documented in a federally funded study conducted in 1979 by the Agassiz region nursing education consortium. Planning was made possible by the Itasca nursing education consortium, formed in 1980, and funding from the Blandin foundation helped the consortium develop an articulated program among those institutions.

Program design was set into motion in mid-1982 under the supervision of Joelyn Scriba, planning director and associate professor of nursing at BSU. Developed in cooperation with 14 public and private post-secondary institutions across northern Minnesota, the BSU curriculum builds upon lower division preparation, such as associate degree and diploma programs, toward requirements for a bachelor of science degree.

Approximately half of the credits in the program are nusring courses, with the remaining classes in other disciplines and liberal education curriculum.

Emphasis of the program is on health care for all age groups in community settings, leadership or management roles, addressing changing societal needs, and the study of nursing as a discipline. BSU provides the only state-supported baccalaureate nursing program in north-central Minnesota. The program received recent approval of the state university board and special allocation from the Minnesota state legislature.

Plans are being made to provide accessibility for non-traditional students, with late afternoon and evening courses planned, plus curriculum components at outreach sites. Students may enroll on a part-time or full-time basis.

The department, within the division of science and mathematics, offers its first courses winter quarter. Students entering theprogram may enroll in non-nursing classes fall quarter. Selected offerings within the curriculum are open to all registered nurses.

Students may obtain more information or enroll for classes by attending a "Give Yourself Credit" session in the Bemidji state university Hobson memorial union, August 23, beginning at 5:45 p.m.; or by contacting the admissions office, Deputy Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN. 56601 (218-755-2040) or by contacting Joelyn Scriba, Deputy Hall, BSU (218-755-2016).

Records Set In July For Barge Shipped Crops

July was a scorcher for grain and oilseed exports via barge as well as in temperature, according to Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols, reporting a beneficial surge in cash flow for crop producers.

All time weekly barge shipment records were shattered consecutively the last three weeks of July, and made the month's volume a new monthly high as well.

Last month's traffic also pushed Minnesota's barge terminal season total to a new high, topping the old mark for July 31 set in 1981.

State export inspections were completed on 999 barge loads of crops totaling almost 51.5 million bushels this July.

Farmers grossed an estimated $213 million from the marketing of that July volume of crops exported by barge from the Minnesota terminal elevators on the Mississippi River.

Commissioner Nichols said that the most favorable grain and oilseed market prices in two years apparently triggered the rush of crops into the export movement.

Corn topped the July movement in volume with nearly 25 million bushels that grossed farmers almost $73.1 million. But soybean farmers collected the biggest share of the cash receipts, almost $109.5 million for the 18.4 million bushels of beans that were barged last month to Gulf ports.

Season totals through July for Minnesota barge shipments are 3,617 barges loaded with an estimated 186.3 million bushels of crops with a gross farm value of more than $694.8 million.

Crop prices have been rising the past two months in market reaction to national acreage reductions and more recently oilseed prices have risen sharply due to the reports of drought stress cutting crop yield potentials in most of the national except for Minnesota and the upper third of Iowa.

Subtract those things gathering dust in your home and add dollars to your income.

Mosquito Control Office Open Here

FIELD OFFICE for the Minnesota department of health to study the mosquito situation in northwestern Minnesota has been established in the conference room of the Pennington county law enforcement center. Darold Batzer of Minneapolis heads the local operation, identifying Culex Tarsalis mosquitoes taken from traps throughout the area and sending them in for analysis. The Culex Tarsalis species has been identified as a carrier of encephalitis. Part of the collection from one trap is shown in the lower photo.

Monitoring of the mosquito situation in Minnesota continues as the threat of spreading encephalitis remains under investigation. To shorten the time span required for testing, a field office of the Minnesota department of health has been established in the Pennington county law enforcement center in Thief River Falls.

"Thief River Falls was selected for its central location, not that it has a more acute problem," states Darold Batzer, an employee of the Metropolitan Mosquito Control district on loan to the department of health to direct activities in this area.

Batzer's job is to sort through the mosquitoes captured in traps throughout the northwestern Minnesota area, pick out the Culex Tarsalis variety known to be a transmitter of the encephalitis virus to horses and humans, and send them to the department of health in Minneapolis. From there the insects are sent to a laboratory in Colorado to determine if they are carriers of the virus.

Thief River Falls was among cities in northwestern Minnesota sprayed by airplane last week in an effort to reduce the mosquito population as a health threat. Malathion was sprayed by a large twin engine aircraft shortly before 8 p.m. Wednesday. Heavy rain two hours after the spraying may have diminished its effectiveness.

Batzer said he is conducting mosquito trapping locally following the spraying to determine its effectiveness. Although malathion has a short term effectiveness, it does have some residual effect for a day or two after spraying.

Mosquito trapping is being done in 14 locations from Hallock to Mahnomen and Roseau to Bagley with Doug Courneya doing the trapping. He uses dry ice as "bait" for the trap, with carbon dioxide released serving to attract mosquitoes. A battery operated fan blows the attracted mosquitoes into a mesh bag for collection the following morning.

Courneya makes the collection cycle twice a week, placing the traps one day and collecting them the next.

Batzer said that it takes several weeks to confirm whether or not a mosquito is a carrier of the virus and additional time to determine if a person of animal has been infected with encephalitis. Mosquitoes carrying the virus have been captured in traps set by Courneya, Batzer said, but the incidence has been higher in the west central Minnesota area.

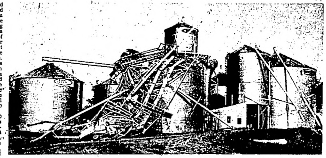
BUILT IN 1914, the 38x70 barn on the Edgar Naplin farm had withstood many storms over the years, but the tornado Thursday evening was too much for the building to take. Although old, the barn was in good repair and had been reshingled. It contained a number of bales of new crop hay. The barn was only part of the loss at the farm which suffered damage to a machine shed, grain handling system and countless trees. Throughout the neighborhood many trees were broken or uprooted, crops were flattened by the wind and rain and buildings or machinery damaged.

Tornado Damage Extensive On Edgar Naplin Farm Thursday



GRAIN HANDLING SYSTEM which was used to fill and unload storage bins on the Edgar Naplin farm southwest of St. Hilaire caught the brunt of the tornado which struck the farm about 11 p.m. Thursday. The superstructure and network of augers fell on the 16,000 bushel steel bin in the foreground and ripped pipes loose from other bins in the complex. The bin receiving the most damage contained about 14,000 bushels of wheat which was soaked by the rain accompanying the wind. Removal of the grain is complicated by the design of the system which is intended to use the handling equipment.

At least one tornado and other strong winds caused extensive damage in the area southwest of St. Hilaire late Thursday evening. Building damage was noted on a number of farms, hundreds of trees were broken or uprooted, farm equipment was damaged and crops were flattened by the wind and rain.

Most extensive damage was on the Edgar Naplin farm where a tornado toppled a grain handling system erected in 1981 and connecting five metal grain bins and two large holding tanks. Three of the bins were of 16,000 bushel capacity and two of 8,000 bushel size.

Nearly half of a 40x100 machine shed on the farm was blown away and a 38x70 hip-roof barn constructed in 1914 was collapsed by the wind. Most of the trees on the farm were destroyed or damaged, many having the tops twisted off many feet above the ground. Only damage to the house was where a large boxelder tree fell and caught a corner of the roof with a branch, then broke a single window.

The grain bin most extensively damaged when the superstructure of the grain handling system fell contained about 14,000 bushels of wheat, some of which was soaked by the heavy rain accompanying the storm. Removal of the grain is complicated in that storage is designed to have grain removed from the bins through the handling system.

Naplin said he and his wife had gone in the basement when the storm became so severe they could not see the machine shed in flashes of lightning. Electric power had been out for more than half an hour when the apparent tornado struck about 11 p.m.

Several barns around the area received damage or were destroyed in the high winds. At the Virgil Eckstein farm a 20x60 concrete silo toppled across the low dairy barn and crushed a section of the building. No cattle were in the structure at the time and the barn was chopped off right next to the milking parlor which remained operable once electricity was restored about noon Friday.

A hip-roof barn on the Leonard Ford farm was destroyed in the wind storm but there was no injury to a number of hogs housed in the structure. The 24x32 barn collapsed around the animals which were still in the building Friday morning.

Older barns collapsed at the Roy Steinbrink farm located about a mile and one-half northwest of the Edgar Naplin farm and on the former Ralph Hamlin farm now owned by Don Schirrick. The latter building apparently was weakened by the storm Thursday night but didn't collapse until about 10 a.m. Friday. People in the Virgil Eckstein farm yard witnessed the collapse of the barn located to the north of the Eckstein farm.

A number of farms in the area had many trees destroyed, including Melvin Melin, Robert Sorvig, Charles Vanderweg and Bruce Machal. At the Machal farm more than 30 large evergreen trees were uprooted.

Thursday evening's storm was the most severe of several which hit the area in a several day span. Strong winds Wednesday night hit Thief River Falls.

CONCRETE SILO on the Virgil Eckstein farm southwest of St. Hilaire was toppled by the wind storm which roared through the area late Thursday night, crushing a section of the Eckstein dairy barn. The 20x60 silo was only three years old and was located next to one built several years earlier which apparently was not damaged. Note that although the silo toppled for its full length, a dozen of the bands around it fell nearly in place. The Ecksteins milk about 60 head of cattle. The portion of the barn crushed was next to the milking parlor which was still able to be used.

Expect 2,435 As Schools Open Wed.

Thief River Falls public school officials are looking for approximately 2,433 students to be enrolled when classes begin Wednesday. Teachers reported for duty today and will be involved in group meetings today and tomorrow. There will be no classes on Labor day, September 5.

Supt. Robert Block said the projected enrollment prepared by elementary, middle school and senior high school principals is based on enrollment at the end of the 1982-83 school year plus new students enrolled during the summer. "We don't know how many students may have left the district during the summer, so we must assume the total enrollment will be somewhat less than the 2,435 projected," he said.

Classes began today at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute with 487 students enrolled. Director Dr. Orley Gunderson said he is very pleased with the enrollment — which is up 10 from opening day in 1982 — and expects the total to rise to 500 by the end of the week.

There are openings remaining in all 18 AVTI programs except practical nursing, he said, and prospective students may call or stop at the AVTI for further information or to enroll. Because the school is on a quarter system, enrollment should take place this week. Farm operations and management program will begin in mid-October and is expected to have 15 to 20 additional students.

St. Hilaire elementary school was closed a year ago and Knox elementary school will be used only for a pre-school handicapped program, nursery school classes and the children and parents learning together (CPLT) program, Supt. Block said. Contracts have been let for about $160,000 of remodeling at Northrop elementary school, including re-roofing and window replacement.

Projected class sizes average 29.5 in kindergarten, 25 in first grade, 27.6 in second grade, 26 in third grade, 27.5 in fourth grade and 27.8 in fifth grade, Supt. Block said. This has required the reassignment of some children to other schools to balance enrollment and class sizes, he added, and this has upset some parents. Efforts were made to keep the changes to a minimum, he said, but some movement was necessary.

Enrollment projection of 2,435 is only slightly below the ending enrollment of 2,458 for the 1982-83 school year. It is well above the 2,339 estimate made last October for the first year of a five-year enrollment projection.

Class sizes estimated by the principals as of August 26 included 194 in grade 12, 188 in grade 11, 193 in grade 10, 195 in grade nine, 228 in grade eight, 206 in grade seven, 196 in grade six, 167 in grade five, 165 in grade four, 183 in grade three, 193 in grade two, 150 in grade one and 177 in kindergarten.

Market Rabbit Feature Story Crowded Out

Because of the space required for photos of storm damage in this issue of the Times, the feature story on rabbit production in the area which had been intended for this edition has been deferred to the August 31 edition.

A meeting for the public on production of rabbits for market has been set for September 14 at 8 p.m. in the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls.

Stumpf Sees Land Policy Need

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer says the state should consider wholesale changes in its policy related to state-owned land, in order to facilitate the transfer of public lands and as a way to lower the costs to the state of managing and acquiring new public land used for parks and wildlife preserves.

"During the 1983 Minnesota legislative session, I authored a bill calling for a comprehensive program governing state-owned land," Stumpf said. "My measure would better define the relationship between counties and townships regarding the transfer of any land sought for wildlife areas."

Stumpf said a recent report by the legislative auditor concerning the issue of public land ownership and transfer is significant since it supports his view that some reform is needed in the program by which the department of natural resources (DNR) exchanges state land for other property.

That report, released last July, concluded that an improved land exchange program would lower the costs of acquiring and managing tracts of state land, "which is complicated now by the Minnesota constitution and other DNR roadblocks," Sen. Stumpf said.

"The report also stressed that the state has no real plan for land transfer at the present time, that one is needed and that the legislature should begin a review of constitutional reforms that would be needed to improve this exchange to benefit private property owners and the state."

The legislature is currently developing a comprehensive report on land policy in the state in conjunction with other state agencies, which is expected to serve as a starting point for future efforts at devising long-term comprehensive plans for the management of the state's land and other natural resources.

"I am hopeful that the completion of this study, combined with some of the land management laws now on the books, will ensure that our most precious resource — our land — is both protected and utilized to its greatest extent," Stumpf added.

Gerardy-Wallberg Vows Said At St. Bernard's

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Wallberg are at home in Grand Forks, N.D., following an exchange of marriage vows at St. Bernard's Catholic church, Thief River Falls, and a wedding trip to the East Coast.

The bride, the former Nancy Gerardy, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Gerardy of Plummer. Parents of the groom are John Wallberg, Thief River Falls, and Mrs. R. S. Merritt, Florida.

Rev. Jerry Rogers officiated at the double-ring ceremony witnessed by approximately 450 relatives and friends. At the organ was Kristi Gerardy, a cousin of the bride. She played "Ice Castles," for the processional, and also accompanied Dr. Peter Johnson, a friend of the couple, as he sang "Just You and I," "Wedding Song," and "God, A Woman and A Man."

Seven branch candelabra with greenery and altar bouquets of lavender mums and carnations graced the chancel.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a gown of Schiffli lace featuring a Queen Anne neckline, lifted bodice, full bishop sleeves accented with Venice lace, and a full skirt edged with ruffles flowing into a chapel train. Her waltz length veil, edged with lace, was held by a Juliet lace headpiece trimmed with pearls. She carried a silk bouquet of lavender and white roses and babies' breath.

Dee Ann Huotari, Plummer, a friend of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mary Westlake, Deb Koskela of Plummer, Kim Watson, East Grand Forks, all friends of the couple, and Tammy Gerardy, Thief River Falls, a sister of the bride. Their lavender, off-the shoulder gowns with ruffled hemlines were enhanced by an overlay of sheer lace. They carried white lace fans topped by a cluster of lavender and white flowers. Their necklaces were gifts from the bride and groom.

Attired in a floor-length gown of white lace and a white shoulder-length veil was the flower girl, Nicole Konickson, Plummer, a friend of the couple. The rings were carried by Andrew Lallier, Plummer, a friend of the bride. Like the groom, he wore a white tuxedo with tails.

Best man was Matthew Carlson, Minneapolis, a friend of the couple. Serving as groomsmen were Mark Wallberg, Florida, brother of the groom, and Charles, Peter, and Kevin Gerardy of Plummer, brothers of the bride. The ushers were Tony Gerardy, Plummer, brother of the bride; Greg Hartmann, Gibbons, and Mark Schultz, Fargo, N.D., friends of the couple, and Glenn Hanson, Minneapolis; an uncle of the groom. All wore silver tuxedos with lavender rose boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a rose-colored floor-length gown with sheer sleeves and a white lace over bodice. Her corsage was of double lavender roses.

A reception in the church parlors followed with Mr. and Mrs. Merles Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Jon Bergen, uncles and aunts of the bride and groom, respectively, as hosts and hostesses. At the guest book was Mary Schue, a friend of the couple. Mr. and Mrs. David Gudal, brother-in-law and sister of the groom, and James Materson and Theresa Wiss, friends of the couple, served the punch.

The pillared, four-tiered wedding cake with a flowing water fountain surrounded by four connecting cakes, was decorated with lavender roses. Cutting and serving the cake were Mrs. Ken Laliberte, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Dolly Skraler, aunt of the groom. Mrs. Ella Hanson, aunt of the bride, poured the coffee.

Karen Konickson, a friend, pinned the flowers; Ricky Johnson and Randy Musinski, cousins of the bride, arranged the gifts; and Anne Mae Lallier, Ruthie Pittman and Renae and Vicki Walter, friends of the couple, were waitresses. Barbie Gerardy was the bride's personal attendant.

The bride is a graduate of Pershing high school, Plummer; and the groom is a graduate of Lincoln high school, Thief River Falls. Both are employed by the Grand Forks Country Club. Photo, Alice Hofstad, Plummer.

Pathways Of Improvements Studies By WCTU

Alice Mae Stuart Thief River Falls Woman's Christian Temperance union meeting was held Friday afternoon, August 19, in the social room at the Riverside Terrace apartments.

The theme of the program was "Pathways of Improvement." Olga Larson lead the devotional meditation based on Acts 8:26, Philip's ministry to the Ethiopian eunuch who was in charge of the country's treasure. She said that even though Philip's ministry was successful in Samaria, he followed the call of the Spirit to go into the desert to witness to a single individual. In following the instructions, step-by-step, he led the eunuch to believe in Christ. She concluded by saying "when Christ left the world, He did not leave just the Word to save the lost, but he left Spirit filled Christians to preach, teach and to witness."

The program began with the group singing "Our WCTU Prayer." Several readings were given by the members. Hildur Lian gave a study on "Public Relations," and Valborg Hanson read "Keys Open Doors."

In the article "Alcohol Poisoning," read by Ruth Haugen, the dangers of alcohol poisoning were listed. It was noted that death has been caused by young adults drinking a fifth of whiskey on a bet or dare; by children three to five years old drinking remains in cocktail glasses, by infants who have had distilled beverage poultices placed on their chest for bronchial conditions, and by chronic alcoholics who have consumed adequate alcohol to raise the blood level of alcohol to a lethal percentage. The author C. Nelson Davis, M.D., stated that "an informed public must always be aware that alcohol when injudiciously used or accidentally over used is a very lethal drug."

On display at the meeting, was the year's program packet awarded to the unit for becoming an Advanced Union.

Dues for the year, beginning September 1, were collected by Valborg Hanson.

Announcement was made that the State WCTU convention will be held September 27-29 at the Riverside church at Wannaska.

A pot-luck lunch and fellowship hour concluded the meeting.

The next meeting of the local WCTU will be held September 23.

Local Women Return From Trip To Norway

Two local women, Mrs. Regina Gustafson and Mrs. Signe Miller, have returned home following a month's visit with relatives in Norway. While there, they were houseguests of a cousin Solveig Dale, who visited here five years ago.

At the Dale homestead, now operated by the fifth generation of Dales, they were honor guests at a family picnic and get-together. Following a custom in Norway with the oldest son being named after the father, the name Sven is now in the sixth generation in the Dale family.

At Tovdal, Norway, they attended services in the 200-year-old Hillestad church where their mothers were baptized and confirmed. Although the church had a new electric organ, the church remained the same with the old pulpit, near the ceiling, having been retained.

The women noted that in the homes visited, everyone had television, used mostly for news and weather broadcasts as the programs were unsatisfactory. There is a great deal of road work being done, unemployment is increasing, clothing is expensive, food prices are about the same as here, social security retirement age is 67 years, and a cup of coffee in a modestly priced restaurant is 55 cents. It was also noted that people were anticipating their "Ferie" vacation in July, either at the mountains or at the beaches.

Relatives visited were two uncles, two aunts and numerous cousins: Eivind and Anna Dalholt, Aslak and Barbra Dale, Ragnhild Skrede, Anne Nevestad, Solveig Dale, Gro Dale, Sven and Borgny Dale, Norman and Signe Lyngneyr, Amanda Dale, Olav and Anne Vassand, Gunhild Nyaaland, Kare Nyaaland and Eivind and Ingaborg Dale;

Also Sigmund and Aud Dale and family, Torlief and Gerda Rosseland, Gjorg Grundefjern, Sven and Clara Dale and son, Signe Mjaaland, Dagfin and Magna Fadum, Sven and Gjordes Dale, John and Signe Haverstad and Knut and Margit Skrede.

DID YOU KNOW?

BE A HEALTHY, LIBERATED PERSON!

Enjoy the pleasure of NOT smoking. Smoking reduces your stamina for the activities you enjoy!

Once you are liberated from the smoking habit, you can extend your life expectancy and increase your chances of avoiding lung cancer, heart disease, emphysema and other related illnesses.

If you must smoke (and you know you shouldn't), here are six ways to minimize the risk:

1. Choose cigarettes which contain less tar and nicotine.
2. Try to smoke a half or less of the cigarette.
3. Take fewer puffs on each cigarette.
4. Attempt to reduce the amount of inhaling.
5. Smoke fewer cigarettes each day.

But remember: it's best not to smoke at all; and if you do smoke, quit!

Student From Japan Observes Birthday In US

Kunio Kinugasa of Tokyo, Japan, celebrated his 17th birthday at Middle River recently, according to Alice Colby, Marshall county 4-H agent. Members of the Ringbo Bobcats 4-H club were on hand to make the birthday more meaningful. For the past three and one-half weeks Kunio has been hosted by the Virgil Erickson family through the International 4-H youth exchange program.

Kunio is the fifth foreign visitor to stay with the Erickson family. Three other youths have been from Japan and one from Norway. Kunios' visit came at the same time as the Erickson's son Tim was on leave from the air force. Pat, the next son in line, was in Washington D.C. for the Washington Focus 4-H trip when Kunio first arrived. Other children living at home include Paul, Mary Jo and Andy.

Kunios' father owns a carpet store and his mother also works outside of the home. A sister, 10, and a brother, 7, are also part of the family.

In Japan, Kunio is active in the Hippo Family club, which helped to sponsor his trip. At club meetings, members listen to tapes of songs and stories in several different languages including English. Thus, they learn to speak other languages by listening and repeating the sounds. Kunio is in his second year of high school.

Since his arrival, the Erickson family has become aware of things that Kunio enjoys. He has grown quite fond of his "American brother" Andy, the six-month-old baby of the family. He also likes to play cards and baseball. In Japan, baseball is telecast on T.V. every evening.

The Ericksons have included Kunio in several family outings. Mrs. Erickson stated that because he lives in a city, he is content to enjoy the country life and take part in some farming jobs.

Law enforcement personnel were still searching this morning for a prisoner who escaped from a moving vehicle about 10 miles north of Oklee on Friday night.

Walley Gene Lang, 25, was being transported by a Clearwater county sheriff's deputy to the law enforcement center in Thief River Falls, where he was to await a court appearance next week. Lang had been held in the Beltrami court jail since January on charges of second degree assault and escaping from custody.

Lang was reported to have had his hands cuffed behind his back, when he kicked the door open and jumped out of the car, which was traveling at about 55 miles per hour. He was last seen running into nearby woods.

Law enforcement officers searched for about five hours early Saturday but were unable to find him, according to Clearwater county Sheriff Marcell Goodwin.

Red Lake county sheriff's department later received a report that a car had been stolen about five miles south of where Lang escaped. The car was described as a gray, 1971 Chevrolet Impala four-door, license number AAU885. Lang is described as an American Indian male, about five feet seven inches tall, weighing about 130 pounds, with dark, shoulder-length hair.

Open Mosquito Study Office In T.R. Falls

mosquitoes alive until they can be handled in the local facility, Batzer said. Each trapping site's catch is kept separate and Culex Tarsalis mosquitoes from each are frozen and shipped on dry ice to Minneapolis. Up to a dozen species of mosquitoes may be captured in a single trap on this area, Batzer said, with the Aedes Vexans species the most prevalent. Culex Tarsalis is not a major species here but is present in larger than normal numbers this year.

Batzer explained that mosquitoes require shallow areas of standing water to reproduce and that current conditions are almost ideal for additional hatches. The insects may feed on plant material but require a blood meal to reproduce, he said. They prefer to take that blood meal from birds which are carriers of the encephalitis virus.

Batzer said he expects the local office to be maintained for about two more weeks, depending on results of the testing and weather conditions as they relate to mosquito populations.

On Dec. 2, 1922, he was married to Hilda Schjeldrup of Plummer. The couple lived at Plummer where Jacobson served as rural mail carrier for 32 years, retiring in 1959. During his time as mail carrier, he received a safety award from the U.S. Government for the many miles driven without an accident.

Following his retirement, he moved to Silver Bay, where he lived while building a home on the shore of Lake Superior, at Little Marais. Since retiring his hobby was wood-working with his specialty being spinning wheels.

He was a member of the Sychar Lutheran church of Silver Bay and a charter member of the North Shore Golden Age club. While living in Plummer, he was a member of the American Legion. He was also a 50-year member of the Modern Woodman, serving for 20 years as its secretary.

Surviving are his wife, two sons: Roy Jacobson, Silver Bay, and Norman, Palos Verdes Estates, Calif.; four granddaughters, a grandson, and one great-granddaughter.

He was preceded in death by a great-grandchild, two brothers and four sisters.

REFLECTI NS

A friend is a person who knows all about you and likes you just the same. Among "acquaintances" we are apt to put our best foot forward, show only the pleasant side of our nature. With true friends we can relax, parade our imperfections and feel secure that real friends will understand and forgive. . . He who has lasting friendships is blessed indeed.

Profit Margins Decline For MN Dairy Farmers

Soaring feed costs have joined federal assessments in eating away margins of profit for Minnesota dairy farmers, according to Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols.

July milk production was six per cent higher than a year ago despite the seasonal eight per cent decline from the June dairy month volume for this fourth leading dairy state.

Milk checks dropped, too, down by a penny a gallon on lower than a year ago farm milk prices, and by four and a third cents a gallon for the federal milk tax.

Dairy farmers have lived with the federal milk tax since mid-April, and in Minnesota the accumulative assessment payable to the U.S. department of agriculture now totals almost $16 million. Assessment is scheduled to double October 1, unless congress mandates otherwise after the Labor day recess.

It is rising feed costs, and the drought, that is of more immediate concern for Minnesota dairy farmers and for other livestock and poultry producers. Between mid-July and mid-August livestock feed component prices climbed by 35 per cent for oilseeds, by 11 per cent for corn and by seven per cent for hay. That was on top of the previous month's 26 per cent jump in the cost of commercial dairy feed.

Despite the increased costs and shrinking returns Minnesota dairy farmers held the number of milk cows at 890,000 for the seventh straight month. July count was 10,000 cows lower than a year ago.

One reason for the stable herd is that it is at an all time production efficiency, averaging five per cent more milk output per cow than a year ago. That efficiency has made Minnesota's milk production for the first seven months this year nearly 771.8 million gallons, or a 19.5 million gallon gain compared to 1982, despite the overall state dairy herd reduction.

Ask Motorists To Watch For School Buses

Minnesota schools will reconvene soon which means that Minnesota motorists should refresh their memories about safety habits relating to school buses.

Commissioner Paul Tschida of the Minnesota department of public safety said Minnesota has an excellent record in school bus safety. Despite that record, two people died in school bus accidents in 1982, the same number as the previous year.

In addition, 737 school buses were involved in traffic accidents in 1982 causing personal injuries to 163 people. Both those figures are higher than in 1981 when there were 692 buses involved in accidents causing injuries to 155.

Minnesota school districts operate more than 9,000 buses and transport about 600,000 school children each day, covering more than 110 million vehicle miles annually.

When students board or leave buses, the greatest accident potential occurs. To minimize that risk, motorists are required by law to stop for any school bus making a passenger stop when the red lights are flashing and stop arm is extended. Law requires motorists to stop 20 feet away from a bus whether they are approaching the bus from the front or rear. Flashing amber lights warn motorists that a school bus is about to stop.

To further protect children, school bus drivers can report to law enforcement officials the license plate numbers of vehicles which pass school buses that are legally stopped. Last year the state patrol issued citations and warnings to Minnesota motorists who put children's lives in danger by passing a stopped school bus.

Only exception for not stopping for a bus with extended stop arm and flashing red lights is when a motorist is approaching a school bus from the front on a road divided by a physical barrier such as a grass median, fence, concrete or railing.

Tips On Crime Prevention On Football Cards

Free football trading cards designed to make children and parents more aware of crime prevention will be given to youngsters this fall by participating police and sheriff departments, Commissioner Paul Tschida of the Minnesota department of public safety announced this week.

New card will be featured each week of the NFL regular season. A different Minnesota Viking player, his biographical data and a crime prevention tip will be on the cards each week. Pre-season card with an illustration of the Minnesota Viking mascot, four Viking players and a checklist of players appearing on future cards will be given out the week of August 16.

First regular season card's tip is that local police or sheriff departments have free advice about how to make homes secure. Some of the tips on later cards explain why doors and windows should be locked, the value of joining operation identification, the importance of making homes appear occupied when the occupants are gone and reasons for organizing neighborhood watch groups.

There will be a promotional campaign this fall to explain how to get free trading cards from police officers and sheriff deputies. Television and radio public service announcements, posters and special appearances by Vikings shown on the cards will be part of the campaign.

Collectors are encouraged to try to get all 17 trading cards. Over 60 Minnesota police and sheriff departments, employing almost half of the sworn officers in the state, will participate in the trading card program. Departments are located throughout the state from Crookston in the north and Worthington in the south.

Trading cards are sponsored by the Pillsbury company, the Minnesota Vikings and the Minnesota crime prevention officers association (MCPOA).

STRONG INTEREST was shown by area women last week, in opportunities offered by Project Heritage Design, a new cottage industry which has been started in Thief River Falls. Over 100 women attended a meeting held at city auditorium, where they were given information on the project and instructions on how to complete a quilt block sample showing their sewing and quilting proficiency. According to Milly Dallmann, general manager of the company, the samples will be evaluated by members of the board of directors, who will select sewers to produce a line of quilts to be designed and marketed by the company. She emphasized that the women chosen would be self-employed, working at home, and paid by the piece for what they produced. Commenting that she was "a little overwhelmed but extremely pleased by the turnout," Dallmann stated, "Understandably, certain things will have to happen to provide work for 100 people. The project will start slow and select a few sewers at first, adding as we grow."

Heart Disease Research Aided By Donations

Research and programs for the prevention and control of heart disease have been aided by the gifts in memory of: Phillip Myrold; Roger Windahl; Neal Paulson; and Frances Cook.

In reporting the contributions, the Heart fund memorial county representative stated, "A memorial gift to the American heart association, Minnesota affiliate is a thoughtful way to express sympathy while also doing something positive to aid the fight against heart disease. It not only comforts those in grief, it also helps reduce the toll of heart disease — the killer of more Americans than all other causes combined." In Minnesota, over 52 per cent of all deaths are from heart disease. Even in the 45 to 64 age group heart disease is the leading cause of death.

Representative explained, "Memorial gifts to the heart fund are promptly acknowledged by the heart association with a dignified card naming the person making the memorial and person being honored. Amount of the gift is not stated unless otherwise requested. A receipt is sent to the donor. All gifts to the heart fund are 100 per cent tax deductible. Memorial gifts are also being used more and more as get-well wishes for victims of a heart attack or stroke or as a thoughtful remembrance on a birthday, anniversary or other special occasions.

Memorial gifts including the name and address of the person making the gift, the person being honored, the occasion, and the name and address of the person who should receive the acknowledgement should be made to either: Memorial Chairperson, Pennington County: Mrs. David Drotts, 106 Parkview, Thief River Falls, MN 56701 or American heart association, 1007 Westside Drive, Fergus Falls, MN 56537.

Holiday Fair Slated For November 12

After conducting office hours at the county courthouse from 9 to 11 a.m., he attended a luncheon at the Best Western Inn and then took a tour of Arctco, Inc., where Arctco president Bill Ness (right) explained the newly organized snowmobile manufacturing operation. Also pictured are Lincoln high school principal Frank Hamerlinck (left) and Supt. Robert Block. Rep. State Jobless Rate Declines .5 Per Cent

Minnesota's unemployment rate fell .5 per cent from June to July, dropping slightly faster than the .4 per cent decline normally expected during the month, Commissioner Barbara Beerhalter of the Minnesota department of economic security reported recently.

Minnesota's unemployment rate in July was 7.5 per cent, compared to eight per cent in June and eight per cent in July 1982. Comparable national unemployment rate for July was 9.4 per cent.

Rudy Pinola, director of the department's research office, said that despite the drop in the unemployment rate the state's labor market conditions generally were mixed in July. "On the plus side," he noted, "total employment showed a surprising .9 per cent expansion compared to the usual .2 per cent seasonal decline that occurs in July."

Moreover, he added, the continued decrease in unemployment insurance claims is indicative of improved conditions, "but this may be due to more people having exhausted their benefits and the failure of many to qualify for new benefits."

Pinola said that on the negative side nonagricultural wage and salary employment fell faster, by 1.2 per cent, than is normal (0.9 per cent). "Also, while total employment has grown steadily since March, it still remains below year ago levels," he said.

Pinola said that although production workers in the manufacturing sector worked increased hours, worker earnings slipped from $9.61 an hour in June to $9.52 an hour in July. "This translates into a reduction in spendable earnings that may negate some of the effects of the July 1 tax cut," he said.

Compared to July a year ago, the size of the Minnesota civilian labor force decreased by .8 per cent; the number of employed persons decreased by .3 per cent; and the number of unemployed workers decreased by 7.2 per cent.

Minnesota's labor force in July was 2,202,400 persons, up 6,000 from June and down 18,100 from July last year.

Number of persons employed in July was 2,037,500, up 17,800 from June and down 5,400 from July a year ago.

Number of unemployed persons in Minnesota in July was 164,900, down 11,800 from June and down 12,700 from July a year ago.

Production workers in manufacturing were paid average weekly earnings of $375.09 in July for working an average of 39.4 hours at $9.52 per hour.

In July 1982, production workers were paid average weekly earnings of $356.32 for working an average of 38.9 hours at $9.16 per hour.

Unemployment rate pertains to the entire labor force and is not used to determine whether unemployment insurance benefits will be extended beyond the 26-week maximum. Unemployment rate among persons covered by unemployment insurance is used to determine whether the benefit payments will be extended.

Crime Rate Shows Decline Of 2.5 Per Cent

Minnesota's serious crime rate declined 2.5 per cent for the first six months of 1983, compared to the same period in 1982, according to John D. Erskine, superintendent of the bureau of criminal apprehension. For the first three months of 1983, there was a 1.8 per cent increase.

Erskine said violent crimes dropped 15 per cent during the period while property crime decreased by 1.8 per cent. There was 3.1 per cent decline in urban crime (not including St. Paul) while rural areas showed a slight increase (.8 per cent).

Total number of crimes during the period was 70,958 compared to 72,744 for the six month period of 1982.

Murders dropped 30.6 per cent to 25 from 36 and rapes declined by 17.8 per cent (365 to 300). Robberies and assaults were both down, respectively by 15.6 and 13.3 per cent. Burglaries and larcenies showed very slight percentage decreases. Number of vehicle thefts dropped from 4,050 to 3,596, an 11.2 per cent decrease.

Arson offenses were down 8.5 per cent from 459 to 420 with property involved valued at $1,453,021. Total of 121 (28.8 per cent) of the 420 cases were cleared.

Concert Time Again

It is a tribute to the determination, hard work and dedication of a strong nucleus of Thief River Falls people that the local concert association has been able to put together a series of entertaining programs for a number of years now. Many such associations blossom and fade, but the local group has maintained full bloom.

The group is successful, of course, because of the support it receives from the community. And the community supports the association because it arranges from programs which are diverse and entertaining — thereby completing the circle of success. A hard-working organization, a supportive community and a popular program to support — what an unbeatable combination!

Headlining the program of five concerts for 1983-84 is the Glenn Miller orchestra, led by trombonist Larry O'Brien. It is the only musical organization legally authorized to carry the name of Glenn Miller and which plays the authentic and original arrangements. This concert alone should be worth two-thirds of the full concert membership price of $18 per adult. You can watch the other four at the equivalent price of a burger and fries apiece.

It may be true the other four concerts will be performed by names less familiar in most households than Oxydol and Excedrin, but that doesn't necessarily mean lack of quality. One of the "fun things" about the concert series each year has been the unfolding of the unknown, and much of the unfamiliar talent has been extraordinary.

What else does the concert association have in store this year? Let's have a look.

Pianist Robert Guaralnik presents "Chopin Lives," a presentation of piano works interspersed with reminiscing about Chopin's childhood in Warsaw as Guaralnik poses as the great composer himself. It's an interesting gimmick which should make the assimilation of a little knowledge more tolerable.

The Chestnut Brass is a quintet of musicians frighteningly described as "skilled soloists and knowledgeable musicians. "That usually translates as "stuffy," for brass quintets are often comprised of supremely talented people who play sophisticatedly difficult but dull music. This group promises jazz, rags and popular music in addition to "traditional," and if it provides enough of the former to allow us to ignore the latter, it should be enjoyable. And if the five fellows save the "traditional" for after intermission, we can still get our money's worth and an early start home.

The Czech folk ballet promises a high degree of energy release as well as colorful costuming. After getting out of Czechoslovakia, who wouldn't want to dance? A similar troupe has appeared here before, and apart from being unable to distinguish between the men and women except for the costumes, it was an active evening. And what else can you do in northwestern Minnesota on the 28th of February?

Final program will be presented by Fred and Anna Mae Vagle. The program doesn't say what they do, but since they are pictured holding instruments that one normally strums and blows through (separate instruments, of course), one would assume they do at least some of that. And they are assisted by two other musicians who play piano, harmonica, harp and brass (how's that for versatility!). Attending should be like opening a Christmas present that can't be ascertained by shaking, tipping or jiggling.

There is only one way you can become a part of this entertainment package, and that is to purchase your season membership. Previous members get first chance, but after September 6 the remaining seats are available to anyone. Really, you can't get a better buy in live entertainment anywhere. Get your check in the mail now.

Political Aspects of Recovery

Following editorial is from the Springfield Advance-Press:

In the throes of deep recession in late 1981 and 1982, Democrats made political hay ridiculing the economic policies of President Reagan. The often-heard cry was that Mr. Reagan didn't really care about the poor, that he didn't feel for the 11 million Americans out of work, etc., etc.

That played well for 18 months. It produced major Democratic gains in 1982's congressional elections. But those who have been profiting politically from the nation's economic woes now face a different political prospect — if indeed healthy recovery is the story of 1983 and 1984.

Mr. Reagan has said all along he did care about the poor, as much as anyone else — but that he believed private economic recovery and private industry jobs were the answer, not make-work federally-financed jobs.

He has also constantly denied that he cares only about the rich. He has said his economic policies benefit all in the long run, but especially the vast middle classes, who have been overtaxed in recent decades, sometimes for overly wasteful giveaway program, sometimes engulfed in fraud and politics.

Out on a limb politically, in 1984, if the recovery is vigorous and sustained, will be those who have made the most political hay in criticizing Reagan economics in the last two years. The traditional, long-time big spenders of the Democratic party's left from urban areas, where support for handout programs, elect, are not as much endangered as are those latter-day liberals from traditionally conservative sections such as the south, midwest and west.

Many liberal big spenders went down to defeat in 1980. Survivors were reassured in 1982. But the species will be endangered again in 1984 if economy recovery is uninterrupted.

Not So Good Old Days

Minnkota Power Cooperative headquartered at Grand Forks publishes a monthly newsletter called the "Minnkota Messenger," and one of the regular features is entitled "Passing Parade." A recent "Passing Parade" feature noted that the good old days were really not that good. The column follows:

This is the story of a sentimental journey to yesterday in time's Passing Parade.

Do you ever get out of bed in the morning feeling chipper and then hear on the radio or read in the paper news of trouble, disaster, strikes, wars and the like?

And then do you sometimes feel in such a depressed mood that you begin to get sentimental about the past?

Do you wish you had a H.G. Wells time machine that would take you back to the good old days — back to when you had no trouble parking right in front of the town drugstore? Back to when a strawberry ice cream soda was five cents and the girls wore their hair to the waist, and the only big-sized modern controversy was whether we were spending too much government money on the Panama Canal?

Often in a sentimental mood we think, "Why can't we go back to the good old days?" to the simple life when people lived out their lives in peace and simplicity, to a small town where we knew each other's every fault and virtue; a place where we could smell clover on spring nights and not the fumes of gasoline; a place in the darkness of night you could look up through clean air and see the stars.

Go back to a June morning in 1910 — a Sunday morning.

One of the biggest headlines tells about two unidentified women in a restaurant in San Francisco who have been arrested for smoking a cigarette in public.

The advertising section: Steinblock suits reduced from $13 to $10; gingham, five cents a yard; W.L. Douglas shoes, $1; a turkey dinner, 28 cents. Yes, the good old days. . .

Can we ever find those days again? Of course not! And, the truth is we wouldn't want to if we could. This period wasn't so good after all.

The 40-hour week in 1910 is considered part time work. The 12-hour day is standard. There is no such thing as sulphanilamide for pneumonia, no adrenalin for heart trouble, no insulin for diabetes. If you get appendicitis, you die. There is no penicillin. One child in every 10 dies in infancy. The average life span is 50 years. All this is 1910. And when we look back, we often forget these realistic facts about life in those days.

An ad in the New York World is asking for girls to work in a clothing factory 12 hours a day, six days a week, for $2.50 per week. There was so much human misery in those days it would shock us into silence today. We forget when we sentimentalize that one person in every 30 dies of typhoid fever.

We would go on with more of these facts, but there is no pathway that leads back to yesterday, and we would never really go back.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The new electronic watches are really something. They have calculators, give stock market quotations and weather forecasts, beep, buzz and even give you a number you can call if you want the time.

MOSQUITO TRAPS are being set throughout northwestern Minnesota to obtain information on the Culex Tarsalis species of mosquito which has been identified as a carrier of encephalitis. Doug Courneya, who does the trapping at 14 sites located from Roseau to Mahnomen and Bagley to Hallock, is shown placing one of the traps. The pail contains a piece of dry ice which serves as an attractant as it releases carbon dioxide. A battery-operated fan blows the baited mosquitoes into the mesh bag. The traps are set one day and collected the next morning on a twice a week basis. Mosquitoes collected are taken to a department of health field office in Thief River Falls for identification.

Washington Report

Sen. Dave Durenberger

Our Nation's Children

The statistics are saddening and shocking.

At least half, maybe more, of all children born this year won't live with both parents. And half of those will live in poverty throughout their childhood and teenage years — maybe throughout their lives. Why? Because "deadbeat dads," as one congressman called them, won't pay for their children's basic needs such as food, clothing, shelter and health care. In many cases these "deadbeat dads" are even defying a court's order to make child support payments.

It has become this decade's greatest tragedy. But the issue of child support enforcement is finally gaining support and momentum in the Congress and the administration.

It has become this decade's greatest tragedy. But the issue of child support enforcement is finally gaining support and momentum in the Congress and the administration.

It's an economic as well as a social issue, because while non-supporting fathers escaped $3.8 billion in child support enforcement payments in 1981 alone, taxpayers were forced to pick up part of the cost through more expensive welfare programs.

Currently, 80 per cent of Aid to Families with Dependent Children — the government's main cash-grant welfare program — goes to families headed by a woman. Almost half the medicaid and food stamp budget goes to these same women.

Unless we work now to strengthen child support enforcement codes, things aren't going to get any better. Millions of children will pay the price with inadequate care.

We started this decade with 8.4 million single parent families, a 100 per cent increase over the last decade. Ninety per cent of those families were headed by women.

By age 40, many women find themselves raising families alone. Many divorced women find they have few saleable job skills and are unprepared to enter the job market. And because the money they do earn often isn't enough to cover daycare expenses, a generation of "latchkey" children are being brought up — children who stay home from school to take care of younger brothers and sisters or children who spend hours alone after school unsupervised.

While the mother is struggling to make ends meet, the average father's financial situation has improved 42 per cent.

It's all to clear our child support enforcement codes are not working. In fact, under the present system, states only collected a small portion of their caseloads last year.

What can be done? Congress can begin by clearly defining the intention of its' child support enforcement laws; to assure compliance with obligations to pay child support to all children in the U.S.

States should be allowed to report to the IRS absent parents who owe support payments to both children who receive AFDC and those who don't.

We should permit states to issue mandatory wage assignments and impose liens against property and estates when support is delinquent, provide for offsets against state tax refunds to collect past-due support and establish child support clearinghouses to monitor the timeliness and accuracy of payments.

These provisions are all contained in my Economic Equity Act of 1983 (S.888) — a comprehensive bill designed to legislatively eliminate economic discrimination against women.

These changes shouldn't impose higher costs on the states. Instead, the provisions of my EEA can actually save money by enabling states to enforce support more effectively and efficiently.

We can't afford to let another generation of children grow up paying for mistakes that are not theirs. We can't afford to let another generation of children go without adequate health care, nutrition and housing. They are our future.

International Peat Study Slated At BSU

Bemidji state university (BSU) will be the gathering point for scientists from more than ten countries October 10 to 13 when current research on peat is presented during the second International peat symposium.

Symposium addresses energy and non-fuel utilization of peat from a number of international perspectives. Scientists from the United States, Canada, the Soviet Union, Ireland, Poland, the People's Republic of China, Hungary, Finland, Sweden and the Netherlands are scheduled to offer papers in the 1983 Bemidji program.

"It is significant that every country where peat is an important resource is represented," noted Dr. Steven Spigarelli, the director of the BSU center for environmental studies who is coordinating the event. "The scientists are established experts in their fieds. Interchange of ideas and research will aid the study of peat throughout the world and further the understanding of peat in our immediate region."

Following registration and informal sessions on October 10, the symposium begins on the morning of October 11. Format for each day involves the presentation of papers relating to one topic of peat utilization.

Research on peatland characteristics will be given on October 11. Papers deal with the ecology and geology, as well as the variability, of peatlands throughout the world..

Peat mining, processing, and conversion are the subjects of papers scheduled for October 11 and 12. These will have a definite international view as the focus is on processes as they occur in other countries.

A third topic concerns food, fiber, and energy production. Studies in this area show various products that can be derived from peat, including agricultural applications, biomass, gasses, and building materials.

Natural filtration is the subject of papers relating to water treatment and sorption properties of peat. This impacts wastewater teatment, the removal of waste metals from mining operations, or treating water for removal of oil pollution.

Research in chemicals that are or could be extracted from peat is scheduled for presentation on October 13. Hundreds of substances, from wax to various organic acids, can be processed from peat if the correct market exists for the product.

Final topic, which will be covered on the afternoon of October 13, outlines the experience, past, present and potential, of peat resource management in Minnesota and Ontario.

In addition to the sessions where papers are presented, other portions of the conference open to the public are an informal display and exhibition program at 7:30 p.m. October 11 and a symposium banquet at 7 p.m. October 12. Formal sessions will be held in the Beaux arts ballroom on the BSU campus while the banquet and informal evening programs will be conducted at the Bemidji Holiday Inn.

Information on the symposium may be obtained by contacting the center for environmental studies, Bemidji state university, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218-755-2910).

Hearing Tests Being Offered At State Fair

Minnesotans will be able to have their hearing tested for free at the state fair again this year, courtesy of the state health department.

Department's hearing and vision conservation unit will offer the service from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily in the state exhibits building, next to machinery hill, at the northeast corner of the fairgrounds. Health professionals and volunteers will also offer information about how noise and other hazards cause hearing loss; what you can do to prevent hearing loss; how hearing loss affects your life; and what you can do to compensate for hearing loss, and reduce its impact.

Other government agencies and private groups participating in the hearing exhibit include the department's occupational safety and health unit, the state pollution control agency, the Minnesota speech-language and hearing association, the Minnesota foundation for accoustical education and research, and Minnesota regional services for the hearing impaired.

Assistance in recruiting volunteers for the exhibit is being provided by the Minnesota SERTOMA club, the poison control center at St. Paul Ramsey medical center, and the Minnesota council on health.

Further information about the hearing exhibit is available from the health department's state fair coordinator, Mary Brosnan, at (612) 623-5291.

MPUC Orders Changes In NW Bell Program

Minnesota public utilities commission (MPUC) has ordered Northwestern Bell Telephone company to strengthen its program for providing telephone service to the hearing impaired. The order, arising from the company's last general rate case, requires Northwestern Bell to modify its special terminal equipment funding program to increase the maximum loan for telecommunication devices for the deaf (TDD) to $1,600 and to eliminate any interest charges on all existing and future loans.

"During the last rate case, we received a great deal of testimony regarding the problems faced by the hearing impaired in obtaining affordable telephone service," remarked Chairman Terry Hoffman. "The commission felt that it was a real problem which needed correction. We have ordered Bell to take a number of steps to improve telephone service for the hearing impaired, including the expansion of their interest free loan program for TDD's," she added.

It is estimated that there are close to 100,000 persons in the Northwestern Bell service area with either moderate or profound hearing impairments. There are presently around 400 TDD's in use on the Bell system in Minneosta. To date, Bell has had just over 400 new applications for loans for TDD's.

"This is certainly a positive step for the hearing impaired," commented Mary O'Hara, of the Minnesota state council for the handicapped. "The PUC's action will help bring the hearing impaired into the mainstream of society and help them live more independent and full lives."

Labor Day Reminder On Safety Given

Minnesota department of public safety urges motorists to drive with special care during the upcoming Labor day weekend which is one of the busiest periods of the year on state highways.

Holiday begins at 6 p.m., Friday, September 2, and continues to midnight, Monday, September 5, for a total of 78 hours.

"With the last summer holiday of the year, Minnesota roads swell with vacationers on motorcycles, in automobiles, trucks and RVs, many of which are hauling camping and boat trailers," said Chief Roger Ledding of the Minnesota State Patrol. "Added to this number are all the motorists who are traveling to and from the state fair. We've got a lot a traffic coming and going in all directions during this holiday weekend."

According to Chief Ledding, the best advice for motorists is to drive defensively, don't drink and drive and give yourself more time in preparation for meeting slow moving traffic.

In 1982, a 78-hour Labor Day holiday claimed the lives of eight people in seven crashes. A total of 667 accidents occurred, injuring 381 persons on Minnesota roads.

Ledding said the patrol will have a full staff of troopers on duty the entire weekend.

Department of public safety will cooperate with REACT (radio emergency associated citizen teams) who will be set up at rest stops to give motorists a break from the frustration created by long drives.

WITH SAMPLES of the quilts which they hope to market under the company name of Project Heritage Design, Mary Follett, project design manager (left), and Milly Dallman, general manager, explained construction methods and requirements at a meeting in city auditorium last Monday, to over 100 area women interested in home production of piece work for the company. By utilizing simplified methods of construction, they explained, almost anyone with limited sewing skills could produce the complex designs shown. Dallmann stated that response from the women attending was a pleasant surprise, with a large number expressing interest in hand quilting and returning requested samples within a short time.

Mississippi Lock And Dam Bill Advances

The Upper Mississippi river management bill has been added to an omnibus water resources bill in a U.S. senate subcommittee.

The legislation would authorize the construction of a second chamber at Locks & Dam 26 on the Mississippi river and authorize programs for environmental and recreational improvements along the river. Sen. Rudy Boschwitz' bill was offered as an amendment to the omnibus legislation by Boschwitz' Minnesota colleague, Dave Durenberger, a member of the senate water resources subcommittee.

"It was important that the Mississippi river legislation be added to the omnibus water resources bill because no specific project will be supported by itself," Boschwitz said. "I'm very pleased" Senator Durenberger was able to add it in committee because that's the vehicle that has the best chance of passing both the Senate and the House."

Boschwitz testified before the Water Resources Subcommittee on July 18 in support of his bill. He had urged the chairman of the subcommittee, Senator James Abdnor (R-South Dakota) to include the bill as a part of the omnibus legislation.

Besides authorizing a second chamber at Locks & Dam 26, the Boschwitz legislation, the Upper Mississippi river management act (S.449) authorizes an environmental rehabilitation and enhancement program to help protect the backwaters of the river and a program of recreational projects along the river.

The legislation closely follows the recommendations of the Upper Mississippi river basin commission's master plan. The commission was created by Congress in 1978 to make recommendations for multipurpose management of the Upper Mississippi river.

Smoking Not Only Factor In Emphysema

Emphysema, a respiratory disease that kills more than 20,000 Americans each year, has long been associated with cigarette smoking. But a University of Minnesota researcher now believes that cigarette smoke alone does not cause emphysema; rather it merely makes the lungs more susceptible to the disease.

If this is true, other 'cofactors leading to emphysema — possibly bacterial or viral infections in the lungs — might be identified in the future to help scientists focus on the causes of the disease, said John R. Hoidal, associate professor of medicine. Hoidal and his partner, associate professor of medicine Dennis E. Niewoehner, also think it's likely that researchers will discover the specific components in cigarette smoke that stimulate emphysema.

Using hamsters, whose lungs are generally healthy and human-like, Hoidal and Niewoehner have begun a series of investigations that they hope will closely model the effects of long-term smoking on the human lung.

"The ideal situation would be for everyone not to smoke," Hoidal said. "But our alternative approach is to try and find the mechanisms of the lung tissue damage. Right now we're looking at emphysema, but our findings may relate in part to other lung diseases or non-pulmonary diseases associated with cigarette smoking, such as atherosclerosis."

Exposed for half their natural lives to what in humans would be the equivalent of two packs of cigarettes a day, the hamsters developed the same type of lung inflammation that is a common precursor of emphysema in humans. Surprisingly, however, none of the hamsters developed emphysema without the introduction of another foreign element to their lungs, Hoidal said. When the elastase enzyme, at doses not normally harmful, was exposed along with cigarette smoke to the hamster's lungs, the animals uniformly contracted severe emphysema, he said.

Although the researchers obtained the experiment's elastase enzyme from the pancreas of a pig, Hoidal believes that there are probably a number of naturally occurring products which, when combined with cigarette smoke, lead to emphysema. A future step in his research will be to test the impact of viral and bacterial infections combined with cigarette smoke on test animals' lungs.

Another step will be to decipher the mechanisms by which smoking contributes to damaging the lungs. Hoidal believes that one effect of smoking might be that it slows the healing process of the lungs, making them more vulnerable to the destruction of their air sacs, which is caused by emphysema. Another effect of smoking might be that it changes the permeability of the lungs' air spaces, making them more accessible to dangerous elements like infections.

These are questions that Hoidal and Niewoehner, with grants from the National Institutes of health, the Veterans administration and the Minnesota medical foundation, hope to answer in the future.

Obese Children May Become Obese Adults

The statistics are sobering: Obese children have an 80 per cent chance of becoming obese adults.

If children are obese when they enter adolescence, their chances of achieving an ideal body weight later on are one in four. And if they do not achieve a normal weight by the end of the adolescence, their odds of having a normal weight as an adult are only one in 28.

Those statistics make it clear that the earlier children and teen-agers start to lose weight, the easier it is for them, said Karen Clapper, registered dietitian at children's hospital of St. Paul.

Eating and exercise habits are learned at a very early age. If a child has developed bad habits, the sooner those change, the easier it is to lose weight, explained Clapper, who leads weight control classes for children and teen-agers.

Overweight children and teen-agers often have the same bad habits as overweight adults: overeating by ignoring the body's signals that say, "I'm full;" getting too little exercise; and eating as a way to deal with boredom.

Teaching a child good eating and exercise habits, starting from infancy, is the best way to prevent overweight problems, Clapper said. She offered these suggestions for parents:

— Allow an infant to stop eating when he or she is full. Parent who coaxes a baby to finish that last ounce of formula is teaching the child to ignore the body's internal cues of feeling full.

— Introduce solid foods no earlier than four to six months of age. By those ages most infants can sit and hold up their heads, so they can turn away when full.

— Do not use food as a pacifier. Check to see whether there is another reason the child is uncomfortable.

— Do not insist that children eat everything on their plates. Good eaters eat moderately and consume balanced meals and snacks.

— Remember that young children's bodies are not built to eat three big meals a day. Most eat five or six smaller meals. This points up the importance of nutritious, non-sugary snacks, such as fruit or crackers.

— Eat breakfast. Children who see their parents skip breakfast, or have only coffee and a cigarette, are learning a bad habit. Besides, a good breakfast is essential for a child to concentrate in school and to play.

— Promote family activities that involve exercise. Children whose families ride bicycles, go swimming or skating learn to include physical activities in their lives.

Clapper advices parents who think a child may be overweight to consult the child's physician. The physician may refer the child to a weight control program run by a hospital or community agency. Programs emphasize that the way to control weight is to change exercise and eating habits.

Congress Picks Sept. As Wood Energy Month

September has officially been proclaimed wood energy month by congress.

Because wood is our nation's renewable energy resource and is readily available, the wood heating alliance, a national-non-profit industry association, is conducting a wood energy month campaign. Wood energy month campaign of 1983 focuses on continuing to promote the safe use of wood as an alternative heating source.

In an address to the U.S. house of representatives, Congressman Norman E. D'Amours, stated "By using wood partially or fully to heat our homes, we can reduce our vulnerability to future oil and gas price shocks." D'Amours referred to the massive heating oil price shocks in 1973 and 1979.

D'Amours urged every member of congress to join him in endorsing and supporting September as wood energy month. September was designated wood energy month in the June 20 congressional record of the 98th congress.

Wood heating alliance has already taken steps toward energy independence through innovation by development of efficiency test standards and a certification program for solid-fuel appliances.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

It is possible that we may have just achieved the shortest and most stupid recovery that our economy has experienced in decades. What follows that recovery may make many of us wonder why we endured the pain and suffering of a deep depression.

The word appears to be out that the economy is inflating at too fast a rate so that interest charges are going up, credit will be restricted, and the low levels of inflation of the past few quarters may soon be history. With unemployment at about 10 per cent, capacity of plant and equipment at about 65-70 per cent, we have plenty of spare people and capacity, and this is the wrong time to be turning off the money supply and tightening credit and raising interest rates, which are already at historically high levels.

Trying to buy a $62,500 home with an 80 per cent mortgage, and normal escrow provisions for real estate taxes and insurance as a part of monthly payments, the amount needed would be about $440 at eight per cent, $527 at 10 per cent, $617 at 12 per cent, and $711 at 14 per cent. Based on the way some banks and savings and loans calculate, you would need annual income of $21,000 at eight per cent, $25,000 at 10 per cent, $30,000 at 12 per cent, and $34,000 at 14 per cent.

What this means is that at eight per cent and 10 per cent mortgage interest, average American workers can buy the average American home. Once we hit 12 per cent and go up, it becomes tougher and tougher to find buyers. This kills the market for homes, the jobs for construction, and all of the materials and appliance industries that supply those homes.

The mortgage interest rate, with the construction industry still depressed and housing beginning to recover, just started on its way back up, from 11½ per cent to 12 per cent. It ought to be seven to eight per cent!

Examples with autos, appliances, furniture, and many more, will illustrate that higher interest rates will kill our recovery and cause more inflation and unemployment.

Why, then, if this is so clear, are we having problems in getting interest rates down and adequate credit made available to those who should have it?

First, there is the almost $200 billion federal deficit that is using up credit. Second, there are the bad overseas and domestic loans of the past, which banks may want to "make good" (rebuild capital) at the expense of current customers. Third, today the banks offer interest on checking accounts and do not have all of the "free money" they formerly had when we provided deposits in banks and earned no interest. Fourth, our banks are automated, in beautiful facilities, and with increasing numbers of branches (in states that permit that), all of which adds to their cost. Fifth, we have two breeds of economists with a real concern for the money supply... your bank deposits and other readily available cash is defined as the money supply, and that has gone up about 13 per cent in the last year... and these economists are advocating a "tightening up" of money and credit and higher interest rates.

These economists may be doing some faulty thinking as the money supply is now effected technically by some big changes in banking. Money that formerly would not be in deposit accounts has been moved to such accounts due to the money market checking and like instruments that are a part of the money supply. These are the same economists who promised so much and delivered so little over the past two-plus years. I dislike thinking where they should be sent, certainly not back to teaching! Maybe they should be put on Gilligan's Island, where there is no communications equipment!

What concerns me is the possibility that in turning off the spigot on money and credit, we will find ourselves sinking into another and deeper recession with even less confidence in our ability to get out of the problem.

Unlike many of these theoretical guys here in Washington, living out in the real country as I do, I can see the massive unemployment. I can feel the concerns for the people and businesses going through bankruptcy. I know that our people are proud, and that is one of the reasons they have not been complaining because they felt progress was being made. If they see a rise in interest rates, the cutting off of the recovery, and an increase in inflation, they certainly will not just sit back and smile.

I suggest that Mr. Paul Volcker and the rest of the people influencing our economy recognize that interest rates are way too high now... well over historical averages... and that the American people will not sit back and watch those too-high rates go even higher, hurting us all and killing what hope for recovery we had developed.

That's Straight Talk!

LHS, EGF, Crookston Schedules

Winless the past two years, the Lincoln high school football team hopes to turn things around in 1983 and become a winner. The Prowlers' goal is a post-season Class A state playoff berth.

To obtain that goal the Prowlers must do two things as a Class A independent: sweep area rivals East Grand Forks and Crookston, plus post a winning regular season record. The Green Wave and Pirates have the same standards to meet. A year ago East Grand Forks did just that and wound up in the Class A state championship game at Prep Bowl I in the Metrodome. In 1980, the last year of the old Northwest Athletic Conference, Crookston won the league title and went on to take the Class A state title.

Thief River Falls will face the same nine opponents that produced an 0-9 finish a year ago, but instead of playing just three home games and six road games as they did in 1982, the Prowlers will reverse that and play six times at home while going on the road only three times this fall.

Grand Forks Red River will be the Thief River Falls opening-game opponent Friday at Cushman Field in Grand Forks and the Roughriders may very well be the strongest team the Prowlers will face all year.

Then comes a string of five consecutive Friday night home games: Sept. 9 vs. Detroit Lakes; Sept. 16 vs. last year's Class B state runner-up Mahnomen; Sept. 23 vs. Breckenridge; Sept. 30 vs. Moorhead; and Oct. 7 vs. Bemidji, designated as 1983 Homecoming.

Thief River Falls will be on the road Fri., Oct. 14, at Fergus Falls and Wed., Oct. 19, at East Grand Forks in an MEA mid-week game before finishing the season at home Fri., Oct. 28, vs. Crookston.

Meanwhile, East Grand Forks finds itself with just a seven-game 1983 schedule. The Green Wave will play at Grand Forks Central, Barnesville and Breckenridge while hosting Grand Forks Red River, Fergus Falls, Crookston and Thief River Falls in what looks like a demanding schedule that will have to produce a 4-3 finish to be eligible for the playoffs. Over the last three weeks of the season the Green Wave play only Thief River Falls because of two open dates before and after the game with the Prowlers.

Crookston, meanwhile, will have home games with West Fargo, Park Rapids, Aurora-Hoyt Lakes and Barnesville while playing road games at Grand Forks Central, Fergus Falls, East Grand Forks, Mountain Iron-Buhl and Thief River Falls. The Pirates, like the Prowlers, must finish at least 5-4 to be in the running for a post-season berth.

In addition to East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls opponents Bemidji, Mahnomen and Moorhead all have open dates on their 1983 schedules.

Close North Tri-County Race

Grygla-Goodridge, Erskine-Mentor and Plummer are mentioned as preseason favorites in the 1983 North Tri-County Nine-Man high school football conference.

Those three, according to information gathered from area coaches, appear to be very evenly matched and are apparently separated from the rest of the nine-school conference in terms of talent on hand.

It may not be a down-to-the-wire race, though, since the games matching those three favorites will all be completed by the fourth week of the season.

Grygla-Goodridge, after opening with a non-conference game against Marshall County Central Friday at Newfolden, will jump into North Tri-County play with games Sept. 9 at Plummer and Sept. 16 vs. Erskine-Mentor at Grygla. Following week Erskine-Mentor is at Plummer. Whoever survives that three-week scramble will obviously be in the driver's seat over the final month of the season.

Area Football Teams Will Make 1983 Season Debuts On Friday

Five Nine-Man high school football teams in The Times' coverage area — Marshall County Central, Plummer, Middle River, Grygla-Goodridge and Oklee — will open their 1983 seasons Friday at various sites in northwestern Minnesota.

Openers have Marshall County Central and Grygla-Goodridge meeting at Newfolden; Plummer at Gonvick-Trail; Oklee at Fisher; and Middle River at home against McIntosh-Winger.

A preseason preview of the five teams:

Marshall Co. Central........

Top of the State Conference co-champion a year ago, Marshall County Central faces a major rebuilding job following the graduation losses of 12 seniors.

Coach Sam Gebhart's Nordics were 7-1 a year ago in conference play, matching Argyle for first place honors. But the Eagles gained the post-season playoff berth by virtue of their narrow 26-20 double-overtime victory over the Nordics, who were 7-2 overall.

But while graduation losses were apparently minimal throughout the rest of the conference — Argyle, Stephen, Hallock, Greenbush and Tri-County — the Nordics were hard hit. They aren't among the preseason picks for conference honors this fall, acknowledged Gebhart.

"That's incentive for the kids," he explained. "We have to prove ourselves. The kids are working hard. We've got some good athletes; some good kids. We're just a little inexperienced."

There are only five seniors on the squad, but four of them were starters a year ago, including tri-captains Grant Nelson, Ken Krohn and Brent Magner, plus Ross Olson. Newcomer Ryan Shern rounds out the senior class.

Magner will be the quarterback. He played little last year behind Todd Stokke, but he's a good option quarterback, according to Gebhart, who feels he will do a good job. Gebhart also has confidence in back-up quarterback Dan Halvorson, a freshman.

Nelson, 5-8, 215; Olson, 6-3, 204; and Krohn, 6-2, 190; will be the leaders in the line, pointed out Gebhart.

Of the six juniors on the squad, four of them are runningbacks, and might be the club's strong point. The ball carriers include Jay Nelson, Brian Rude, Bret Hanson and Kevin Boe, who logged the most playing time in 1982. Chad Swan and Randy Dahl are the remaining two juniors on the roster.

"The halfbacks are all pretty good prospects," mentioned Gebhart. "They've got good speed and give us better quickness than we've had in the past."

Rest of the current squad members are sophomores Daren Stokke and Shawn Peterson, plus freshman Barry Hanson, Mike Hestekind, Darin Rokke and Tom Bolstad.

Jim Pederson and Mark Jorgenson serve as Marshall County Central assistant coaches.

Stephen and Argyle look like the Top of the State Conference favorites, Gebhart indicated. The rest are pretty even, he said, but again warned, "We've got a lot to prove."

Marshall Co. Central

Fri., Sept. 2 — Grygla-Goodridge; Fri., Sept. 9 — at Tri-County; Fri., Sept. 16 — Argyle; Sat., Sept. 24 — Hallock; Fri., Sept. 30 — at Greenbush; Fri., Oct. 7 — at Stephen; Fri., Oct. 14 — Tri-County; Tues., Oct. 18 — at Argyle; Tues., Oct. 25 — Stephen.

Middle River ....

Middle River coach Eldon Sparby isn't anticipating a conference title, but figures his Skippers can be competitive in the North Tri-County Conference this fall after a lowly 1-8 finish a year ago.

"We've got more potential than last year," he said. "I'm not expecting a conference championship, but after the top two or three teams we should be competitive with the rest of them."

Those top teams, he figures, will be Goodridge-Grygla, Plummer and Erskine-Mentor. "Grygla-Goodridge has the potential to be the best team," said Sparby.

"We should have some pretty fair speed in the backfield," explained Sparby.

Seniors Matthew Burda, a guard, and Sheldon Peterson, an end, lead the list of lineman. Sparby calls the 180-pound Burda the team's best athlete. But outside of those two, the Skippers haven't any experience in the line and that's Sparby's biggest concern in early drills. He might be forced to switch the 202-pound Coltom from fullback to the offensive line.

A year ago the Skippers ended a season-long eight-game losing streak with a final-game 14-6 victory over McIntosh-Winger.

Middle River

Fri., Sept. 2 — McIntosh-Winger; Fri., Sept. 9 — at Gary; Fri., Sept. 16 — at Oklee; Fri., Sept. 23 — Clearbrook; Fri., Sept. 30 — at Gonvick-Trail; Fri., Oct. 7 — at Grygla-Goodridge; Fri., Oct. 14 — Plummer; Tues., Oct. 18 — Erskine-Mentor; Fri., Oct. 28 — at Fisher.

Oklee..........................

Oklee has size, but most of it rests in the freshman class, reports coach Dale Svaren of the Bobcats, and as a result his smaller starters will have their work cut out for them in the North Tri-County Conference this fall.

"We hope to improve over last year," said Svaren, whose 1982 club finished 4-5, but he's quick to list Grygla-Goodridge, Erskine-Mentor and Plummer as heavy favorites to collect the top three finishes in the nine-team conference.

Oklee is particularly small in the backfield where senior quarterback Kevin Enerson will be the biggest back at 5-10, 165. It'll be his first year as starter, but senior runningback Darrin Tougas will be starting for the third year. Junior Loring Mercil also returns in the backfield. Tougas is recovering from a broken wrist suffered during the summer and his status for the 1983 opener is uncertain.

Senior Tom Dulka will be starting for the third year in the offensive line, but at 5-9, 160-pounds he won't make the Bobcats very big. What size they do have rests with tackles Rick Murack, a junior, and David Cote, a sophomore. They both are near 200 pounds.

Oklee

Fri., Sept. 2 — at Fisher; Fri., Sept. 9 — at McIntosh-Winger; Fri., Sept. 16 — Middle River; Fri., Sept. 23 — open date; Fri., Sept. 30 — at Clearbrook; Fri., Oct. 7 — Gonvick-Trail; Fri., Oct. 14 — Grygla-Goodridge; Tues., Oct. 18 — Plummer; Tues., Oct. 25 — at Erskine-Mentor.

Plummer..................

A group of 11 seniors, including five of them who have been starters since they were in ninth grade, figure to make Plummer a North Tri-County Conference contender.

"I'm looking forward to a good year," offered Plummer coach Gary Brantl. "I think we definitely have the capability of going for it," he said in reference to the conference title where he figures the Cardinals will have to battle Grygla-Goodridge and Erskine-Mentor for top billing. "I would like to think we fit in the top three."

Senior co-captains Troy Gustafson and Mike Konickson are among those who were starters as freshmen. The others are Tim Gagner, Brian Fisher and Karl Mattison. They were 0-9 that year and still remember the feeling, noted Brantl. Plummer was 4-5 in 1982.

Gagner will quarterback the team. Gustafson, Konickson and junior Russ Fisher are listed as the starting runningbacks. "Our backs are hard runners," explained Brantl. "They aren't big, but they just won't go down."

And those backs will be running behind a couple of pretty fair linemen, said Brantl. In 5-11, 195-pound sophomore Gary Torkelson, a third starter, and Mattison, a 5-11, 174-pounder who missed virtually the entire 1982 season with a collarbone injury.

Offensively the Cardinals should be good. Defensively, with eight of nine starters back, they could be even better.

Rest of the squad members are seniors Marc Cook, Mark Anderson, John Maki, Warren Tvedt, Eric Eskell and Dean Hovet; juniors Gene Fisher, Russ Fisher, Duane Franklund, Bill Traxler, Tony Gerardy and Dean Torkelson; plus freshmen John Fisher, Eric Johnson, Dan Wichterman, Wayne Erickson, Neil Houtari, Tom Hesse and Rusty Sheperd.

"The key is, they want it," noted Brantl. "This group has a great attitude. They're in great shape. They're looking forward to a good year."

Plummer

Fri., Sept. 2 — at Gonvick-Trail; Fri., Sept. 9 — Grygla-Goodridge; Fri., Sept. 16 — open date; Fri., Sept. 23 — Erskine-Mentor; Fri., Sept. 30 — at Fisher; Fri., Oct. 7 — McIntosh-Winger; Fri., Oct. 14 — at Middle River; Tues., Oct. 18 — at Oklee; Tues., Oct. 25 — Clearbrook.

Grygla-Goodridge..........

Grygla and Goodridge, two area rivals, will bury the hatchet this fall for a new cooperative venture in high school football, and the end result might very well produce the first North Tri-County Conference title for either community. There are enough good athletes among the 13 Grygla and nine Goodridge players to make the Blue Devils one of the preseason favorites.

"It's a different feeling for us," admitted Grygla-Goodridge head coach Rick Nelson. "Neither Goodridge or Grygla has ever been a preseason favorite before; neither one of us has ever finished in the top three."

"It's great to have the recognition, but at the same time we have some mixed emotions about it," he added. "We really don't know how the kids will respond to the situation."

A year ago Goodridge finished 4-5 and Grygla was 2-7. The end result should be better this time. "We feel we have some good athletes," explained Nelson, who was willing to let Erskine-Mentor carry the No. 1 preseason label while also pointing a finger at Plummer as a title threat. The Blue Devils face the Mustangs and Cardinals in their first two conference starts. "We don't have a star player this year," Nelson added. "Both programs have had better individuals in the past, but I don't think I've seen a better group in one program before."

Tony Wiseth, a 145-pound senior with 2½ years of starting experience at Goodridge, will quarterback the squad. A smart competitor, Wiseth will undoubtedly call on Doug Schulz, a 180-pound senior to carry the ball. Schulz was headed for an outstanding 1982 season at Grygla before he was sidelined in the third game with an injury and missed the rest of the year. He's strong, with good quickness, reported Nelson.

Junior Rick Mosher will probably be the fullback, with the other runningback spot going to either senior Wayne Byklum, junior Tim Irlbeck or junior Jared Sjulestad.

Junior Scott Groven could

FOOTBALL SEASON got underway Saturday at Prowler Field during the tenth annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Pigskin Preview. Varsity teams from East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls, along with junior varsity teams from East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls and Roseau took part in the afternoon scrimmage sessions. There was also a volleyball demonstration and a barbecue beef dinner served to the spectators and players. Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks unofficially played to a 6-6 tie during their 50-play offensive series.

Pigskin Preview Is Held On Saturday

It was an unofficial 6-6 tie Saturday as Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks squared off in a 100-play football scrimmage on Prowler Field during the tenth annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Pigskin Preview.

Team alined up at their own 30-yard line for a 20-play offensive series, returning to the 30 if at any time during the drive they failed to pick up a first down. Both sides ran two 20-play offensive sets, then finished it off with a 10-play series.

East Grand Forks, last year's Class A state runner-up, scored on its 15th play of the second series, capping a drive with a short run through the middle.

Thief River Falls teached the end zone with a short run on the 19th play of its second series.

A good-size fan turn-out also had an opportunity to watch junior varsity scrimmages involving Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks and Roseau, plus a volleyball demonstration. A traditional barbecue beef picnic dinner with corn-on-the-cob, cole slaw, ice cream and pop closed out the event that was warmed by bright sun and 90-degree temperatures.

East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls both open their 1983 football seasons Friday night at Cushman Field in Grand Forks. The Green Wave play Grand Forks Central at 5 p.m. in the doubleheader opener while the Prowlers take on Grand Forks Red River at 8 p.m. in the nightcap.

Golf Club Has Busy Schedule

Several events were held last week at the Thief River Country Club, reports Deb Jacobson of the Pro Shop.

There were 130 men who participated in Dwight's Hartz Day Wednesday. Winners included low gross — Jay Moum, 35; low net — Bob Wurst, 27; longest drive — Moum; closest to the pin to two shots on No. 6 — Lowell Halvorson; longest putt on No. 9 — Bob Evans.

Seventy-six golfers were on the course for L. B. Hartz Day Thursday, including sales representatives, wholesalers, Hartz Warehouse employees and Hartz store owners.

First annual two-man Texas golf tournament was held Saturday with 30 participants. Winners in the scratch division were Marv Carlson and Jerry Johnson, who beat Jay Moum and Stan Sjoberg. Both teams were tied at 9-under after 18 holes to necessitate a playoff. Winners in the handicap division were Keith Charbonneau and Jim Morrissey with a gross 80 and a net 54. Second place went to Arnold Narverud and Roy Lee with a net 56 while third went to Deb Jacobson and Diane Anderson with a net 57.

Other team winners Saturday included closest to the pin on No. 4 — Curt Geatz, Bill Penning; closest to the hole in two shots on No. 6 — Moum, Sjoberg; longest putt on No. 9 — Dean Anderson, Jim Barry; fewest putts — Art Welter, Jim Rogalla.

MSHSL Will Reach 500

Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) will begin its 68th year of service to the youth of the state with the start of the 1983-84 school year. This upcoming school year MSHSL membership will number an even 500 schools.

League membership is down by two schools (502-500) from last school year. One change finds Immanuel Lutheran of Mankato rejoining the MSHSL after a year's absence since first joining in 1981, and three other memberships are involved in mergers.

White Bear and Mariner high schools have merged to become one school and will be called White Bear Lake Area high school and will locate at the Mariner campus; Morgan and Franklin have merged and will be named Cedar Mountain high school and will locate in Morgan; and the Minnesota Braille and Sight Saving School and Minnesota School for the Deaf, both located in Fairbault, have merged to become the Minnesota School for the Deaf and Blind.

Bemidji Takes Trophy In TRF Tennis Invitational

Bemidji and Thief River Falls shared first place honors Friday at the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters girls high school invitational tennis tournament, but the Lumberjills went home with the championship trophy following tie-breaking procedures.

Final point standings in the five-team event showed Bemidji and Thief River Falls with 17 points each, Crookston 10, East Grand Forks 4, and Moorhead 2.

Team trophy went to Bemidji, though, since the Lumberjills won three of five individual matches against the Prowlers.

Individually, Thief River Falls won three titles and Bemidji had two winners.

For the Prowlers, junior Michelle Olson was 4-0 at No. 1 singles; junior Natalie Wilson and sophomore Connie Grovum were 3-1 at No. 1 doubles; while eighth graders Vicki Grovum and Kelly Cornell were 4-0 at No. 2 doubles.

Bemidji had titlist in junior Jody Solheim, 4-0 at No. 2 singles; and sophomore Molly Knutson, 4-0 at No. 3 singles.

It was a close finish in first doubles where the 3-1 record by Wilson and Grovum was matched by Kelly Downs and Deb Thorson of Bemidji; Julie Kujawa and Marlene Johnson of Crookston, both playing sets of seniors. But the trophies went to Wilson and Grovum based upon the fewest number of games lost during the warm, day-long event. Wilson and Grovum lost 13 games, Downs and Thorson dropped 20 while Kujawa and Johnson lost 22.

"It was a good day for us," explained Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson. He said the Prowlers were naturally a little disappointed in not winning the trophy, but still said, "We were pretty happy with our performance."

It was the second start of the 1983 season for the Prowlers, who beat Roseau 5-0 in dual meet competition to open the year earlier in the week.

Thief River Falls hosts East Grand Forks Tuesday in a 3 p.m. dual and will be in Bemidji for a triangular with the Lumberjills and Brainerd Thursday at 3:30 p.m.

Fergus Falls' Richard Baker Heads MSHSL

Superintendent Richard Baker, head of public schools in Fergus Falls, has been elected president of the Board of Directors of the Minnesota State High School League for the 1983-84 school year.

Baker, who will begin his fourth year on the MSHSL Board of Directors after serving as vice-president last year, becomes the league's 33rd president.

A representative of Regions 7-8AA, Baker succeeds Gene Olive, who is director of personnel for Richfield public schools, as president.

Elected vice-president of the board for 1983-84 was Kerwin Engelhart, director of athletics, Rochester public schools. Engelhart, who represents Regions 1-2AA, is in his third year of service on the board.

Prowlers Host Lakers In Volleyball Opener Friday

Lincoln high school volleyball coach Helen Anderson, even without a single starter returning off last year's squad, figures the Prowlers will be better in 1983.

"I'm optimistic," said the second-year head coach. "I think we'll be very much improved this year." A Mobile Sports volleyball camp conducted in Thief River Falls was a huge success, reported Anderson. "The camp really helped the kids. Some of them improved 100 per cent just from the camp," she noted.

Thief River Falls was 3-12 in dual meet competition last fall, 4-18 overall including a pair of invitational meet appearances. The Prowlers weren't very strong offensively a year ago, but the image of the weak-hitting team should change in 1983, indicated Anderson.

Working with the varsity in early practice drills were seniors Becky Ulrich, Missy Bondy, Nora Haushagen, Kim Poole and Jackie Kramer, plus juniors Kelli Olson, Leslie Weigand, Deb Opdahl, Paula Bergan, Kristi Finney, Angie Brazier and Patty Grabowska, a transfer student from Goodridge.

Ulrich and Bondy will serve as co-captains. Those two, plus Haushagen, Bergan and Finney lettered as back-up performers in 1982.

Anderson said Poole, Opdahl and Bergan have looked good as setters in practice, with Ulrich, Bondy, Weigand and Finney all doing well as hitters. Grabowska has been a pleasant addition as a strong server.

"It looks good," said Anderson, who will be aided again by assistant coach Jodi Bendickson. "We're ready to get going."

Rest of the squad members include juniors Jeri Loeffler, Cindy Kain, Lisa Arnold and Karla Johnson; sophomores Lisa Langan, Pauline Lindberg, Kari Hanson, Tina Kruse, Stephanie Hovet, Maria Henderson, Susie Thune, Michelle Kurtz, LeeAnn Hanestad, Paula Erickson, Jayne Matson, Lori Hendrickson and Lisa Ault; plus freshmen Vikki Weigand, Shari Erickson, Cheryl VanHorn, Stacy Class, Paulie Wegge, Marla Edington, Brenda Fowler, Lisa Hendrickson, Lisa Ray, Shalla Otteson and Kristy Johnson.

Thief River Falls hosts Detroit Lakes Friday in the 1983 season opener. Matches start at 6:15 p.m. (junior varsity) and 7:30 p.m. (varsity) in the Lincoln gym.

Bicycle Trail

A bike trail in St. Croix state park connecting the Paint Rock Spring campground and the Clayton Lake beach and picnic area is being given a bituminous surfacing this summer, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

Barber Construction Company, Inc., is expected to have the project completed in August at a cost of approximately $125,000. The trail is 5.5 miles in length.

St. Louis River Access

Anglers and boaters will soon have an improved public water access site on the St. Louis river in Duluth, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

Called the Rices Point site, the access is located beneath the Blatnik Bridge and is presently classed as "unimproved." Plans call for developing a parking area for more than 50 car-trailer units, a double wide paved concrete ramp for launching boats and a permanent dock.

Project is to be completed this month and is being constructed at a cost of approximately $70,000 by CICH Trucking of Duluth. Funding was provided through the Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources (LCMR).

DNR officials said the project required the cooperative efforts of the following property owners and regulatory agencies: City of Duluth, Minnesota Department of Transportation, Minnesota Power and Light Company, Seaway Port Authority of Duluth, U.S. Corps of Engineers and the Department of Natural Resources.

Officials said the access, when completed, will accommodate a variety of sizes and types of watercraft.

Iowa Game Law

Enforcement officials at the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources report that the state of Iowa has imposed some new license regulations that affect both resident and non-resident hunters.

Beginning this year, the minimum age to obtain a hunting license in Iowa is 12 years old. Further, anyone born after January 1, 1967 must have satisfactorily completed an approved hunter education course from Iowa or another state or Canadian province before a license will be issued.

In order to purchase a Iowa hunting license, the youngster must show a hunter education certification card to the license vendor before a license will be issued.

Wildlife Projects

Two wildlife management areas in north-central Minnesota will be improved this year, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

At Kimberly Marsh near McGregor a contract has been awarded to Ferweda General Construction of Bovey to repair 3,375 feet of a dike that retains the water for a wildlife impoundment.

Project will cost about $12,000 and be completed late this fall.

At the Ruf-Nik wildlife management area near Cushing in Morrison county, a 25 acre impoundment will be created with the construction of a 700 foot dike and a water control structure for draining the pond.

Project, costing $9,300, is being built under contract to David Larson of Little Falls and is expected to be completed later this summer.

These projects are being funded from waterfowl stamp monies.

Improve Camp Area

A $68,000 project to upgrade the campgrounds at Helmer Myre state park near Albert Lea is presently underway and is expected to be completed soon, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

Project consists of gravel resurfacing of two miles of road and 100 campsite parking spurs in Big Island and White Fox campgrounds.

Contractor is Ulland Brothers, Inc. of Austin.

DNR hotline

1. Are wild flowers protected from digging and picking and if so, where can I get a list of the ones protected?

There have been laws for a number of years protecting wildflowers. The first law stated that no one within the state of Minnesota could buy, sell, or offer for sale the state flower, any species of Lady Slipper, or any member of the orchid family. All Trillium, Lilies, Gentians, and Arbutus plants were also protected. Plants could, however, be collected for scientific purposes with written permission from the commissioner of agriculture. In 1980-81 the state legislature enacted 97.488 of Chapter 285 of the Laws of Minnesota entitled Protection of Threatened and Endangered Species charging the commissioner of natural resources to designate endangered, threatened or species of concern in Minnesota. Any of these plants or animals so designated may not be taken, sold, or offered for sale. A list is available in some public libraries, Regional DNR offices, and at the state capitol. There are 38 plant species on the endangered list, 40 plant species on the threatened list and 85 species of special concer. Paul Rundell, Regional Resource Coordinator.

2. Why not collect and burn dead wood lying on the ground in State Parks?

Park rule prohibiting the collecting of firewood was established for good reason. With thousands of visitors each year, collecting firewood would soon leave our state parks with a "manicured" or "city park" look. The forest floor would soon be bare of all debris. Removing dead wood interrupts the decaying process which provides nutrients to the soil-important nutrients for our native wildflowers, shrubs and trees. Decaying wood supplies homes and reproductive sites for many of Minnesota's rare or unusual small animals. Accumulating decaying matter on the ground also helps prevent soil compaction and loss of moisture. Interpretive Staff, Region I.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Two and a half years after the inauguration of President Reagan and almost three years since the mandate of the 1980 election, federal spending continues to careen out of control.

Despite popular misconceptions, the federal budget is actually growing more rapidly today than it did under Jimmy Carter. Budget growth in constant dollars averaged 3.7 per cent under Carter. Average growth in the past two years has jumped to 4.3 per cent.

Runaway federal spending presents two dangers to the present economic recovery. First, federal spending financed through taxes is a drain on personal income and high marginal tax rates are a disincentive to save, work and invest. Second, that portion of the budget financed through borrowing — the deficit — absorbs capital that would otherwise be available for investment in the productive sector of the economy. Larger deficits mean less capital, or more expensive capital, for home loans, car loans or venture capital for new businesses and new jobs.

When one speaks with congressmen about the problem of excessive spending in Washington, the responses can be broken down into three categories.

First, are those politicians who insist that we should reduce the deficit through higher taxes rather than spending restraint.

This method of reducing the deficit has one fatal flaw, however. It doesn't work. Raising taxes will only fuel more spending and slow the growth of the economy. Recent studies show that a one per cent decline in the growth of the economy will increase the 1984 deficit by $13.5 billion and hike the 1985 deficit by $26.7 billion. Raising taxes will increase, not decrease, our deficit.

The second response is an echoing of the old New England farmer who responded to a request for directions by saying, "You can't get there from here." These politicians insist that the $859 billion budget for 1984 cannot be reduced. The budget, they say, is already "cut to the bone." The hidden message here is that they would rather keep taxes and spending high on all Americans than confront the special interests and tell them that there will be fewer goodies this year than last. They represent the "I've never met a special interest I didn't like," school of politics. It is a high stakes game, but played with the taxpayers' money.

The third response from the politicians is often, "I'd like to cut the budget, but can you show me where it can be done." It is intended as a conversation stopper. A put down. The average taxpayer is not versed in the intricacies of the federal budget.

This has changed however with the release of the report of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control, also known as the Grace Commission after its chairman J. Peter Grace. The commission was led by business, labor and academic leaders who donated their time. In all, over 1,300 individuals spent months researching the federal government discovering ways to reduce waste, fraud and abuse. Their findings to date have totalled to 98 pounds of reports including 2,238 recommendations. If all these recommendations were enacted, federal spending could be cut by over $270 billion in the next three years.

Some of the recommendations require congressional action. Others could be enacted by an executive order from President Reagan or his department heads. The importance of the Grace Commission report is that it puts to rest once and for all the myth that the federal budget cannot be reduced without gutting programs.

As taxpayers it will be extremely interesting for us to watch our congressmen and the Administration to see whether these recommendations are enacted or buried in a file cabinet. It will tell us a great deal about the true nature of our national leadership.

Americans have always known that where there is a will there is a way. The Grace Commission has shown us 2,236 ways to reduce federal spending.

Congress and the Administration must know how to show the will.

In 1964, Ronald Reagan addressed the nation on national television and observed: "A government agency is the nearest thing to eternal life we'll ever see on this earth."

Twenty years later, Ronald Reagan, now President Reagan, is being reminded of this truth. For while tens of thousands of species have become extinct throughout history, the number of federal agencies that have gone the way of the dodo bird is small. Such agencies have developed a ferocious instinct for survival and command the resources needed in any fight: dollars, lots of them. Their own money? No. Where do they find this money? In our pockets, every April 15.

The Legal Services Corporation is a case in point. It began modestly as a program to provide legal aid to lower income Americans. Fair enough, except that this task was already being performed by public defenders at the state and local level. However, over time, the emphasis shifted to political advocacy lawsuits aimed at increasing welfare payments and the like.

The ensuing scandals in the Legal Services Corporation — which spent $324 million in 1981 — became so embarrassing that the Reagan administration made it clear they wanted to close the doors of the LSC.

This did not sit well with the Legal Services bureaucrats who feared an end to our government's welfare program for left-wing lawyers. Despite laws and regulations against blatant politicking by government employees they began to organize. How do we know about these "secret" political meetings? Well, our friendly bureaucrats were kind enough to videotape these sessions. (Even Richard Nixon only provided sound recordings of his peccadillos!)

Recently discovered transcripts of one political meeting display a shocking contempt for the political process, taxpayers in general and the laws forbidding such taxpayer-financed campaigning.

One session held in Denver, Colorado in January 1981 laid out the "strategy for survival." What was foremost on the minds of the Legal Service lawyers and recipients of federal grant money who attended? Concern for the poor? No. Alan Houseman, Director of the Corporation's Research Institute, explained that "What's at stake is first the survival of the committed, aggressive, political staff." And to defend this "political" staff from those nasty taxpayers, Houseman bragged that "we also have more resources to devote to this effort than we've ever had in the past." What resources? Our tax dollars, of course.

Houseman goes on to announce that "Our challenge, in general, obviously is to manipulate the political situation to our advantage." How many of us are aware that we shell out hundreds of millions of dollars each year to bureaucrats who turn around and use it to "manipulate the political situation." I may be naive, but I always believed that in a democracy the people were supposed to decide the political direction of the nation, not the unelected bureaucrats using our tax dollars.

As the meeting progressed, it became clear that the political clout of the Legal Services Corporation has been used before. Speakers boasted of their role in defeating Proposition 9, a California initiative to cut income taxes. It was defeated in part because bureaucrats paid for by our tax dollars were "released from his or her other obligations to work exclusively on Proposition 9 for three months." They also bragged that they hired "full-time coordinators" for the pro-tax lobbying effort. Plans were also drawn at this secret political meeting to use tax dollars to campaign for a California redistricting plan that favored left-wing congressional candidates.

Despite the efforts of the Reagan administration, the political campaign run by these bureaucrats has so intimidated some members of Congress that taxpayer funding for the LSC continues. The LSC will cost us $241 million in 1983. (You may wish to ask your representative or senator how he voted on this bill.)

Ronald Reagan summed up the situation in his autobiography, Where's The Rest Of Me?, when he wrote, "Bureaucracy does not take kindly to being assailed and isn't above using a few low blows and a knee in the groin when it fights back."

Two hundred, forty-one million dollars is a lot of money to spend for this abuse from our "civil" servants.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT'S wind storm in Thief River Falls resulted in a lot of downed trees, but compared to the tornado which hit the St. Hilaire area on Thursday, cleanup was clind's play. City crews worked much of the night and all day Thursday repairing damaged power lines and clearing limbs from streets, sidewalks and alleys. Although some roofs and cars reportedly received minor damage, no injuries were recorded. This group of neighborhood youngsters made the most of a mountain ash tree which blew down in the Wendell Brekkestran yard at 1112 North Arnold, finding adventure in the "secret tunnels" created by the maze of branches.

be a top runningback, too, but instead he'll be a big asset at split end, said Nelson.

Junior Dale Verbout, a 190-pounder, and senior Rodney Haugen, 185, are expected to be the top linemen.

While the offense has promise, the defense might well be the team's strength, headed by Mosher, Groven, Wayne Byklum and junior Bill Neuschwander, all linebackers.

Nelson, the head coach at Goodridge last year, is being assisted in the cooperative venture by Darwin Hagen, the head coach at Grygla last fall, and he's quick to point out Hagen's value to the program, a venture that has gone smoothly to date. "The kids are blending well," mentioned Nelson. "There's no problem with the kids, they get along great. The parent and community support is growing all the time."

Rest of the squad members include seniors Jeff Klein, Tim Bakken, Lon Englund and Brian Jones; juniors David Lunsetter, Ron Kiesow, Rick Carlson, and Tim Wayne; plus sophomores Darrin Byklum, Andy Bates, Tim Schulz and Brian Holte. The cooperative program will allow the coaches to keep freshmen out of the line-up unless they prove they belong there, noted Nelson.

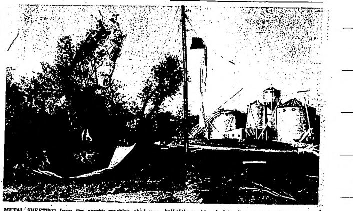
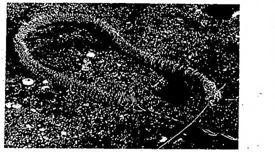
MACHINE SHED on the Edgar Naplin farm was extensively damaged when a tornado struck the farm about 11 p.m. Thursday. Equipment housed in the shed seemed to have escaped damage although some damage may have been hidden by the debris. Top photo shows the damaged grain bins next to the machine shed where a large grain handling system was toppled. The winds also collapsed a large barn on the farm but only minor damage was done to the house when a large tree fell and caused minor damage to the roof and broke one window.



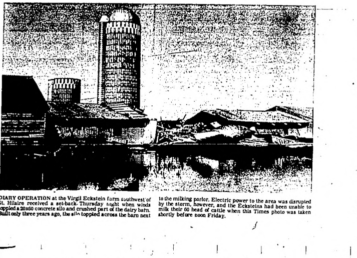
METAL SHEETING from the nearby machine shed was wrapped around trees or hanging from power lines at the Edgar Naplin farm southwest of St. Hilaire Friday morning. A tornado struck the farm about 11 p.m. Thursday, tearing away nearly half of the machine shed, toppling a grain handling system for the bins in the background, collapsing a large barn and toppling, breaking or tearing the tops off most of the trees in the farmstead.



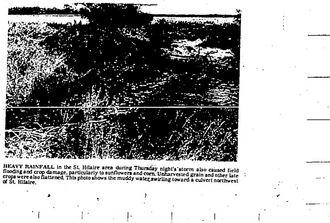
ELECTRIC POWER CABLE was transformed into a piece of wire sculpture when tornadic winds struck the Edgar Naplin farm late Thursday night. The several strand cable was forced back along the single center strand to create this unusual effect. One wire which had fallen to the ground is pictured here. Another shorter length affected the same way was still in place.

SNAPPED OFF when it was unable to resist the tornado that struck the Edgar Naplin farm southwest of St. Hilaire Thursday evening, this large boxelder tree narrowly missed the Npalin home. Trees on the other side of the house were uprooted but also crashed past the home where the Naplins had taken refuge in the basement. Most of the trees in the farmstead windbreak were toppled or damaged, many having the tops twisted off and shredded.

WIND AND RAIN flattened this large field of sunflowers located just east of the Robert Sorvig farm yard southwest of St. Hilaire Thursday. The strong winds uprooted or broke a number of trees in the Sorvig yard as it did throughout the neighborhood. Many corn and sunflower fields and unharvested small grain fields were extensively damaged by the wind, rain and some small hail.



DIARY OPERATION at the Virgil Eckstein farm southwest of St. Hilaire received a set-back Thursday night when winds toppled a 20x60 concrete silo and crushed part of the dairy barn. Built only three years ago, the silo toppled across the barn next to the milking parlor. Electric power to the area was disrupted by the storm, however, and the Ecksteins had been unable to milk their 60 head of cattle when this Times photo was taken shortly before noon Friday.



HEAVY RAINFALL in the St. Hilaire area during Thursday night's storm also caused field flooding and crop damage, particularly to sunflowers and corn. Unharvested grain and other late crops were also flattened. This photo shows the muddy water swirling toward a culvert northwest of St. Hilaire.

Motivation Keys Job Performance

By Judith Raunig-Graham
'U'M News Service

Americans don't have to copy the Japanese to improve their performance in the workplace if managers and employees adopt some simple strategies to improve their motivation, a University of Minnesota school of management professor believes.

"I've concluded that one of the problems with productivity in the United States today is that people are not motivated by what they're doing," Professor Charles Manz said. "People don't enjoy their work. To change that, a manager has a responsibility to convey an image of work that is more positive."

In a soon-to-be published book and in his classes on organizational behavior and psychology in management, Manz points out that there are three key ingredients necessary for people to enjoy their work. People should be rewarded for their work, they should experience feelings of self-control in their work setting and they should feel that their work is worthwhile.

Manz said that there are two types of rewards attached to all jobs: natural and external. External rewards are the ones most people associate with work, such as a pay raise, a bonus, fringe benefits and praise.

Contrary to popular opinion, it is praise, not a fatter paycheck, that helps improve worker motivation, Manz said.

"Research shows that praise is the most powerful form of reinforcement," he said. "The praise does not need to be given randomly, but should be attached to performance to keep employees looking ahead.

"Punishment is rarely effective, but constructive negative feedback can be useful when someone is off target," he continued. "Without negative feedback an employee won't know how to improve, but a good manager doesn't dwell on what's being done wrong. The negative feedback should be sandwiched in with positive reinforcement," Manz said.

It is the natural rewards of work, however, that Manz believes have been overlooked in ehiping develop motivation. "If people are naturally pulled by their work they will be more enthusiastic," he said.

People tend to enjoy work or tasks that they feel competent doing, he said. So the ideal manager will assign tasks that enhance an employee's sense of competence. At the same time employees should seek out activities that they can accomplish well.

Tasks that employees choose help contribute to their feeling of self-determination. Manz believes it is a natural human tendency for people to want to control their own destinies. If their every move is dictated by someone or some rule, employees are likely to feel helpless and suffer a lack of motivation.

Third component that increases motivation, Manz maintains, is a sense of purpose. People who believe that they are helping or expressing good will toward others are more likely to think that their jobs are worthwhile.

Manz refers to psychology to explain workers' desire for a sense of purpose. He says there is considerable evidence that altruism is a part of human nature. He thinks it is no accident that a manufacturing plant he visited to do research had both highly motivated workers and the motto, "People Helping People."

What makes a person feel altruistic can stem from the individual work undertaken or from a company that uses part of its profits to enhance the quality of life. For example, the teacher who is dedicated to helping children learn and grow is likely to feel altruistic. And so are employees of a company that contributes substantially to cultural organizations in a community.

There are a number of ways that managers and employees can build natural rewards into tasks, Manz said. He likes to use the image of a jogger who runs around the same track everyday to get in shape as opposed to the jogger who runs along the ocean one day and in the woods the next enjoying nature. In the business setting just changing the location of a staff meeting could yield results. Employees will react differently when they meet in the formal conference room than when they meet at a resort, he said.

Manz suggested that persons who enjoy direct conversations convey their memos face to face rather than on paper. The formal memo may not be necessary all the time, he said.

Tremendous power is available when people enjoy their work because it naturally pulls them to perform, Manz said in an article he wrote for the August "National Productivity Review." "Perhaps that's the key to commitment, not compliance, that can meet the Japanese challenge."

Another approach that workers can take to increase their motivation is to focus on the natural rewards of their work. It may sound simple, Manz said, but workers can choose to highlight either the negative or positive aspects of their work. If they think about the pleasant aspects of tasks, their enjoyment of them will increase.

MCC Classes Start With Full Day On Wed.

Marshall County Central schools at Newfolden and Viking will open Wednesday with a full day of classes.

Students at Viking elementary school will be greeted by some new faces this year, including Glenna Moen, third grade teacher replacing Thelma Ness, who retired. Also new is Jean Anderson, replacing aide Florence Borg, who also retired.

New high school teachers include English instructor Paul Sharon, replacing Carol Peterson, who transferred to another state; special learning and behavior problems instructor Scott Thurlow, replacing Beth Kreuter, who resigned; and Betty Gonsorowski, who will be on temporary assignment in the art department.

Changes also are evident as a result of maintenance projects which were completed over the summer. They included installation of a new fuel oil tank and roofing repairs at the high school, and installation of drain tile at the Viking elementary school.

New textbooks have been purchased for a number of classes, including elementary health, junior high social studies and geography, and some English and science classes. In addition, five new computer systems have been purchased for student purposes.

Bus routes and schedules will be the same as last year.

Packets of information about the schools should have been sent to parents of school age children. Persons who should have received one of the packets but didn't should call the school office at 874-7225. Parents of students new to the school district should contact the school principals prior to the first day of school.

MACHINE SHED on the Clarence Lian farm east of Middle River changed locations when what is believed to be a tornado struck the farm about 6:30 a.m. Monday. The 36x60 building was torn loose from its moorings and moved about 10 feet to the south, being twisted and partially collapsed in the process. Part of the south wall, which was lifted, moved over and set down on some farm machinery located south of the building, is shown in the above photo.

School Enrollment For Local Schools Declines

Opening day enrollment at the Thief River Falls public schools shows a continuing decline which has been noted since 1979. Enrollment today of 2,391 is down 99 from a year ago and 275 fewer than in 1981, according to attendance counts released by the office of Supt. Robert Block.

Supt. Block said he expects about 15 more students to be enrolled after being absent on opening day due to vacations, state fair trips, farm work and other reasons. He also anticipates enrollment of 19 preschool special education pupils when that program begins September 6.

It was again emphasized that opening day enrollments do not constitute totally valid comparisons from year to year because of the conflicting summer's end activities which keep students away from classes. They do, however, serve as an indicator of current situations.

In only one year since 1976 when there were 3,128 students enrolled in grades K-12 in Thief River Falls public schools has the enrollment increased on a succeeding opening day. That was in 1978 when 3,052 students were in first day attendance — one more than the 3,051 the previous year.

The school district's five-year enrollment projection made last October indicated an expected 1983-84 enrollment of 2,339. Opening day enrollment is 52 above that mark. The projection called for 2,255 students in 1984-85, 2,222 in 1985-86, 2,131 in 1986-87 and 2,045 in 1987-88.

Record high enrollment for the Thief River Falls public schools was in 1973 when opening day numbers totaled 3,295. Since then enrollment has dropped by more than 900 students.

Compared with last year, elementary school enrollment in grades one through five is down 73 from 902 to 829, middle school enrollment in grades six through eight is up five from 605 to 610 and high school enrollment in grades nine through 12 is down 35 from 804 to 769. Kindergarten enrollment is up one from 172 to 173.

Enrollment by schools includes the following with 1983 enrollment listed first and 1982 comparative enrollment in parentheses:

Mark Twain — Kindergarten, 61 (22); grade one, 48 (29); grade two, 57 (25); grade three, 53 (27); grade four, 48 (29); and grade five, 60 (31);

Washington — Kindergarten, 58 (21); grade one, 49 (53); grade two, 75 (47); grade three, 51 (51); grade four, 56 (28); and grade five, 52 (59);

Northrop — Kindergarten, 54 (21); grade one, 48 (51); grade two, 52 (54); grade three, 71 (50); grade four, 55 (54); and grade five, 54 (57).

Total elementary enrollments are Northrop, 334 (287), Washington, 341 (259) and Mark Twain, 337 (184). Last year Knox school was in operation with 265 students. The previous year St. Hilaire school had 137 students on opening day. Both of these schools have been closed for elementary students.

At Franklin middle school there are 192 sixth graders, 196 seventh graders and 222 eighth graders while Lincoln has 179 freshman, 200 sophomores, 190 juniors and 200 seniors.

Hazardous Waste Meeting In Newfolden Sept. 26

Citizens will have an opportunity to help find solutions to Minnesota's hazardous waste problem — and to help develop the state's long-term hazardous waste policies — at a public meeting to be conducted by the Minnesota waste management board at 7:30 p.m. September 26, at the Newfolden community center.

The meeting is one of 30 special public meetings to be conducted by the board on state hazardous waste policies throughout the state during September and October. Board representatives will present information on Minnesota's hazardous waste problem and the policies and programs the board is considering to help solve it.

Citizens will discuss such issues as taxes and regulations on industries that generate hazardous wastes, liability for wastes treated or disposed in Minnesota, and whether state government should subsidize or become otherwise involved in hazardous waste processing or disposal in Minnesota.

Such issues are not only of concern to citizens in areas the board is considering as possible sites for hazardous waste processing or disposal facilities, but to all Minnesotans. New state programs to improve hazardous waste management could affect consumer prices, place new taxes on businesses, industries or residents, or affect future programs to regulate hazardous wastes and protect the environment.

The board's draft hazardous waste management report, issued in early August and now available for public review in local libraries, will serve as a basis of information for the meeting. Residents are urged to read and review the report.

The report estimates that 174,000 tons of hazardous wastes are generated in Minnesota each year, with Hennepin, Ramsey, Washington, St. Louis and Dakota counties ranking — in that order — as the top five generating counties in the state. The draft report also states that Minnesota's hazardous wastes are generated by chemical industries, rubber and plastics firms, metal fabricators, printing firms, platers and circuit board manufacturers, and a wide range of other industries.

The final report, to be issued in early November following citizen review at the public meetings, will provide the board with information needed to develop an overall hazardous waste management plan that will serve as the state's guiding policy in determining hazardous waste management practices through the year 2000 and beyond.

To initiate discussion on the development of the hazardous waste management plan, the draft report includes a tentative statement of general board policies. The policy statement declares that environmental protection is the board's highest goal, and that the waste management methods favored by the board, in their order of preference, are reduction, recycling, treatment and disposal.

The report estimates that, under a state policy of "high waste reduction," 160,000 tons of hazardous wastes would still be generated in Minnesota by the year 2000, with incineration, fuel blending, waste oil refining, treatment, metal recovery and a variety of other facilities handling almost 80 per cent of the total — and 36,000 tons remaining that would require containment in a secure disposal facility.

At the upcoming meeting, board representatives will present slides on the hazardous waste problem and outline the policies and programs the board is considering to implement proper hazardous waste management in Minnesota. Citizens will be asked to participate in group discussions on hazardous waste issues and evaluate the board's proposed policies and programs.

Individual and group questionnaires will give citizens an opportunity to help the board in its efforts to improve hazardous waste management.

Some of the issues that may be discussed at the meeting are:

Accident Kills Five Year Old Joshua Nelson

Joshua Lee Nelson, five-year-old son of Carol and John Lee Nelson, route 3, Thief River Falls, accidentally shot himself in the head with a 22 caliber revolver at about 6:30 p.m. last night, while playing at the home of his grandfather, Leo Nelson, also of route 3. The child was transported to Northwestern hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Funeral services have been set for Joshua Lee Nelson at 2 p.m. Friday, at Zion Lutheran church in Thief River Falls, with the Rev. Richard Larson officiating. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery. Visitation will be held at Green's Funeral Home chapel on Thursday afternoon and evening, and for one hour before the funeral at the church.

ED BJORGAARD of rural Thief River Falls is attempting to develop enough interest in rabbit production in the area to support regular monthly marketing of the animals. Shown with one of his herd bucks named "Muhammad Ali," he plans to expand his own operation to include 50 breeding does. A public meeting on rabbit production is set for September 14 at 8 p.m. in the county courthouse in Thief River Falls.

Rabbit Production Offers Potential

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"Three does and one buck rabbit can produce more meat in a year than a beef cow and can supply the protein requirements of a family of four," states Dr. Peter Cheeke of Oregon State university.

The professor bases his comparison on the rabbits averaging a litter of eight young and producing five litters a year. Such production would provide 120 offspring which at four pounds market weight would provide 480 pounds of liveweight animal. A beef cow, by comparison, produces one calf which would grow to about 450 pounds in the same period of time.

The Oregon State university researcher's comparison is used frequently by Ed Bjorgaard of rural Thief River Falls as he discusses the possibilities for rabbit marketing. An outlet is available for rabbits produced in this area and Bjorgaard says the need is now to find growers who will provide enough rabbits to make shipping from here feasible.

With that goal in mind, a public meeting on rabbit production and market possibilities will be conducted September 14 at 8 p.m. in the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls. Anyone interested in rabbit raising is encouraged to attend, ask questions and receive information.

Bjorgaard, who is employed by the city of Thief River Falls as an operator at the water treatment plant, has been raising rabbits for some time and notes that rabbit is on the family menu in one form or another at least once a week. If one can look past the cute and cuddly image of little bunnies, the flesh of domestic rabbits is very tasty, much resembling chicken in both taste and appearance.

"We all like it," he said of his family's attraction to eating rabbit meat. "Rabbits are very clean animals and they carry no diseases that can be transmitted to humans. They mature quickly, reaching table weight of over four pounds in about two months, and will thrive on a commercial pellet ration that is easy to feed and relatively economical to purchase."

Bjorgaard said it takes about 12 pounds of commercial feed at nine cents a pound to raise a rabbit to market weight. Present market price liveweight upon receipt at the processing facility in Hill City, Kansas, is 50 cents per pound. The processor wants only white rabbits in the four and one-half to six and one-half pound range.

Hillcrest Foods at Hill City has a capacity to process 5,000 rabbits a day, Bjorgaard said, and is presently processing about 1,800 daily. Plans are to ship rabbits from this area on the fourth Wednesday of every month. The first shipment was made late in August and consisted of 350 rabbits. The September shipment is expected to total about 1,000 rabbits from this area.

Tom Douglas of Cross Lake, a director of the American Rabbit Growers association, is one of the northern Minnesota enthusiasts. George Cadwell of Shevlin, who is expanding his operation to include several thousand

ASCS Reminds Farmers About PIK Extension

According to Pennington and Marshall county ASCS offices, the recent heavy rains have made it nearly impossible for farmers in those counties to seed down their set-aside acreage as planned.

Most farmers had made an agreement with their ASCS offices that they wanted to keep their set-aside in fallow this summer, and it would be seeded down to grass or small grain to protect it from wind erosion during the winter months.

As the September 1 seed-down deadline approaches, most parts of the county have had excessive rain during the past two weeks and the fields have been too wet to work.

The ASCS offices in both Thief River Falls and Warren have announced that a two-week extension for completing the seed-down practice is now available simply by calling the ASCS office.

The ASCS offices also suggests that if farmers have not been able to seed the acreage by the new September 15 deadline, that nothing further should be done wit the fields. With the warm, wet weather that the area has had, a volunteer cover crop will establish itself, and it will meet the requirements of the program for erosion protection. Those farmers who continue to cultivate the set-aside acreage through late September and into October will have summer fallow with no vegetative cover going into the winter, and this is not acceptable protection. When spot checks reveal set-aside acreage that is out of compliance with the regulations agreed to as part of the PIK program, the financial penalties are severe.

Six Join Staff As AVTI Opens 1983-84 Class Schedule

Six people in instructional and student service positions are new to the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute staff this year, according to Dr. Orley Gunderson, director of the institute.

Classes opened Monday at the AVTI with 487 students in attendance and the enrollment is expected to increase to about 500 by the end of the week, Dr. Gunderson said. Openings remain in all 18 course programs except practical nursing and enrollment will be accepted through this week. Further information is available by contacting the AVTI at 681-5434.

Two of the new faculty members at the AVTI are in the cosmetology department. Maxine Mottram will be instructor and department head while Darlene Sunram will be an instructor.

Mottram has been in the cosmetology field for 18 years, having owned a salon at Forest Lake and specialized in skin care services and color and permanent waving. Kronberger-Johnson Vows Spoken At St. Bernard's Deanne Kronberger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Kronberger, and Lyle C. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Johnson, exchanged marriage vows recently at St. Bernard's Catholic church in this city.

Rev. Stanley Bourassa officiated at the double-ring ceremony attended by approximately 200 relatives and friends. Violet Barr was organist and Jane Mackenroth, soloist. Selections were "God, a Woman and a Man," "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," "All My Days," and "Wedding Prayer," which was sung as the couple lit the unity candle.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a white sheer over taffeta floor-length gown featuring a beaded Schiffli yoke with Edwardian collar. Reembroidered Chantilly lace, sequins and seed pearls graced the fitted bodice. Her skirt with sheer pleated side insets was bordered with Chantilly lace. An under flounce of matching lace encircled the hemline and flowed into a chapel train. Her lace edged, fingertip veil was held by a lace and beaded Camelot headpiece. She carried a bouquet of long-stemmed white roses, lavender stephanotis and babies' breath. Her necklace and earrings were gifts from the groom.

Carla Kronberger, Mankato, attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Jill Torfin, Grand Forks, N.D., and Gretchen Fredeen, St. Cloud, friends of the bride. Their lavender floor-length gowns featured fitted bodices, flounced necklines and satin ribbon tie belts. To create a bustle effect, the flounced skirts were caught up in back to the waistline. All wore floral hair combs and carried long-stemmed white roses tipped in lavender. Their pearl necklaces and bracelets were gifts from the bride.

Wearing similar attire and carrying a lace basket filled with lavender stephanotis was the bride's niece, Melissa Johnson, Grand Forks, who served as flower girl.

The groom, attired in a white Winslow tuxedo, chose Luke Noreen, a friend, as best man. Groomsmen were brothers: Dwight and Neil Johnson, Red Lake Falls. Andrew Haag, Mankato, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. The ushers were Tim Sorvig and Louie Gonsorowski. They wore silver Winslow tuxedos and like the groom had matching ascots and white rose boutonnieres.

The bride's mother was attired in a long-sleeved, street-length dress of deep lavender chiffon with a draped buttoned front. The mother of the groom wore a soft lavender, long-sleeved, lacy knit, street-length dress. Their corsages were of pink roses, white carnations and stephanotis.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kraft, Solen, N.D., godparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Peterson, grandparents of the groom; and Paula Kertz, the bride's personal attendant.

A recention and dance followed at the Thief River Falls Country club. Hosting couple was Mr. and Mrs. Roger DeLap, uncle and aunt of the bride.

Lavender roses and pink drop flowers decorated the pillared, three-tiered wedding cake topped by the miniature bride and groom ornament which graced the bride's parents' wedding cake 35 years ago. The cake also featured a lighted, flowing fountain, and a circular, pedestal stairway with miniature replicas of the bridal party. At the base, connected by a lavender ribbon, was an open book cake topped with a candelebra inscribed with scripture verse and the couple's names. The cake, baked and decorated by the groom's aunt, Margaret Rupprecht, was cut and served by Mrs. Rupprecht and Hazel Kearns, Fargo, aunt of the bride.

Pouring coffee were Gerty Kraft, Solen, N.D., and Patsy Johnson, aunts of the bride and groom, respectively. Serving punch and the Kransekaga, the traditional Scandinavian wedding cake, were Camille Haag, Mankato, niece of the bride, and Sharon Piche, a friend.

Deanna Sorvig, St. Hilaire, registered the guests; John and Joyce Sang, uncle and aunt of the groom, presided at the gift table; Chris and Jimmy Sang, cousins of the groom, and Renny Johnson, nephew of the bride, were gift bearers. Waitresses were Julie Peterson, Susan Peterson and Joni Mosbeck, cousins of the groom, Sharon Piche, Lisa Erickson and Nancy Noreen. Alvin Burstads 50th Anniversary Observed

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Burstad were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary at an open house reception on Sunday, August 7, at Zion Lutheran church in this city.

Hosting the open house were the couple's two children and their spouses: Mr. and Mrs. Milton (Della) Burstad, Thief River Falls, and Mr. and Mrs. Larry (Mila) Shaskey of Aitkin, assisted by six of their seven grandchildren: Mr. and Mrs. Gary Burstad, Rock Springs, Wyo.; Mr. and Mrs. Ken Kalsnes and Mr. and Mrs. Doug Dallmann, Thief River Falls; Patti Burstad, Duluth, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Blake, Windom and Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Morris, Aitkin. Grandson Michael Burstad, Casper, Wyo., was unable to attend. The couple also has nine great-grandchildren.

The Burstads were married in Thief River Falls on Oct. 23, 1933 with Rev. Fjelstad, officiating. Their attendants were Myrtle Hanson, who was honor guest at the anniversary celebration, and Albert Hanson, now deceased.

The open house began with a program with grandson Gary Burstad presiding. He also gave a brief history of the early courting days and the family life of the Burstads. Kelly and Gary Blake sang "Gift of Love," and "One Day at a Time," Jeneen Kalsnes read a 50th anniversary poem, and Alice Lendobeja, a longtime friend and neighbor, paid special tribute to the couple. The program concluded with Gary Blake singing "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Stacy Davidson.

For the reception that followed, the lace covered tables were centered with bud vases filled with gold-tone silk flowers, made by Della Burstad, who also made all the corsages and boutonnieres worn at the event. Centering the serving table was a three-tiered anniversary cake made by Alice Hanson. The cake was iced in white, decorated with gold roses and topped with a gold Christogram with entwined wedding rings. Cutting and serving the cake were Mrs. Shaskey and Mrs. Milton Burstad. On either side of the cake were gold candles and vases of yellow roses, gifts from the grandchildren. At the coffee service were Milly Hartleban, St. Paul and Alice Keck, nieces of the couple.

Adding interest to the open house was a display of pictures of the entire Burstad family.

87th Birthday Is Observed By Gunda Myrum

Mrs. Gunda Myrum of Chisholm and formerly of Deer Park township, Pennington county, observed her 87th birthday on August 1. To mark the event, her 11 sons and daughters and their families, as well as her brother and sisters, gathered at the Bernell Myrum home at Swan Lake on Sunday, July 31.

Mrs. Myrum, a daughter of Norwegian immigrants, Mr. and Mrs. Sjur Stolass, was born Aug. 1, 1896 at Fisher. She attended school at Fisher and then enrolled in a sewing and dressmaking school at Fargo, N.D. Following graduation, she operated a dress-making shop at Oklee. On July 12, 1918, she married Halvor Myrum at Rolette, N.D. The following year, they bought a farm and moved to Deer Park township. There three children: Arnold, Selmer and Signe, were born.

From 1923 until 1925 they lived at Chisholm where Myrum worked in the mines. While living there two more sons, Howard and Bernell, were born.

After the mines closed in 1925, the Myrums returned to the farm in Deer Park. There eight more children: Betty, Ines, Milton, Lloyd, Tenny, Lawrence, Glorianne and Gerald, were born. Of the nine sons, seven served in the Armed Forces during World War II and the Korean Conflict.

Mrs. Myrum's husband died in 1946, a son, Lawrence, was killed in a car accident in 1968, and a daughter, Glorianne, died of cancer in 1975.

After the death of her husband, Mrs. Myrum continued to operate the farm and rear her family. She raised a garden, canned, milked the cows, harvested the hay, baked all the bread, made the clothes, including coats, and knitted socks and mittens. Since 1962, she has made her home at Chisholm where she is a member of the Faith Lutheran church.

For her birthday celebration, she made all the flat bread and lefse, using the rolling pin made by her uncle in Norway. She still sews and makes quilts.

Present for the birthday party, in addition to her children, were a number of her 37 grandchildren and her 28 great-grandchildren. Also present were her sisters: Onga Hendrickson and Tilda Hedeen of Thief River Falls, and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Stolaas of Oklee.

Store Robbed In Goodridge

Goodridge Hartz Store and Cafe was broken into sometime last night, for the second time in a month. Helen Grabowska, owner of the store, discovered the break-in when she went to open up at about 6 a.m. this morning, and called the Pennington county law enforcement center.

Investigation indicated that entry to the building had been gained by breaking a window. Pennington county sheriff Chuck Richards said that a considerable amount of merchandise had been strewn around the store, but preliminary estimates indicated that approximately $1,000 in merchandise and foodstuffs had been stolen.

Production Of Rabbits Offers Cash Potential

breeding does, is presently the shipper hauling rabbits from this area to the Kansas market. He has offered to haul the first four monthly loads to Hill City.

Processing of the rabbits at Hillcrest Foods includes a vacuum seal in plastic wrap which gives the rabbit a 28-day shelf life in the grocer's meat counter, Bjorgaard said.

Bjorgaard plans on expanding his herd to include about 50 breeding does which should give him about 2,000 offspring for market or table use annually. He believes the availability of a market on a cooperative basis locally could be an incentive for 4-H club members in the rabbit project and others who like to raise the animals but have had no outlet other than family use for what they produce.

"This could give a youngster some good business experience as well as 4-H club project activity," Bjorgaard said. "He or she could earn a few dollars and learn about expenses, record keeping and marketing procedures. I think it has good possibilities."

GROWN FOR FUR as well as meat, this rabbit at the Ed Bjorgaard farm west of Thief River Falls has an extremely heavy and dense coat. Bjorgaard said he plans to concentrate on meat rabbit production, however, and will therefore reduce the variety of rabbits presently raised. The market demands white-furred rabbits with live weight of four and one-half to six and one-half pounds.

Transportation Plan Review Here Sept. 12

Transportation problems affecting the seven-county area encompassed by the NWRDC are identified and planning guidelines to address these problems are provided. All modes of transportation in the region are addressed with highway, rail and aeronautics receiving the greatest emphasis.

Copies of the plan are available for review from the NWRDC office in Crookston (281-1396).

Free Eye Test Kits Offered Area Citizens

Over 40,000 Minnesotans will develop chronic and sight threatening eye conditions such as cataracts, glaucoma or macular degeneration (the major cause of blindness in those over 50) in 1983.

If these diseases are not diagnosed and treated promptly, sometimes within the first few weeks of onset, blindness may result. Unfortunately, most Americans have infrequent eye examinations, often seeking care only after permanent vision loss has occurred.

In an effort to improve the incidence of early detection, the Minnesota society for the prevention of blindness and preservation of hearing recently introduced an adult home eye screening kit which can detect many of these serious eye conditions before permanent sight loss occurs. Bonnie Hamill, executive vice president of the society, notes however, that the screening kits are not intended to replace professional eye examinations, but can provide important early clues to changes in eye health.

Dr. William Ramsay, Thief River Falls eye physician and surgeon, is enthusiastic about the kits, commenting, "I would recommend that everybody test their eyes in this way on a recurrent basis, several times a year, but it's especially important for people over 40, who are in a higher risk group for cataracts and glaucoma." He recommended that people who obtain one of the kits should save them for repeat testing at least twice a year, and share them wih friends and neighbors as well.

Printed on a folded brochure, the kit includes everything needed to take the tests, with the only other requirements being a well-lit area at least 10 feet long, an assistant (if possible), a pen or pencil, a flashlight (if possible), and tape or a tack to mount the chart on the wall. Unfolded, the brochure can even be used to measure the 10 foot distance between the eye chart and the subject taking the test.

Testing is divided into four major parts: Visual acuity screening which checks for blurred vision; Pinhole screening which can indicate prescription eyeglass needs; Amsler grid screening which can give early indications of eye disease; and a glaucoma survey which can indicate whether furtuer testing for this disease is advisable. In addition to the charts and eye covers necessary to complete the tests, the kit contains a report card on which results can be recorded for evaluation by one's personal eye doctor.

Limited numbers of the kits will be provided free of charge by the Medicine Shoppe, 118 North LaBree Avenue, Thief River Falls, from Tuesday through Friday, September 6-9, or while the supply lasts. Persons who miss that opportunity may obtain a kit by sending $1 to cover postage and handling, to: Minnesota Society for the Prevention of Blindness, 1208 Pioneer Building, St. Paul, MN. 55101.

Congressman Will Vote For Monetary Fund

Congressman Arlan Stangeland will support an $8.5 billion appropriation for the International Monetary Fund (IMF) which will be voted on by Congress this fall.

He made this announcement after a second meeting with his advisory committees of lenders from central and western Minnesota.

"I am persuaded that this is a jobs bill, a farm bill and a bill to keep the economic recovery rolling," Congressman Stangeland said.

The bill will provide $5.8 billion for the IMF's regular lending pool. Another $2.7 billion will go to a newly-expanded emergency fund designed to rescue cash-squeezed countries whose defaults could endanger the global financial system.

"Perhaps no other Congressman represents an area more dependent on a stable financial market than the Seventh District of Minnesota," Congressman Stangeland said. "If defaults were not stopped by the IMF, a change of a few points in interest rates could cost thousands of Minnesotans their farms.

"We do have a recovery underway in the agricultural sector and the national economy," he said. "But a disaster in the lending arena could stop that recovery in its tracks. This seems like a good investment in our recovery." He noted that America would spend or lose far more than the $8.5 billion if calamity overtook U.S. lending institutions.

"We would lost tax revenues with a stalled recovery, and the federal government would be forced to spend billions in further rescue programs," he said. "This is inexpensive preventive medicine compared to the costs of fiscal surgery that would be required if there are massive international defaults."

The Congressman met last week with western Minnesota lenders who are in a Congressional advisory committee chaired by Mark Olson of Fergus Falls. Previously he met in St. Cloud with his lenders' advisory committee in central Minnesota.

"These lenders have made it clear that events in Brazil and Europe will be felt in northwest Minnesota," Congressman Stangeland said. "They have persuaded me that it is necessary to vote for the IMF bill to keep the recovery on track."

Al Sollom Is Named "Artist Of The Month"

(Thief River Falls community arts council regularly features an area "Artist of the Month," whose work goes on display at Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls for the entire month. People who would like to recommend an artist to be featured should contact the community arts council by calling 681-2960 or 681-4065.)

September's "Artist of the Month" is Al Sollom, well-known as a woodcarver in this area. Al, who lives in rural Thief River Falls, says he began carving early in life. He grew up in Bagley where there were no formal art classes. Al had done a great deal of sketching, however, and while attending Bemidji state college, he began taking art classes. In fact, he earned a bachelor's degree in fine arts, in addition to both bachelor's and master's degrees in social studies.

Sculpture particularly intrigued him, and from that interest he developed his love of woodcarving. At the age of 19, he carved an Indian head from a piece of wood which blew out of a tree in his yard. This carving remained on display at Bemidji state college until after Sollom left the military service in 1963, and is part of the exhibit at the library.

Al spent 20 years in the U.S. Marine Corps, retiring in 1963 as a lieutenant colonel. "My interest in woodcarving was rekindled in the Marine Corps," says Al. "In China and Japan I saw a lot of really good carving. It has influenced my woodcarving. You can see it in my carvings of fish, especially in the fins."

After retiring from the Marines, Al taught social studies at Lincoln high school for three years, then he worked 13 years for the Minnesota education association. After retiring from that job he continued to carve.

Sollem has exhibited his work at every "Art in the Park" festival that the Thief River Falls community arts council has held. He has also entered art shows in Grand Forks, ND. and East Grand Forks. A fish which earned the hanging award at an East Grand Forks show is included in the "Artist of the Month" display. Another one of his carvings can be seen on permanent display at Northern State Bank.

Last winter, Northland community college offered an introductory course in woodcarving with Al as instructor. As he puts it, "I can teach anyone the technique of woodcarving. . . but what you do with it is something else." Al explained that at one time, before the advent of machines, all borders and so on were carved by hand. "Those woodcarvers were more like machines, discouraged from doing anything creative. . . They were more technicians than artists. That's what a lot of woodcarvers still do. . . That's why you see the same thing over and over again."

Al believes in originality. He sees things in wood, he explains, and as a woodcarver, he enhances what he sees so that others may see it also. A good example of the result of his technique is "The Watchers," a carving included in the display. Al says, "A lot of my ideas came from what I saw as the natural forms in the wood. This is even more true of the carving at the bank."

Even though Sollom believes in originality and creativity in woodcarving, he also believes strongly in learning techniques and being able to do all types of woodcarving. He explained the six basic types of woodcarving: chip, incise, low relief, high relief, intaglio, and carving in the round.

—Chip carving is associated with the Scandinavians. Basically, a geometric shape (usually a triangle) is cut down into the wood. Many of these shapes are then put together to make a pattern.

—Incise carving is achieved by cutting grooves and patterns into the face of the wood. No modeling is done for this type of carving. The cuts are clean and simple.

—Low relief carving is modeled. In this type, what you carve stands out from the background. "For low relief carving, you use the same principles as in painting to bring out depth," says Al, "except that you do have a little depth in the wood you can work with. The idea of perspective is still the same."

—High relief carving is also modeled, and as in low relief carving, what you carve stands out from the background. The difference is that what you carve in high relief stands out one-half or more of the thickness of the actual object being carved. In low relief, what you carve stands out less than one-half of the thickness of the object.

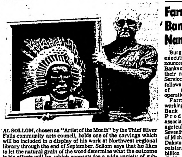
—Intaglio carving can be compared to the negative of a photograph. Everything carved goes back into the background. What you normally would think would be the highest point of the carving is the lowest part.

—Carving in the round is work that can be viewed from all sides, often referred to as wood sculpture. Al considers this the most difficult, the most challenging and the most rewarding type of carving.

No matter what type or style of woodcarving Sollom does, he invariably attempts to highlight the wood. As a result, he rarely paints his carvings. As he puts it, "a good deal of the charm of a woodcarving is the grain of the wood. After all, what you carve is largely determined by the grain of the wood. You don't want to cover that wood and spoil its beauty and warmth."

Besides carving, Al reads a great deal and likes working outdoors and fishing. He and his wife Phyllis are also involved in activities at Zion Lutheran Church. They have five children: Bob, a captain in the Marine Corps; Don, a carpenter for the Soo Line railroad; Tobey who is married to Gerald Myers, a farmer; and twins, Carrie, majoring in accounting at St. Cloud State university; and Kathy, married to Darrell Myers, who is involved in construction. Al and Phyllis also have eight grandchildren.

JOHN NICHOLSON, exalted ruler of Elks Lodge 1308 in Thief River Falls, recently presented $200 scholarship checks to two Lincoln high school graduates who will be entering the University of North Dakota as freshmen this fall. Receiving the scholarships were Kristy Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Peterson and Tim Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Walker, all of Thief River Falls.



AL SOLLOM, chosen as "Artist of the Month" by the Thief River Falls community arts council, holds one of the carvings which will be included in a display of his work at Northwest regional library through the end of September. Sollom says that he likes to let the natural grain of the wood determine what the outcome is his efforts will be, which accounts for a wide variety of subjects on the display.

Farm Credit Banks Change Name Aug. 25

Burgee Amdahl, chief executive officer, has announced that the Farm Credit Banks of St. Paul had changed their name to Farm Credit Services. The name change follows a July 1 consolidation of management and operations at the banks.

Farm Credit services working with Federal Land Bank associations and Production Credit associations is the largest agricultural lender in the Seventh Farm Credit district of Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin. It has outstanding loans of $12.1 billion to some 140,000 individual member-borrowers and 700 member-cooperatives.

Farm Credit services is a part of the nationwide farm credit system which specializes in providing financial services to farmers, ranchers, their cooperatives and farm-related businesses. Although regulated by an independent agency of the federal government, the farm credit system is cooperatively owned by its member-borrowers and raises funds through private money markets.

Mn/DOT Sets Disadvantaged Business Goals

Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) has established a 10 per cent goal for disadvantaged business (including minority business enterprise) participation in federally aided highway and urban mass transit programs, commissioner Richard P. Braun announced.

"Meeting this goal to comply with the 1982 surface transportation assistance act will require a major effort by the limited number of Minnesota minority contractors and consultants who do highway and heavy construction," he said.

Number of minority firms registering as legal business entities under the Federal highway administration and small business administration guidelines of 1980 has increased. Braun said this should help in meeting the goal.

Mn-DOT has also contracted with a Minnesota engineering consulting firm and a major road contractor to provide information and guidance to disadvantaged businesses for participation in the federal programs.

The 1983-84 federal fiscal year goals are available for review in Room G-4, Transportation Building, John Ireland Boulevard, St. Paul. Comments will be accepted until October 7 and may be sent to Robert Elcan, director, Contract Compliance, G-4, Transportation Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Citizens Who Travel Abroad Need Advice

United States citizens traveling abroad rarely protect themselves against disease and "unappreciated dangers" that lurk in many foreign lands, says the Minnesota Medical association. Travelers can contract sometimes fatal illnesses because they are unthinkingly accustomed to safe water, food and swimming areas, and they typically view mosquitoes and dog bites as minor nuisances.

Although approximately five million Americans visit the "tropics" and three million visit Mexico each year, many of these travelers lack adequate background knowledge and current information about each of these areas, MMA reports.

Citing studies that show more than 20 per cent of international travelers experience at least one illness abroad, the MMA said that many of these illnesses can be avoided if travelers just take the time to utilize all of the options available to them. Physicians and state agencies are both sources of information about potential diseases and health risks and may be contacted well in advance of the trip to ensure that medical intervention as well as required vaccinations are completed before the trip is made.

Bill On Upper Mississippi In Committee

Senate subcommittee has authorized construction of a 600-foot chamber at Lock and Dam 26 on the Mississippi river near Alton, IL.

Authorization came on an amendment offered by Senator Dave Durenberger at a hearing of the senate environment and public works subcommittee on water resources. Durenberger, a member of the committee, was acting in cooperation with Senator Rudy Boschwitz. Boschwitz introduced legislation in February to construct the new chamber.

Authorization includes money for environmental protection programs on the Mississippi River, as recommended by the Upper Mississippi River Basin commission in their master plan for the river system. Today's subcommittee action was seen as a victory for both farmers and environmentalists, who once drew battle lines over construction of the new chamber.

New 600-foot chamber will complement a 1,200 foot chamber at Lock and Dam 26, and together they will match Lock and Dam 27, streamlining grain shipments on the river.

"Lock and Dam 26 has become a serious obstacle in accommodating barge shipments on the Mississippi River," said Durenberger. Locks and dams 1-25, and 27 can handle 115 tons of cargo each. Number 26 can only handle about 65 tons, so the slow down at that chamber is obviously a problem to Midwestern farmers who need a reliable transportation system to insure delivery of their products to national and world markets."

Recognizing concerns by environmentalists that cargo traffic may be harmful to the river's ecosystem, the subcommittee approved environmental protection programs for the river including erosion control measures, protection programs for wildlife habitats, a long-term resource monitoring system and a recreational program.

Senator Boschwitz testified on behalf of his bill, S.449, before the subcommittee on July 18.

Amendment was attached to the water resources development act which now goes before the full environment and public works committee. Action is expected in September.

WELCOMING a new cottage industry to Thief River Falls, Chamber Ambassadors Bob Poissant, left, and Arnie Narverud, paid a visit to the office of Project Heritage Design, where they extended their congratulations and a first dollar of clear profit to general manager Milly Dallmann, left, and project design manager Mary Follett. Located at 216 North Main Avenue, the company intends to market piece quilts such as the one displayed here, which will be manufactured by area women in their homes. Present plans are to market two designs in three color combinations each.

Total Value Pricing For Milk Offered

Land O'Lakes, Inc. is implementing a comprehensive program for pricing milk purchased from its dairy producers called "Total Value Pricing."

The concept is designed as a long term program for dairy producers everywhere and becomes effective October 1.

Total value pricing, according to Land O'Lakes management, (1) rewards efficient production of milk solids; (2) reflects the value of milk used in all of its end products — fluid milk, butter, cheese, ice cream and nonfat dry milk; (3) recognizes the nutritive value of all components in milk — butterfat, protein, lactose and minerals; and (4) implements the first major step toward an equitable national milk component pricing system.

All producers marketing milk through Land O'Lakes will be eligible on October 1 to receive a new premium payment based on the higher yield value of milk containing above average solids, as well as above average quality. The producers' milk will be tested for butterfat, quality and milk solids.

Land O'Lakes will pay its dairy producer members a competitive base price, plus or minus a butterfat differential, plus a quality premium, plus a premium for above average solids-not-fat.

For the past several years, Land O'Lakes has been evaluating various component pricing methods including the California pricing system as well as numerous protein pricing programs in the midwest. It also has surveyed dairy farmer leaders to determine what programs are best for dairy producers, long term. With this background, a comprehensive component pricing program was developed.

Land O'Lakes' total value pricing is regarded by the cooperative as an important first step to establishing a fair and equitable milk component pricing program on a national basis.

Precedent Set On Food Stamp Rule Violation

U.S. department of agriculture has announced the "first store in the Midwest region (Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin) to be permanently disqualified from the food stamp program.

A food store in Chicago, IL., has been permanently disqualified based on evidence that the firm discounted food stamps for cash and accepted food stamps in exchange for ineligible items, including cigarettes, paper products, laundry products, household cleaning products, and bath soap. Disqualification took effect July 14, 1983.

Permanent disqualification is a new feature of food stamp regulations which took effect on December 17. Up until that date, retailers, could be disqualified for periods ranging from one month to three years.

"Now they can be disqualified from six months to five years for the first offense, one year to 10 years for the second, and permanently for the third," explained Monroe Woods, Midwest regional administrator of USDA's food and nutrition service.

"If a retailer is found discounting food stamps, that is, purchasing them for cash, usually at an amount less than their face value and then redeeming them through banks for their full value, he will be permanently disqualified for the first offense," added Woods.

Such was the case with the Chicago store, whose owner may not receive authorization for reinstatement in the food stamp program.

Woods said that stores must agree to abide by the regulations governing the food stamp program before they are authorized to accept food stamps. He quickly pointed out that over 99 per cent of the more than 33,000 retailers participating in the food stamp program in the Midwest region are honest merchants who abide by the rules.

Concert Series Features Glenn Miller Orchestra

Membership campaign for the coming season of the Thief River Falls concert association has begun with the mailing of letters to all previous members, giving them first chance to renew their memberships. General public will then be provided the opportunity to purchase season tickets for the five concerts being offered.

As in the past, there will be no tickets sold for individual concerts. Season memberships are $18 for adults, $9 for students or $48 for an entire family. Membership is available from the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce office or any member of the association's board of directors.

Requests for membership will be hendled in the order in which they are received. Last year the capacity of the Lincoln high school auditorium was sold out for the concert series, and officers of the association expect a similar situation this year.

Concerts offered include the Glenn Miller orchestra October 13; Robert Guaralnik's piano presentation "Chopin Lives" November 15; Chestnut Brass, a brass quintet playing tradition, jazz, rags and popular music February 2; "Lucnica" Czechoslovakian folk ballet February 28; and The Vagles, a musical duo with piano, harmonica, harp and brass accompaniment, March 19.

Members of the board of directors are Walt Forney, Pat Martin, Gerry Stocks, Vivian Sjulson, Doris Vevea, Val Chommie, Arnold Carriere, Marcia Knuttila, Glen Espe, Senora Skay, Madelyn Robarge, Melba Penning, Margaret Saetre, Dorothy Larson, Yvonne Bredeson and Gordon A. Peterson of Thief River Falls, Sylvia Steinart of Red Lake Falls, Vangie Myhre of Warren and Delores Severson of Warroad.

These directors, meeting with Norm Wendt of Allied Concert series, selected the talent for the series with a view toward variety in entertainment and broadening musical appreciation of the public. "No better bargain will be found for the number of concerts and convenience of attending," states Melba Penning, publicity director for the association.

Gas Prices Are Expected To Decrease Soon

Gas prices in Minnesota have fluctuated little over the summer, but may begin to drop in a few weeks, according to Minnesota AAA's Labor day fuel survey.

"Travel in the state increased less than expected, therefore demand for gas was lower," said Minnesota AAA spokeswoman Nita Beckman. "The excess supplies that resulted from lower demand may eventually push retail prices down a cent or two." Beckman added that unless demand picks up, Minnesotans may begin to see lower gas prices after Labor day, which usually marks the close of the summer travel season.

Despite the combined eight-cent federal and state gas tax increase which was effective in the spring, gas prices are an average of two cents lower than one year ago, Beckman said.

According to AAA's survey of 82 stations, average full-service prices in Minnesota are: regular, $1.385; unleaded, $1.439; premium, $1.574; unleaded premium, $1.649; and diesel, $1.282. Northern Minnesota prices average $1.3609 regular, $1.40 regular unleaded, $1.509 premium unleaded and $1.263 diesel.

Self-service prices are: regular, $1.231; unleaded, $1.292; premium, $1.335; unleaded premium, $1.390; and diesel, $1.183. (All prices reported are for cash purchases.) Northern Minnesota self-serve prices are $1.291 regular, $1.340 regular unleaded, $1.399 premium unleaded and $1.298 diesel.

Although cash discounts can still be found, Beckman reported that many stations are returning to charging one price for cash and credit purchases.

Beckman noted that weekend travelers should fill their tanks early, as over one-third of the stations surveyed will be closed Sunday and on Labor Day, September 5.

NEW BUSINESS, Variety Sales, has opened at 115 West Sixth Street, the former location of D and J Radio sales and service in Thief River Falls. Chamber Ambassadors Bob Poissant, left, and Arnie Narverud extended congratulations and a first dollar of clear profit to Olivia Newland, who owns the store with her husband Bob. With assistance from their children and one other employee, they offer a wide variety of merchandise which they purchase as inventory close-outs and offer at discount prices. Olivia notes that the selection changes almost constantly.

New Travel Center Opens In Oakdale

Tourists and other travelers in the Twin Cities area can now obtain directions, weather reports and information about Minnesota's cultural, recreational and historic attractions at the newly opened St. Croix travel information center in Oakdale, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) announced.

Temporary travel center is housed in a mobile trailer unit located in the parking lot of the K-Mart store at the intersection of Minnehaha Avenue and I-694 in Oakdale. Trailer was provided by metroland tourism association and the site was donated by K-Mart.

Center is open daily from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m. through the Labor Day weekend. It will remain open during the summer months until Mn-DOT builds a permanent travel center east of St. Paul in 1985. Permanent facility will be construted in connection with completion of I-94 between I-694 and the Wisconsin border.

Braun said the effort is already paying dividends as travelers, vacationers and Minnesota residents receive help in finding their way or in finding out about the abundance of summertime attractions the state's largest metropolitan area has to offer.

Center is an extension of Mn-DOT's network of seven travel information centers which provide travelers with assistance and promote tourism throughout the state.

Taxpayers To Beware Of Phony Shelters

If you've been offered a great way to get out of paying federal taxes, this "chance of a lifetime" may bring you nothing but a lifetime of problems, according to the director of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) in Minnesota, C.D. Switzer.

A number of promoters are selling what they call a "family estate trust" or perhaps it's called a "foreign double trust." These two schemes and a number of phony tax shelters simply won't produce the results promoters claim they will Switzer said.

"What you really are buying is a can of worms, at best. When one of these schemes appears on a tax return, your chances of an audit go up dramatically. There will be back taxes to pay plus interest and the strong likelihood of some stiff penalties. Of course the fee you paid the promoter is down the drain also," Switzer said.

Here's a brief rundown of some of the schemes, how they work, and some of the penalties the tax agency can assess.

Promoters are selling "family estate trusts" for fees as high as $25,000 and claiming that clients can greatly reduce federal taxes by transferring assets, including their lifetime earnings, to the trust.

Promoters maintain that their clients, who are the creators of these trusts, may receive compensation as a trustee or director as well as certain "fringe benefits," such as, "pension rights, "tax-free use of a residence," and "education endowments" for their children.

According to both the IRS and the U.S. tax court, assigning all of your income to the trust does not relieve you of the responsibility for reporting the income on your tax return.

Another type of scheme, sometimes called a "foreign double trust" can be a maze of legal double talk.

Promoters claim that by creating a number of trusts, with one of them in a foreign country, U.S. income tax liability can be greatly reduced or eliminated. Claims of other benefits include the elimination of federal estate and gift tax liability and avoidance of various state and local taxes.

Under this scheme, a taxpayer agrees to have a promoter create a foreign based trust and then have the taxpayer's assets transferred to the trust. A second trust is created in the same country naming the first trust as trustee. Assets are then transferred from the first to second trust with distributions made from the second trust to the taxpayer and family members.

Since under this scheme, the taxpayer effectively continues to own and control the assets, the arrangements between the two trusts will have no effect for tax purposes.

More Surplus Food Released To Help Needy

Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has announced commodity distribution revisions which make available to states an increased amount of bulk cheddar cheese and increased amounts of processed cheese, non-fat dry milk, corn meal, honey and butter for household use.

"I have directed that steps be taken immediately to increase the processing capacity so that the additional commodities can reach the recipients as quickly as possible," Block said. "We will make available to needy people all of the commodities that can be properly processed."

To assure that sufficient commodities reach those in need, states will establish criteria to limit distribution to these persons who lack sufficient resources to provide for themselves. It is expected that states will develop standards to target this assistance, the USDA will monitor these state plans.

"It's important that we continue looking for new and creative ways to distribute the bulk commodities which are in government storage," Block said. "There is no reason why a single needy family should find itself without access to federal food assistance."

Food stamps are the major USDA program for feeding the needy. Food assistance is also provided in the school lunch and breakfast programs and the special supplemental food program for women, infants and children, among others. About 34 per cent more is spent on federal food assistance today than in 1980.

"Besides these programs we began distributing surplus dairy commodities in late 1981," Block said. "We have since added some grain commodities to this household distribution effort. Keep in mind, these distributions are temporary, emergency efforts to augment the government's feeding programs while the need exists and while we have some surplus commodities available."

Revisions also provide an opportunity for states not receiving adequate processed cheese to meet the needs of eligible people. In those cases, USDA will make available to the states as much bulk cheddar cheese as they can effectively use without waste, and allow them to contract with local firms for processing. Local and state health standards must be met and packaging must be for household distribution.

To ensure effective program distribution and management, Block said he supports continued administrative funding for states and local organizations.

Household distribution program — the first since 1962 — began in December of 1981. More than 700 million pounds of commodities representing $1 billion in expenditures have been distributed to needy persons.

Revisions are in addition to other commodity distributions to benefit schools and institutions. USDA will continue providing unlimited surplus commodities for institutional use, such as for schools and soup kitchens.

Grocery store food prices averaged about five per cent higher in 1982 than in 1981. Two-thirds of this came from an increase in the farm-to-retail price spread — or processing and marketing foods after they leave the farm.

REPORT

From The Minnesota House of Representatives
by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

Thousands of years ago, the glacial waters of the giant Lakes Agassiz and Aitkin began receeding, leaving behind great tracts of flat, wet ground and small hollows filled with water. Masses of aquatic plants began to grow over the level stretches and along the shores of lakes and sloughs. This was the origin of perhaps Minnesota's most abundant resource — peat.

Two recent events have focused public attention in Minnesota on peat. First was the announcement that a Swedish company, Rajso Torv, had been granted a 25-year lease of 2,625 acres of state-owned peat land. Shortly after the announcement, Governor Perpich and several state legislators embarked on a trip to northern Europe and the Soviet Union to study peat production and use.

This is not the first time that peat has stirred interest in Minnesota. In the winter of 1919-20, a large office building in Minneapolis was successfully heated with peat. However, the project was discontinued for various reasons, including the lack of a steady supply of fuel. Since then, there have been sporadic attempts in each decade to generate an interest in peat, focusing mainly on peat's horticultural uses.

One reason that peat has caught Minnesotans' fancy from time to time is its abundance; Minnesota has 50 per cent of the nation's peat resources outside of Alaska, 5.9 million acres. Large unbroken stretches of peat are in Marshall county.

This substance that has generated interest over the past several weeks — both pro and con — can best be described as partially decayed plants. These course grasses, reeds and other vegetation accumulate in or under water which keeps them from decaying completely. Layers of the material are built up over long periods of time — between two to five inches per century. The top layer often consists of dead leaves, stems, roots, seeds and pieces of wood that have hardly decayed at all, while the lower layers of plants may be partly or almost completely rotted.

Peat may consist of up to 95 per cent water. There are several methods for mining it, both dry mining and wet mining, but whichever method is used, the peat must still be dried.

The oldest and most common use of peat world-wide is as a fuel. The Irish have used peat for heating and for cooking for over 1,000 years. Currently, between 20 and 30 per cent of their electricity is generated by peat, over 400 megawatts. The Soviet Union has over 70 power plants which run on peat. Ireland also harvests on a large scale; the national peat board annually harvests over 4,000,000 tons of peat.

The advanced peat industries of the Soviet Union, Finland, Sweden and Ireland and their sophistication have lured the governor and his party to inspect the industry in these and other countries. It is interesting to note that Rajso Torv, the Swedish company that will soon be in the peat business in Minnesota, was the first company in Sweden to start large-scale production of peat as fuel. It currently processes about 50 per cent of Sweden's peat.

The big peat producers in Europe have not only found uses for peat, but they have developed more sophisticated methods of harvesting and land reclamation.

In addition to its use as fuel, peat can also be used to make charcoal for water and gas purification, paper, textile fiber, building material, insulation and agents for tanning leather. It can also be used in sugar refining and as a soil supplement.

Some Minnesotans are opposed to the full-scale development of peat resources, at least at this time. They believe that not enough is understaood of the environmental impact or the effect on the economies of small towns where large peat mining would take place. Others remain unconvinced that the return on peat would pay for the capital investment.

This past session, the Legislature attempted to answer some of these questions by putting controls on the mining of peat. Legislators included peat under provisions of the mineland reclamation act, and the department of natural resources was instructed to develop rules for the mining of peat by 1985. Further, any operation must have a permit to mine more than 40 acres or more than 1,000 tons of peat.

Meanwhile, the first steps toward the development of peat have taken place. Rajso Torv intends to compress its harvested peat and to develop a midwest market. The federal government recently announced plans to spend $1.6 million to study a process that could raise the heat content in peat and extend the harvesting season from 60 days to six months.

The success of these first steps and the result of continuing studies will determine the future of peat in Minnesota.

The worklife expectancy of women has increased faster than life expectancy; in 1977 a 20-year-old woman could expect to spend 45 per cent of her life in the labor market, up from 27 per cent in 1950, according to "Women at Work: A Chartbook," published by the U.S. Department of Labor.

NFO President Comments On Tax On Milk

"When Preisent Reagan vetoed the measure recently enacted in a joint resolution of the House and Senate to hold off on USDA's additional 50-cent tax on milk, he chose a time when Congress was out of town so he and his ag planners could quietly slip something over on the dairy farmers," comments DeVon Woodland, president of the National Farmers organization.

"For one thing," said Wooldnal, "taxing farm production is unprecedented in a farm law. For another thing, the additional 50-cent tax to be brought on by the president's veto of the joint resolution to hold back on it, won't really cause any dairy farmer to reduce production.

The USDA says this latest added tax can be avoided by an eight per cent reduction in production. But reducing production eight per cent is an eight per cent reduction in cash flow. No dairy farmer would fall for it. Participation would be nil. And just like the first 50-cent assessment, it would have the opposite effect desired as dairy farmers cranked up their production to pay for the 50-cent tax. This is stupid planning," Woodland said.

Woodland pointed out that Secretary John Block's taxes on milk, now to total $1 a hundredweight, will mean upwards of $1.3 billion from the income of dairy farmers. "They can't afford it, even in the best of circumstances. It means that many of them will be forced into bankruptcy. So we can't help but believe that the real intention of this quiet late August maneuver of the administration is to bring an ultimate reduction in dairy production by causing a reduction in the number of dairy producers."

Woodland said "the direction for the future of dairying in America is clear. Producers will not be able to depend on government programs. They will have to rely on their own organized strength through nationwide collective bargaining."
